

The Guardian's Sword #Chapter 1751 - Read The Guardian's Sword Chapter 1751

Chapter 1751

She was shocked as soon as she got into the office.

Then she asked, "What's going on..."

Before Lisha finished speaking, Aria glared at her with her red and puffy eyes and started cursing, "Lisha! You're my sister. How can you kill me? How can you be so cruel? Why did you ask Sean to assassinate me? If Lowich hadn't taken the sword strike for me, I would have been a cold corpse!"

Lisha's head buzzed, and she was dumbfounded for a long time.

I asked Sean to assassinate Aria?

Is this a joke?

Aria's the one who asked Lowich to kill me!

"Nonsense!" Lisha yelled as her beautiful eyes began to redden.

Aria sneered repeatedly with a disappointed expression on her face. "Lisha, my good sister, You still refuse to admit it when things have come to this. Lisha, tell me the truth. Did you make such a ridiculous decision because that man called Sean Lennon deluded and tricked you? Is that why?"

"That's slander!" Lisha finally came to her senses.

She quickly looked at her father, Claremento, and explained. "Dad, Aria had Lowich assemble a bunch of hooligans to come after Sean and me last night. Lowich hid among the hooligans looking for a chance to assassinate me or kill Sean. Fortunately, Sean was strong enough to beat the hooligans and defeat Lowich. Even so, Sean didn't kill him!"

"Then Sean and I went to the Hunt family house with Shirley and Mr. Hunt. That's what happened! You must believe me, Dad. I didn't lie!"

Lisha shouted, looking expectantly at Claremento.

Claremento looked scrutinizingly at his eldest daughter, Lisha.

After a while, he looked back at his second daughter, Aria, who was holding Lowich with tears on her face.

Several minutes passed, and he said nothing.

What could he say?

How was he going to speak?

One was his eldest daughter, and the other was his second daughter. Both daughters said that the other had sent people to assassinate them. The whole thing was a mess!

One of them must have told a lie to frame the other up.

However, was it his eldest daughter, Lisha, who told a lie to frame Aria?

Or was it his second daughter, Aria, who told a lie to frame Lisha?

Who should he trust?

As a father, should he believe in his eldest daughter, Lisha, or his second daughter, Aria?

No father in the world facing this situation would be able to make a decision. Not even the head of the city!

Claremento let out a long exhale and sat down in a chair. He regretted it now.

Why did he have children?

He even had two.

He was not a king or emperor. He was only the mayor of a city and had no imperial throne to pass to them.

Did they have to fight over this?

Besides, did they have to fight to the death?

Was it necessary?

"Lisha, why didn't you tell me about this when you returned?" Claremento took a deep breath and asked slowly.

Without hesitation, Lisha immediately replied, "I didn't want to make a scene. I think Aria made this decision in a moment of confusion. Or Lowich made this decision on his own. So I thought it best to act like I don't know anything and see what happens before figuring out what to do."

Chapter 1752

Hearing that, Claremento's eyes finally lit up.

Lisha was indeed the older daughter. At least, she was a little more sensible than Aria. She was aware that she could not be impulsive and reckless. However, it was based on the fact that she was telling the truth.

As Claremento thought about it, Aria screamed, "Lisha, you're making things up! You're lying! You're guilty, so you were scared to speak!"

"I'm not guilty! I'm not the one who did something bad. Why should I feel guilty?" Lisha said immediately.

"Do you have proof? Do you have proof that I told Lowich to kill you and Sean?" Aria asked immediately.

After thinking about it, Lisha said, "The area where the hooligans gave us trouble last night is right at the end of the food street. It should have surveillance monitors. Besides, Grandpa Timaeus and Shirley are my and Sean's witnesses."

Aria scoffed upon hearing Lisha's remark.

"Do you think I haven't looked for surveillance footage of that area? Lisha, the surveillance cameras there are already broken. You knew that, so you deliberately chose that spot to attack Lowich and me!"

"Besides, Timaeus and Shirley are so close to you that they would lie and perjure themselves for you! Their remarks can't be used as proof!"

Aria's retort rendered Lisha speechless with fury. In this way, she had no proof!

Aria continued saying angrily, "But I have proof. I have enough proof. Just wait and see if you don't believe me!"

With that said, Aria turned to look at the captain of the personal guards at the door and commanded loudly, "Go to the entrance of the mayor's residence and fetch Young Master Rapido!"

"Yes!"

Rapido?

What does this have to do with Rapido?

