

Hammer God 606

Chapter 606 Moons

'I need to take a break from my Complex Laws and look at better materials. It's great that I get stronger, but if my weapon can't keep up, it barely makes a difference.'

'It's just going to suck since I have to comprehend two new Fragments.'

Why two?

Wouldn't it be enough to comprehend the Advanced Transcendent Materials? After all, they would be boosted to the level of Unique Transcendent Materials.

Sadly, there was a problem.

A Law could only carry one additional Fragment from a higher level.

Kyle's Law of Metal comprised all Mortal Metal Fragments, and it could only incorporate the Standard Transcendent Metal Fragment.

The Advanced Transcendent Metal Fragment was too much.

Comprehending a Metal Composition Fragment allowed one to create the perfect material that was one level higher.

It was Kyle's Law of Metal that improved it by an additional level.

Since the Standard Transcendent Metal Fragment would only allow him to create the perfect Fulfilled Transcendent Materials, his weapon's durability would stay the same.

That was why he also needed the Fulfilled Transcendent Metal Fragment.

Kyle looked at the chunk of ore in front of him.

'This thing didn't break while my hammer broke. This means this is, at least, a Unique Transcendent Material. Well, technically, Unique Transcendent Materials don't exist. They're just called Low Primal Materials since Unique Transcendents are so rare.'

In general, there were three ranks of materials per Realm.

For Transcendents, it was Standard, Advanced, and Fulfilled Transcendent Materials.

For Primals, it was Low, Medium, and High Primal Materials.

Fulfilled Transcendents could fight and even kill newer Primals, but that was not because of their overwhelming physical power. It was because of their varied and useful Complex Laws.

Kyle could kill a Level Four Primal Beast, but its physical power was still greater than his, which meant it could also break his weapon.

Of course, a Level Four Primal Beast needed to unleash an incredibly powerful attack to destroy his hammer.

A Level Five Primal Beast just needed to hit his hammer with a medium attack to break it, while a Level Six Primal Beast, like the spider, just needed to touch it with a bit of force.

'Well, there's no way around it. I gotta improve my hammer.'

Kyle created a new hammer before looking at some of the materials he had already gathered.

He only needed a couple of hours to comprehend a material.

After all, he was comprehending something that was below his level.

Kyle was regularly dealing with Level Two Laws and Level 2.5 Complex Laws.

Comprehending a couple of Fragments of the Medium Law of Metal wasn't difficult.

After some days, Kyle finished comprehending all the materials he had gathered.

When he was done, he dug through the planet at different depths, searching for materials.

The planet was absolutely filled with them.

An ore-filled planet was rare in the Supreme World.

Everyone wanted and needed ore, and almost every planet already had an owner.

Naturally, the owner of said planet would start digging out the metals to sell them.

But this was the Star Seeking. These planets were left unexploited for the participants.

As Kyle searched through the planet, he found all kinds of materials.

There were a bunch of Mortal Materials, but most of the Materials were of a higher rank.

Surprisingly, over half of the materials were ones Kyle couldn't harvest.

With some tricks, Kyle could just barely gather Low Primal Rank Materials, but he was helpless in front of Medium Primal Rank Materials.

Kyle dug all throughout the planet for several days, fighting the occasional beast.

Luckily, this planet was not one of those extremely deadly planets with a beast in the Sixth Realm.

The spider had already been the overlord of a huge territory.

After gathering the materials, Kyle spent a couple of weeks comprehending them.

Then, he went out to search again.

Sadly, the materials he found were either Mortal Materials, Materials that were too strong, or Materials he already knew.

'Well, gotta change location,' he thought.

Kyle flew into space.

For now, he decided to keep his Infused Yin-Fire Law active.

The Infused Yin-Metal Law increased his physical power too much.

With the Infuse Yin-Fire Law, Kyle could still fight with his weapon since his additional power came from the freezing and compressing forces of his Yin-Fire.

Additionally, the Infused Yin-Fire Law also substantially increased Kyle's defense, while the other one went all-in on offense and versatility.

The first planet Kyle went to was the one with the Yin-Wind.

As he searched through it, he found a bunch of new materials.

Two weeks later, he left that planet as well.

For some time, he flew through space, looking at different planets.

There was a huge planet filled with fire, similar to the one on which he had killed the 500 Initiates. He landed on that one and searched through it.

There were some new Materials, but not many.

After looking around some more planets, Kyle finally found a planet that looked promising.

It was completely lifeless and grey.

There was no water, atmosphere, or ground.

The entire thing was just made of metal!

'Bro, is this a Metal Moon?' Kyle thought in shock.

Metal Moons were a certain kind of Wild Planet, but they were also not really a Wild Planet.

While the main difference between a moon and a planet in Earth's universe was its size and what it orbited, that was not true for the Supreme World.

Here, the difference between a Moon and a Planet was its Core.

A Planet had a Gravity Core, which gave it a gravitational field.

Meanwhile, a Moon had a different kind of Core.

As Kyle approached the big ball of metal, his suspicions were confirmed.

'There's no gravity! This actually is a Metal Moon!'

Moons had Cores that were not Gravity Cores.

A Metal Moon, for example, had a Metal Core.

The Metal Core of a Metal Moon didn't have a gravitational field. Instead, it was like an Ether Essence of the Tertiary World, but for metal.

Instead of creating Ether Gems and Crystals, a Metal Core just created different kinds of metals around it.

'Lucky!' Kyle thought as he shot towards the Metal Moon.
