"It's been a while, Mr. Pagan! You're still as lively as ever!"

The woman in a jacket stood up with a rippling smile after seeing Wes and the others show up.

That said, her expression seemed quite distant.

Harvey carefully sized her up, and then realized she was a killer pretty high up on the leaderboard.

If not, her murderous intent wouldn't be that apparent.

Wes's expression changed instantly after seeing the woman's face.

"Ah! Phantom !" he said after chuckling coldly.

"I was wondering who dared to steal my family's goods before coming to negotiate with me..."

"I finally understand after seeing your face here."

Wes then sat casually on a couch.

"That said, I'm afraid you'll have to repay me for this, no matter who's supporting you behind the scenes."

"Repay you?"

Phantom smiled gently.

"What kind of statement would you prefer?"

"Do you want my life? Or do you want my money instead?"

"I can tell you the people in charge of moving your antiques are all dead."

"The antiques are all with me as well."

"That said, those people probably don't mean much to you..."

“Unlike the goods, am I right?”

“After all, a few of them even came from your family’s ancestors!”

“You finally managed to find them, too...”

“Who knew someone would be bold enough to steal them from you?”

“Say, would you be willing to forgive me for my recklessness if I return those goods to you in one piece? Maybe we’ll have a chance to work together in the future.”

Phantom took a step forward and narrowed her eyes.

“If you give me a chance, I guarantee you that our collaboration will be second to none.”

Lachlan clicked his tongue, his eyes a disdainful glare.

He thought he’d be able to show off his prowess...

Who knew that the seemingly impressive killer would give in as soon as she saw Wes’s face?

‘She’s just a small fry, after all!’

Harvey frowned.

Phantom clearly had ulterior motives for getting in Wes’s good graces.

He’d suffer huge losses if he got tricked by such a front.

Wes squinted, a profound look on his face.

“You killed my men, you stole my goods, and then came out here for a negotiation...” he said as he looked at Phantom.

“What do you want?”

“Revenge? Or blackmail?”

Wes clapped.

His family bodyguards quickly spread out.

The people behind Phantom took a step forward at the same time. Please support us [daotranslate.com]

Their heads were raised up high. Their hands were filled with calluses; it was clear they were all professionals.

Even after seeing Wes's bodyguards armed with firearms, these people didn't show a hint of fear.

The air was completely tense. A fight was about to break out at any moment...

Phantom chuckled at that.

"It's useless talking more if things get sour. It's inappropriate to start a fight without having a nice little chat now, isn't it?"

"Besides, there's no such thing as eternal enemies -only eternal benefits."

"I believe that when you see my sincerity, you'll understand that I didn't come here to cause you trouble. I'm here to bring you money."

Phantom then made a gesture.

A few of her subordinates set a box in front of Wes.

The Pagan family glared coldly at them. Someone stepped forward to check the contents inside the box.

“They’re the stolen antiques, Mr. Pagan.”

Wes showed an odd expression, then signaled his subordinates to move the box.

“Is this what you call sincerity? Giving back the things that you stole?” Wes said while squinting at Phantom.

“Of course not. This is just the appetizer.”

Phantom smiled faintly, and snapped her fingers.

Another box was sent over soon after.

She got her subordinates to open the box without wasting time.

A pagoda was revealed inside.

It had a simple yet ancient design, looking like it had gone through the age of time.

When Harvey saw the item, he knew it was something quite sought after.

“The Triple-Layered Pagoda?!”

Wes’s eyes twitched.

“How did you get this...?”

Wes wasn’t just the leader of the Pagan family; his skills in appraising antiques were very well- known in the city as well.

A simple glance was enough to ensure that the item in front of him was real, and that it was extremely invaluable.

Phantom smiled.

“If you like it, then consider this a meeting gift.”

“This should be enough to compensate for your losses, right?”

Lachlan’s prideful face was filled with disdain after listening to Phantom’s words.

In his mind, people who dared to go against the Pagan family were at least capable people...

However, he didn't think that about Phantom. just read on [daotranslate.com to support us]

Not only did she return everything that was stolen back to the family, but she even handed an extremely rare treasure without hesitation.

Lachlan believed that she had completely let her title down at this point.

'We'll probably be fine tonight...'

He brought two of his juniors so he could show off in front of them, but there was just no opportunity to do that.

Lachlan looked as if he was a professional who was too powerful to demonstrate his skills.

"Enough, Phantom. I know you all too well at this point."

Wes narrowed his eyes.

"This bait might be useful to others, but not me."

"Just cut to the chase."

"Tell me what you want."

"As expected from the Pagan family! I'm impressed!"

Phantom smiled, looking at him with a beautiful gaze.

"Since you're so straightforward, I'll be frank then."

"Mr. Faceless wants to return to Golden Sands.