Lisha was confused, and Sean's face turned grim.

Aria confidently asked the captain of the personal guards to invite Rapido in. It was likely that she had already bribed him!

Otherwise, how could she be so confident?

Soon, Rapido entered.

As soon as the man with a big belly came in and saw Lisha, he said in shock, "Lisha, how can you do such a thing? I can't believe it!"

"What did I do?" Lisha snapped.

Rapido immediately turned to look away from Lisha and Sean and looked at Mayor Claremento.

"Uncle, I attended the auction at Harvey Tower yesterday and happened to be a little hungry after it ended. So I went to the food street to get something to eat. I didn't expect to see Lisha asking Mr. Lennon to attack Ms. Aria at the end of the food street!"

"Mr. Lennon is strong. His weapon is powerful too. A group of young people tried to help protect Ms. Aria, but he defeated and wounded them. Watching Mr. Lennon about to kill, Lowich stepped in and took the sword slash for Ms. Aria!"

"But even so, Mr. Lennon wouldn't stop his crime! Ms. Lisha disappointed me. She still insisted on Sean killing Ms. Aria! I was so disappointed at that time.

Ms. Lisha has always been the perfect goddess to me. But I didn't expect the goddess I thought of to be so vicious!"

Chapter 1753

DEV

"Fortunately, Timaeus and Shirley appeared. Realizing she was exposed, Ms. Lisha immediately ordered Sean to threaten Timaeus and Shirley and followed them to the Hunt family house. I don't know what they did at the Hunt family house, but I think they must have threatened Timaeus and Shirley into keeping what happened last night a secret."

Rapido stopped speaking after this.

Lisha was already trembling with anger, her eyes filled with tears.

Rapido perjured himself for her sister, Aria!

The fat b*stard had gone too far!

She had thought the fat b*stard was a good man, even though he was fat and ugly!

Aria slowly got up, pointed to Lisha, and yelled, "Listen! Listen! Even Master Rapido, who has always admired you as the woman of his dreams, has testified on my behalf! What do you have to say now? Rapido has always admired you. I can't bribe him, can I?"

"You bribed him!" Lisha shouted, his voice thick with tears.

Rapido immediately raised his right hand and said with great force, "I swear! received nothing from Ms. Lisha! She hasn't given me a penny or anything!"

Then Rapido pointed at Sean and said, "Uncle, Sean stabbed Lowich with the Guardian Sword. If you don't believe me, let him compare the Guardian Sword to the wound and see if the Guardian Sword matches the wound!"

Claremento then turned to look at Sean.

Sean said flatly, "You don't need to compare. I did injure Lowich with the Guardian Sword. It will be a match. But that's not the key evidence. Rapido, don't distract us."

"Haha, do I need to distract you? Sean, what have you promised Ms. Lisha? You must have tempted her with great benefits. Otherwise, she would not have done such a thing!" Rapido said through gritted teeth.

Then Rapido looked lovingly at Lisha. "Ms. Lisha, turn around. There's still room for redemption. After all, Lowich isn't dead. And Ms. Aria is alright. Your father will forgive you if you confess and admit everything! You will still be the perfect woman I admired and the goddess of my dreams!"

"Confess?" Lisha finally could not bear it anymore and began shouting.

Just then, Claremento suddenly shouted, "Shut up!"

Then Claremento called in a group of soldiers and ordered, "Take Aria and Lisha to their rooms. Keep an eye on them and don't let them go outside! Bring food and drinks to their rooms. And send someone to follow them even if they were only going to the toilet!"

"Yes!" The soldiers shouted in acknowledgment.

Then Claremento told the captain of the personal guards, "Get a doctor for Lowich... No, send Lowich to the hospital."

"Yes, Sir!" The captain of the personal guards nodded and said.

Soon, only Sean, Rapido, and Claremento were left in the office.

Claremento slowly approached Sean and Rapido and asked, "Which of you should I trust?"

"Me, of course. Uncle, I won't trick you!" Rapido said respectfully.

Sean smiled faintly and suddenly punched a hole in the wall next to Rapido that was 10 centimeters deep!

Rapido crumpled to the ground in fear while Claremento frowned.

"What are you trying to prove?" Claremento asked, glaring at Sean.

NE

Chapter 1754

Sean slowly withdrew his fist and said with a smile, "I wanted to say that Lowich and Ms. Aria would already be dead if Ms. Lisha had commanded me to assassinate them. I have hundreds of ways to kill them in 10 seconds without even leaving a body."

