

Hammer God 621

Chapter 621 Specific Level

Kyle's body started to change.

His muscles became a bit thinner, but not by much.

Instead of a gym-bro, Kyle now looked like a fighter. There was no more bulk. There were only lean but well-defined muscles.

His skin became a bit whiter, but not by much. He just had the basement monitor tan.

His hair remained black, but it also received a metallic sheen.

At the same time, a silverish aura started to surround him, but it wasn't overpowering. It just seemed a bit bright and metallic.

As Kyle looked at his new body, he blinked a couple of times.

When he wore his long shirt and long pants, he didn't seem muscular at all.

He looked like someone who never left their room, except that his aura gave him a bit of a holy feel, which very much did not fit him.

'Bro, I look like a holy gamer or something!' he thought.

The Yin-Fire's cold and pristine aura had combined with the metallic aura of the Yin-Metal. Luckily, the dirty and heavy aura of the Yin-Wind had countered the two auras somewhat. Otherwise, Kyle would have looked like some kind of biblical drawing with a gigantic halo of light around him.

The lean Yin-Metal Body had been averaged out by the chunky Yin-Wind Body. The Yin-Fire Body had pushed Kyle a bit more towards the thinner side, but not by much. He had already been quite bulky before.

The blacks and greys of the Yin-Metal and Yin-Wind body had overpowered the azure of the Yin-Fire body. Additionally, the base color of Kyle's hair was already black, which was why it remained black.

Kyle lightly moved his hand, and he clenched it into a fist.

BOOOM!

The ground around him shook as the shockwave of his clenched fist traveled throughout the underground.

Kyle's physical power was off the charts.

His other bodies had increased his physical power to the level of a Level 2.5 Law.

One had to remember that his other bodies had only combined two Level Two Laws.

His new one combined four!

Fusing three Level Two Laws was already enough to create a Complex Level Three Law.

By fusing four, Kyle had managed to push the power of his Complex Law above the level of a Level Three Law.

It was not completely on the level of an average Level 3.5 Complex Law, but it was not far off.

Technically, Complex Laws rarely fit into the standard categories.

For example, the Law of Body was a slight bit stronger than the Law of Yin-Fire.

The levels of Pure Laws were relatively accurate, but there were still some differences. If one wanted to be precise, the Law of Yin-Fire would be a Level 1.996 Law, while the Law of Yin-Wind would be a Level 2.003 Law.

If one were pedantic, one could say that the Law of Yin-Wind was stronger, but that wasn't the truth in practice.

Their power didn't even differ by a single percent.

Because of that, both of them were just treated as Level Two laws.

The Law of Body was technically a Level 2.095 Law. This was a difference of about 5% in power, and that was enough to say that the Law of Body was stronger than the Law of Yin-Fire.

As long as a Complex Law managed to get past the level of a Level 2.9 Law, one would become a Unique Transcendent.

Technically, Kyle's half-baked Law had already reached the level before it was condensed, but exactly that was the problem. It hadn't been condensed.

Only fully condensed Laws could help one advance.

Swamp Dragon's new Complex Law was on the level of a Level 3.02 Law, allowing him to become a Unique Transcendent.

If he had only used Yin-Biology, Yin-Earth, and his Law of Body, he would have gotten a Level 2.91 Law, which would have been the bare minimum.

However, he had also included the Level One Pure Law of Water, which had pushed him a bit more forward.

For Unique Transcendents, one could say that Swamp Dragon was in the top 30%, just based on the level of his Law.

Yet, Kyle had included four Level Two laws.

This had pushed the level of his Law to 3.41.

Compared to a normal Unique Transcendent, Kyle's Law was indeed half a level higher. According to the classification, his Law would just barely count as a Level 3.5 Law, but it only just made it.

It was one of the weakest Complex Level 3.5 Laws.

But it WAS a Level 3.5 Law.

And this had pushed his physical power to incredible heights.

Just his physical power alone made Kyle stronger than when he used one of his other bodies and his Meteor Energy.

Kyle experimented with his physical power a bit.

BANG!

He ran forward, and his surroundings exploded.

Within moments, he reached speeds of over 100 kilometers per second.

But wait, hadn't Kyle been this fast with his Law of Meteor?

Yes, but one had to remember where Kyle was.

It was the Beast Planet, and his Law of Meteor had only allowed him to reach speeds of about 20 kps. Together with one of his old bodies, he had been able to reach speeds of up to 50 to 60 kps.

At this moment, just with his physical power, Kyle had managed to reach this level of speed. Kyle pulled out his hammer and ran towards a large chunk of ore.

As he struck it, his surroundings exploded...

Just like his hammer.

'Dude, I literally just strengthened it!' he thought with a mix of annoyance and excitement. After all, the fact that he could destroy his hammer this easily again showed how much his physical power had grown.

'And that's not even including my other abilities. My Complex Law has improved my body in so many ways.'

'If I go all out and use absolutely everything, there's even a possibility that I will also break my upgraded hammer.'

'The next Fragment is the Fragment of Low Primal Materials, which would give me an amazing Medium Primal Material.'

'If I could even break that, it would mean that my attacking power is average for a Late Primal.'

'As a Transcendent, I might reach the attacking power of a Fart (Late Primal).'

'That's crazy. ʘ'
