

Hammer God 597

Chapter 597 Law of Yin-Wind

Kyle looked at his Karmic Luck with shock.

The negative Karmic Luck!

It was gone!

It was all gone!

Kyle focused on the Karmic Lines, and he saw a couple more.

He couldn't see all of them. After all, he was connected to, technically, every single living being in existence.

He could only see Karmic Lines with sufficient intensity.

There were several Karmic Lines that were a bright green.

They all pointed in different directions, but Kyle wasn't surprised by that.

Karmic Lines led to the people one was connected to, but they didn't follow normal spatial Laws.

For example, the Karmic Lines connecting him to his teammates led in two completely different directions, even though both of them were on the same planet.

The Karmic Lines vanished into random pockets of space and appeared on their targets again.

Because of that, it was impossible to follow Karmic Lines to find someone one was connected to.

Although maybe it wasn't completely impossible.

Theoretically, it was possible to follow them, but one had to understand extremely powerful Laws related to Space, Time, Karma, and Gravity.

Probably only people in the highest Realms could actually use Karmic Lines to find people.

However, it was also important to note that Karmic Lines changed when perceptions changed.

If Kyle saw Warp Space, he would be able to see a clear Karmic Line going from his body to Warp Space's body.

But if he couldn't sense her, the Karmic Line would just point in random directions.

Kyle closed his eyes and tried to sense something.

'Yep, the headache is gone, and I also don't feel like I'm about to run into a calamity anymore.'

'It feels... calming.'

'I don't feel like I have to constantly look over my shoulder and be careful.'

Kyle focused on his Karmic Luck again, and he realized that he even had a bit of positive Karmic Luck.

It was not enough to give him a Karmic Blessing, but he also didn't have a Karmic Curse.

He was just normal.

Finally!

Kyle thought back to all the things Magic Lady had forced him to do.

His Karmic Luck had taken such an insanely strong hit.

And now, all the damage he had done was repaired!

At least, according to the rules of Karmic Luck.

Existence had deemed that Kyle had redeemed himself.

As Kyle thought more about this, one of his eyebrows rose.

'That's actually crazy. Killing 500 people with a True Sin Aura and helping a couple of Transcendents and Primals actually equals killing millions of people.'

'That... doesn't seem equal.'

No matter how much Kyle thought about it, helping just a couple of Seekers shouldn't have excused his literal genocide.

He had handed over the Tertiary World to the Cult of Final Fate.

The world had literally been destroyed.

An entire world...

Several societies...

All gone.

And yet, the world said that his good deeds equaled his bad deeds.

'What a weird system,' Kyle thought. 'Are powerful people that much more important than normal people?'

'If someone killed a million people on Earth but improved the lives of a thousand millionaires, people would most likely not say that this person has redeemed themselves.'

Kyle smirked. 'But who cares? So what if this weighting system is all fucked? It's to my advantage!'

'I like this system!'

After looking at his Karmic Luck, Kyle pulled out his emblem.

'Swamp Dragon and Warp Space are still on the beast planet. The emblem hasn't shone in a long time, which means they are also busy comprehending Laws.'

Kyle stretched a bit.

'Time to hit the books again. Gotta study to make my hammer hit harder!'

The next moment, he went back into the stream of Yin-Wind.

'I'm just missing the last part. The Fragment of Yin-Wind's Weight.'

Once again, Kyle focused on the Yin-Wind around him.

Since this was the Base Fragment, it was basically as complex as all the Auxiliary Fragments combined.

It would take a while.

And yet, it actually didn't feel so hard.

Most of the workings of Yin-Wind almost felt obvious.

Instead of having to think really hard about every single equation, Kyle instinctively knew the answer.

Sadly, he still had to know how to simplify and solve the equation, but that step was much easier when he already knew the result.

He just had to get there somehow.

Time passed.

Kyle kept comprehending.

More time passed.

Kyle wasn't disturbed.

Things actually went really well!

Kyle was progressing smoothly and quickly, and finally...

'Got it!' he thought with a smirk. 'Wasn't even that hard! I just had to do a lot of math!'

Back when Kyle had comprehended Yin-Metal, he had worked pretty hard.

In fact, comprehending Yin-Metal had taken him an entire century.

Comprehending Yin-Fire had taken him more than a century, but that was because he hadn't really focused on it. He had been more focused on his Body Fragments. Otherwise, he would have comprehended Yin-Fire faster than Yin-Metal.

And now, after three entire True Battles and after gaining so much Karmic Luck, Kyle had it even easier.

Kyle gathered all the insights of the different Fragments of Yin-Wind.

They all gathered into one cohesive picture, and Kyle finalized his framework.

The world reacted, and a stream of knowledge entered Kyle's mind.

BOOOOOM!

Kyle comprehended the Pure Level Two Law of Yin-Wind!

'And done!' Kyle thought with a smile. 'All the necessary Laws have been gathered. I've got all the ingredients I need.'

'Now, I only need to make something useful out of them!'

Kyle left the stream of Yin-Wind and went to a random spot on the planet.

He really didn't want to be disturbed by anyone else.

'Although that's not really my choice. According to the emblem, we have been in the Star Seeking for only 48 years. Swamp Dragon and Warp Space have a lot to comprehend, but they're focusing on Pure Laws for now.'

'They still need some time to finish their Pure Laws, but not much more.'

'After probably around 50 to 100 years, they probably want to fight a bit more.'

'Meanwhile...'

Kyle thought about the four Level Two Laws he needed to fuse.

'That will take a loooong time.'

His plan was clear.

He needed to extract the Essences of Yin-Wind, Yin-Fire, and Yin-Metal.

That wasn't easy.

Then, he needed to fuse the Essences, which would be the most time-consuming part.

And finally, he needed to Infuse his Law of Body with the Fused Essence.

This part would make or break it.

Essence Infusion didn't need a lot of planning and work, comparatively speaking.

But it was insanely complex.

Kyle might be able to comprehend it in 20 years...

Or he might never.