Sean was telling the truth.

Even without the Guardian Sword and he had to fight an armed Lowich empty-handed, Lowich was no match for him. Let alone the gang of hooligans.

Sean was strong enough to kill all of them in minutes!

Besides, Sean had the Guardian Sword in his hand. Therefore, Sean was already modest when he said he could kill Lowich and Aria in 10 seconds. Even so, it terrified Claremento.

Claremento only knew Sean was tough, but he had not seen what Sean was capable of doing with his own eyes. The strength Sean showed was far beyond the range of ordinary people and even what ordinary people could understand.

With such power, Sean could kill Lowich and Aria, and there was probably no one who could stop him.

Claremento even felt that even if the mayor's residence had hundreds of personal guards, Sean was strong enough to kill Lowich and Aria and walk away.

Sean might not be able to kill all the personal guards in the mayor's residence, but there was no way they could stop Sean from leaving.

Looking at the gaping hole in the wall, Claremento had an idea.

"I see... Commander Lennon, you're a suspect no matter what, so you can't leave Crosac until we figure this out. The diplomatic convoy has to stay too. In the meantime, you and your men will remain at the mayor's residence. Don't think I'm putting you under house arrest. It's also a form of protection for you. I will let you go when we figure this out."

"I hope you'll be quick then. I can't wait long..." Sean said slowly.

Then Sean turned around and walked outside.

Once Sean left Mayor Claremento's office, Rapido, who had been sitting on the floor for a long time, stood up and snapped, "Uncle, look! Look at how haughty this guy is! So what if he's the commander-in-chief of Dorodo's city defense army?"

"So what if he's the nine-star commander of Dragon Kingdom? This is not Dragon Kingdom but the City-State Union! It's also not Dorodo but Crosac! Uncle, you should have arrested him and put him in jail..."

Before Rapido could finish speaking, Claremento suddenly turned his head around and snapped at him, "Shut the f*ck up!"

Rapido immediately shut up.

He stared at Claremento in front of him, not expecting to be scolded.

Sean did not show any respect for Claremento earlier. He was just shy of having a fallout with him, so Rapido thought Claremento would appreciate him helping him and belittling Sean.

However, why was Mayor Claremento so angry with him?

Had he made a mistake by buttering him up?

Claremento looked at Rapido coldly for a moment before saying, "Sean is the most powerful man in the City-State Union. Do you think we'd still be alive if I had ordered his arrest? Look at the hole in the wall. Can you do the same? Do you think you or I could handle a punch like that if it landed on you or me?"

Chapter 1755

Claremento's outburst brought Rapido to his senses.

"Get the f*ck out of here! I don't want to see you. Go home and tell your family. If the Kaygene family ever gets involved in my family affairs again, you will no longer exist in Crosac!" Claremento bellowed.

Rapido turned pale and scrambled out of the mayor's residence.

Sean was now back in his room. Shania and Uriah also came over. Zander was here, of course.

Upon entering the room, Shania and Uriah came up to Sean together while Zander was calm and did not ask questions right away.

Looking at the confusion on Shania and Uriah's faces, Sean said, "Ms. Lisha and I were attacked by Aria and her bodyguard Lowich last night. I protected Ms. Lisha and injured Lowich. Unexpectedly, Aria bit us back in front of Mayor Claremento, saying Ms. Lisha ordered me to assassinate her and Lowich. That's how things got to this point."

Shania and Uriah immediately understood what was going on when hearing what Sean had said.

The question was who Mayor Claremento chose to believe.

"Can't you prove your innocence?" Shania asked in resignation.

She had packed up her things but was told she could not leave the mayor's residence, and that could not help making her feel disappointed.

Sean shook his head slightly and said, "There's more than a simple assassination. It includes Lisha and Aria's fight over the succession of the mayor of Crosac, so it's complicated. It's not about who's innocent at the end of the day; It's about who among Lisha and Aria that Mayor Claremento is willing to believe and appoint as his successor."

"So if Claremento is more biased toward Aria, we'll be in trouble?" Even more worried, Shania frowned.

Sean looked from Shania to Uriah with a smile and said, "Don't worry. If Claremento chooses to trust Aria and make her his successor, we'll be fine."

"He'll let us go?" Shania immediately asked.

"No, he would never let us go if he did choose Aria," Sean shook his head.

"Why are you so confident then? It's over. It's over. We're dead meat this time!"

Shania was on the verge of tears.

Sean continued saying, "But I'll protect you. Believe me. Crosac is only a city in the City-State Union, not a country. If it's a big country, I wouldn't resist. But we're facing Crosac. Haha, it's a different story then."

As Sean spoke, intense confidence rose from his body.

Influenced by Sean, Shania finally calmed down, and Uriah felt reassured. It was also at this point that Uriah understood why Zander was willing to follow Sean.

It was lucky for a soldier to have such a powerful and clever Commander.

Shania returned to her room to rest, and Uriah followed her. He must protect Shania.

Once Shania and Uriah left, Sean asked Zander to contact Dorodo.

If they were in ancient times, Sean and his gang would be stuck with no way to contact their men.

However, with the convenience of communication tools such as satellite phones in modern times, many things could be carried out smoothly, and many arrangements could be prepared in advance as long as there was no interference.

Chapter 1756

Receiving Sean's message, Dorodo went into overdrive.

Dorodo was placed on high alert. Though the city gates were not closed, the people entering and leaving were carefully checked to prevent spies from other city-states.

At the same time, Mayor Quentin had contacted closely with the two chiliarches, Gregory and Anthony.

After a brief meeting, Quentin and the chiliarch Anthony continued to stay in Dorodo in case something went wrong.

With a legion of 1,500 city defense soldiers, Gregory headed toward Crosac.

If things turned out to be the worst, Dorodo would go to war with Crosac as fast as possible to catch Crosac by surprise.

Meanwhile, amid the chaos created by the war, Sean and other members of the diplomatic convoy would also have a chance to escape from Crosac and meet up with Dorodo's army.

As soon as Sean and the others left Crosac to meet up with Dorodo's army, they could do whatever they wanted.

Even with Crosac's larger army, and even if Claremento was one of the most famous generals in the City-State Union, annihilating 1,500 men of Dorodo's army and capturing or killing Sean and his gang would have been difficult.

That was what Sean prepared and arranged. Then they would see how things develop.

The next morning.

Sean was playing chess with Zander in the room.

There was suddenly a loud banging on the door, and Zander said with a chuckle, "Commander, don't touch my chess pieces while I open the door."

"Am I like that?" Sean said with a chuckle.

Zander finished speaking and opened the door. He found an unexpected woman, who else could it be but Aria?

"It's you!" Zander's expression changed slightly.

He and Sean had already discussed the possible consequences yesterday, and Aria's appearance proved that things had indeed turned out to be the worst of all possible outcomes that Sean and Zander had anticipated.

Mayor Claremento had placed Aria and Lisha under house arrest, not allowing them to leave their rooms. However, Aria appeared instead of Lisha.

What did that mean?

It meant Mayor Claremento had probably believed Aria and might have decided to make Aria his successor.

Perhaps Lisha was dead.

Perhaps a lifetime of house arrest awaited her.

It was the cruelty of political warfare that the winner would always be covered in glory, no matter what shameless things they had done to win.

The loser would always be in disgrace-no matter what kind of efforts they had made before failing.

"It's me. Is your boss there?" Aria asked haughtily.

Sean had already heard Aria's voice. Without Zander telling him, he walked over and let Aria into the room.

Although he and Aria were enemies, there was no need to be hostile to each other whenever they met.

Only the weak could not control their emotions. Genuine wise people and masters never revealed their expressions.

"Zander, pour Ms. Aria a cup of coffee..." Sean said quietly.

Zander did not hesitate. He replied in acknowledgment and turned around to make Aria some coffee.

Chapter 1757

Aria observed Sean's room and the chess board on the table before she smiled.

"Commander Lennon, you're enjoying yourself. You're under house arrest but in the mood to play chess with your subordinate. Is this considered finding pleasure in misery?"

"Misery?" Sean shook his head and said calmly, "How is this misery? I have food to eat, water to drink, clothes to wear, no need to suffer from the cold, and I don't need to worry about the danger that might come at any moment. How is this misery? Ms. Aria, you seem to have never experienced real suffering to say such a thing."

Aria instantly froze when Sean said this.

She had only spoken casually and did not expect Sean to answer her so seriously.

She opened her mouth and was about to retort when Sean said, "Ms. Aria, Lowich's injuries should be stable now, right? I stabbed him. I know how severe his injuries are, so don't try to lie to me."

Aria suddenly felt the man had taken away her initiative.

No wonder he was the commander-in-chief of Dorodo's city defense army. He was young but experienced and clever.

However, so what?

They were in Crosac. Forget about Dorodo's city defense army. There was nothing he could do, even if he was the king!

Aria thought hatefully and replied, "Yes, Lowich's injuries are stable now. And his wounds have been stitched up. The doctor said he had no injuries to his vital parts or bone damage, so he will recover soon. He should be able to live a normal life in another month."

"So, what did you come to see me about today?" Sean asked straight to the point.

Aria paused again, feeling Sean had messed up her plan.

She had planned to enter the room to meet Sean, taunt him a little, and then lighten the mood a bit, promising him some benefits, and asking him to work for her.

However, she was not the one calling the shots ever since she entered the room!

"Commander Lennon, since you didn't beat around the bush, I won't keep secrets. As you can see, I am now free to move around, but my sister, Lisha is still imprisoned in her room. I think I don't need to tell you what this means. So, what are you going to do? Are you still on my sister's side?" Aria asked with a sneer.

Sean shook his head slowly and said seriously, "I've never been on your or your sister's side. It's just that you've been treating me like the enemy..."

"Reflect on it yourself. From the time we first met, you've been the one who's been looking for trouble with me. You've been the one who's been creating the conflict, haven't you? When did I make the first move?"

Sean's remark instantly left Aria speechless. It was because Sean was speaking the truth.

"I have never intended to help your sister, but you've thought of me and your sister as enemies and pushed us over the edge. You've driven me to her side. Ms. Aria, do you regret it?"

Chapter 1758

Aria regretted it slightly after hearing Sean's words. It was because Sean was telling the truth.

When they first met at Dorodo's downtown mall, Sean could say he had no animosity with Aria.

They had never met before. However, just because she wanted to steal the show from Shania, Aria ordered Lowich to attack and teach Sean a lesson, which resulted in Sean beating Lowich with one move and humiliating her.

As a result, the two had bad blood with each other. No matter what, it was only a small matter and a dispute caused by personal feelings.

Moreover, Aria learned Sean's identity later and that he was not a mere bodyguard but the commander-in- chief of Dorodo's city defense army. He's one of Dorodo's two leaders.

Even so, Aria did not care about Sean. She even was indifferent to him. Then at Mr. Royce's perfume store in Crosac, Aria forced Lowich to fight Sean to overpower Lisha.

This time, Lowich was prepared. He gave his best. Unfortunately, Lowich was still no match for Sean, and Sean beat him until he could not fight back.

Aria was greatly humiliated because of that. She hated Sean from then on. She even secretly vowed revenge.

In retrospect, even Aria found herself too emotional. She only looked for immediate pleasure and acted on impulse, so she failed repeatedly and pushed Sean to be her opponent and to her sister, Lisha's side.

If Aria could go back in time, she would never do such a stupid thing.

However, there were not many what-ifs in this world.

What happened had happened and could not be changed, so Aria decided to continue with her plan.

She coughed, stared at Sean, and asked, "Enough of nonsense. I'm asking whether you would work for me. I can make you my bodyguard!"

With that said, Aria looked at Sean expectantly, waiting for his answer.

Aria knew very well what Sean was capable of. Lowich was already strong in Crosac. He had not had a rival in Crosac in years. However, the strong Lowich was like a helpless child in front of Sean.

Was that not enough to explain how strong Sean was?

Therefore, Aria was eager to have a subordinate like Sean. However, Sean laughed.

"Why are you laughing?" Aria asked exasperatedly.

"Ms. Aria, have you forgotten something? I'm the commander-in-chief of Dorodo's city defense army after all. How can I possibly be your bodyguard? When this matter between you and Lisha is settled, I will return to Dorodo with the diplomatic convoy. It's impossible even if I want to be your bodyguard."

Sean's words made Aria furious at being laughed at. However, she took a deep breath.

Instead of losing her temper, she asked, "Fine, let me put it another way. Will you join me? If you agree, I promise I will never go against you, and I will be friendly to Dorodo after I become the mayor of Crosac!"

Aria exclaimed, beaming a confident smile once she finished speaking.

Chapter 1759

She did not think Sean would say no. It was because Sean came to Crosac with the diplomatic convoy to talk, communicate, and make a connection between the two cities so that Dorodo and Crosac would thrive in peace.

There was no way he would resist when she offered him such a benefit!

Unexpectedly, Sean slowly shook his head.

"Are you rejecting me? Think it through. You only get one chance at such generous terms!" Aria snapped, pounding the table.

She was livid now. As the second heiress of Crosac, she was looked after and fawned upon wherever she went. No one dared to upset her.

However, the man before her humiliated her repeatedly. Besides, she had stooped to cozy up to him, yet he still rejected her and was so ungrateful.

How dare he!

Aria felt her anger raging inside her.

Sean slowly replied, "Your offer is excellent, but I can't believe it. You're too emotional, impulsive, arrogant, proud, vain, and callous. I can't cooperate with someone like you. I trust Ms. Lisha more than I trust you..."

"How dare you mention her..." Aria sprang to her feet with what seemed like flames burning in her eyes.

"Sean, you'll regret it. You turned me down. Sooner or later, you'll regret it! I'll make you kneel and lick my shoes when the time comes!" Aria spoke harshly and turned around to walk outside.

It was then that Zander finally returned with the coffee.

"It seems I made the coffee for nothing.." Zander seemed to be complaining, but his tone was lighthearted.

He was so happy to see a woman with her eyes above the top of her head, Aria, humiliated by his commander.

"How is it for nothing? We can drink it ourselves." Sean laughed before picking up the coffee that Zander had put on the table.

The mayor's residence...

The mayor's office.

Claremento's face was grim, and the captain of the personal guards was briefing him in front of his desk.

"Sir, Ms. Aria went to Commander Lennon's room ten minutes ago. She stayed there for five minutes before storming out."

Hearing the report from the captain of the personal guards, Mayor Claremento nodded slowly.

"Aria is trying to talk Sean into taking her side. It seems she also realizes what he represents, what he's worth, and what he's capable of doing..."

"She's finally not so stupid, but what she's done in the past has made it impossible for her and Sean to work together. Her reaching out to Sean now will only make their relationship more difficult. Looking at it this way, she seems more stupid than before... Oh..."

Mayor Claremento let out a long sigh as he reached the end of his speech.

He was shock knowing what Aria did. He could see that Aria was too bold and stupid.

The captain of the personal guards asked in confusion, "Sir, why do you give Ms. Aria freedom but continue to put Ms. Lisha under house arrest? Do you believe Ms. Aria?"

Chapter 1760

The captain of the personal guards was on Lisha's side. Otherwise, he would not have dared to ask such a question.

"Do you disagree with my decision?" Claremento asked coldly.

"No!" The captain of the personal guards quickly lowered his head to answer and dropped to one knee.

Claremento waved his hand to signal the captain of the personal guards to stand up and slowly said, "Aria and Lisha are both my daughters. I value both equally. I won't blindly trust any of them until we figure this out. But I won't randomly suspect them either."

"Well..." The captain of the personal guards stood up and looked at Claremento in confusion.

"This case is complicated. We have witnesses, but they may have been bribed, so we can't believe them. Besides witnesses, there is no other evidence. We can't continue the investigation if we don't get a breakthrough."

"Therefore, either Lisha or Aria must be released to walk outside to think they have been trusted, cleared their name, and won this fight. Only by doing this can a clue be revealed and give this case a breakthrough."

"I gave Aria freedom instead of Lisha because Aria is cunning and tricky. If she comes out, she will be restless and run everywhere. But it's difficult to say if it's Lisha. Except for traveling to Dragon Kingdom in the past, Lisha stays indoors in the mayor's residence for the rest of the time. What difference does it make if she is given freedom or not?"

Claremento's explanation made the captain of the personal guards understand.

The captain of the personal guards was glad to know Lisha was not kept under house arrest because of suspicion or defeat!

"Leave. Remember to report Aria's every move to me, but don't let her find out she's under surveillance," Claremento said calmly.

"Yes!" The captain of the personal guards beamed as he nodded heavily.

Noon.

Lisha was playing with her phone in her room.

On the phone screen was a travel video, from which the introduction in English and the scenery displayed on the phone screen showed that this was a tourist attraction somewhere in Dragon Kingdom.

Watching the scenery behind the tourist attraction, made her remember the extraordinary journey he had experienced. She also remembered the troubles on the flight back with Sean.

"I wish I could go... You're never going there!" A melodious voice came, and a woman pushed the door open and came in.

The woman was none other than Aria!

Aria did not close the door after stepping in. She walked straight to Lisha's bed.

In the past, Lisha would have gotten out of bed and given Aria plenty of respect. However, she only glanced at Aria and continued looking at her phone to watch the travel video.

Aria was furious when she saw that Lisha was still lying on the bed and refusing to look at her.

"Lisha, I'm free. I can go wherever I want, but you're still locked up here. Do you know why? Haha, because Dad believes me, not you!"