Are you willing to give him another chance?"

“Faceless?”

Wes’s expression didn’t change all that much, but he spoke in a cold tone.

“I thought the Skeleton Gang’s appearance was just a coincidence...”

“Looks like he’s trying to come back after all.”

“Why here, of all places? Why not show off somewhere else?”

“Judging from his background, the Hermit Families want nothing to do with him at this point.”

“Why is he coming back for more trouble?”

Wes sighed.

Phantom smiled faintly..

“Mr. Faceless said that he doesn’t hate Golden Sands, nor does he resent anyone here.”

“He came back not because he wanted to, but because he needed to.”

“As long as everyone is willing to give him what he wants, he swears he’ll never set foot here ever again.”

“He’ll give everything just to have that.”

“For example, he’ll turn the Pagan family into the head of the Hermit Families.”

Phantom patted on her chest as a guarantee.

Harvey looked at her curiously.

It seemed like Faceless – or rather, Evermore was sure that the six Hermit Families had the secrets of everlasting life.

If not, the organization wouldn't do everything in its power to get it.

Phantom probably didn't know their operation against Kellan had already failed.

If not, she wouldn't be acting this calmly.

"Do you think I'm an idiot?"

Wes coldly chuckled.

"Do you think I don't know what Faceless is like?"

"Who in the right mind would even believe him?"

"He'll kill me first if I accept his offer."

"Besides, he should know that the secrets of the Hermit Families aren't for anyone else."

"There are no absolutes, Mr. Pagan."

Phantom flashed him a sincere expression.

"Mr. Faceless has been cultivating his mind in India, reading scriptures every single day and night. His early-age ambition has been long gone at this point."

"He's not seeking the way of everlasting life anymore; he's only here to fulfill the wish he had since the very beginning."

"No need to worry, Mr. Pagan. Just treat this as kindness and let him take a look at whatever it is that you have. He'll finally be released from his burden after that!"

"Wouldn't you agree to this, Mr. Pagan?"

Lachlan's disdain grew more apparent after seeing Phantom begging like this.

In his eyes, Phantom was just useless filth.

Obviously, the one backing her was no different.

'Just take whatever you want! What can begging even achieve?'

“And you believe everything Faceless said?”

Wes’s expression was cold.

“Do you think he just wants to see it?”

“He’ll probably go crazy at the mere sight of it.”

“Besides, if he’s that sincere about it, I’ll let it slide...”

“But do you really think he can even set foot here?”

“Do you think the Gibson family and the Bolton family will just let him do that?”

Wes clicked his tongue.

“Tell him to forget about this.”

“If he pulls this stunt, he won’t even have a full body to die in.”

“Mr. Pagan...” Phantom said with a pleading look.

“Enough of this nonsense!”

Wes cut Phantom off and stood up.

“I’m giving you three days to bring me the person who hurt my family.”

“If you don’t, don’t blame me for what happens next.”

“You should know that the Pagan family isn’t an easy target for you to push around.”

Phantom flashed him a horrible look.

"I understand," she replied quietly.

"Good."

Wes crossed his arms.

"Tell Faceless to stop thinking about these useless things."

"If not, this city will turn into his grave."

"After all, Golden Sands belongs to the Hermit Families. Not Evermore."

"I'll tell him that."

Phantom's eyes twitched frantically as she gripped her fist furiously, desperately trying to hold her anger back.

"Even though the deal isn't made, Mr. Pagan..."

she said after she slowly bowed.

"Mr. Faceless already told me this."

"Kindness is a big part of business!"

"He'd like you to take this."

"This is an ancient relic Country H lost in India."

"The relic is now returned to its rightful people."

Lachlan couldn't even bat an eye at the sincere look on Phantom's face.

Wes frowned.

He hesitated for a moment; he wasn't in a rush to leave.

Wes had seen all sorts of treasures his entire life.

He wasn't about to be lured in by something like this.

That said, Phantom did say that this was a relic from Country H that got lost.

It would be extremely beneficial for the country to retrieve something like this.

Wes didn't care for such a thing...

But for the history of the country, this was an extremely invaluable item.

After being silent for a moment, Wes let out a sigh.

"Fine. I'll take it."

"That said, I don't like owing people favors."

"Arlet, give them a check of a hundred and fifty million dollars. Consider this a transaction."

Arlet nodded, then took a step forward.

"Of course."

"Wait!"

Right as Arlet took out a check, Harvey finally spoke up after a long while of silence.

"We can't have this."

'What?'

Arlet and Wes froze.

They didn't understand why Harvey would suddenly speak up.

Phantom's expression changed slightly. She looked at Harvey.

"This is your country's treasure, kid."

"Mr. Pagan clearly likes it too. Why won't you take it?"

Lachlan chuckled coldly after seeing Harvey try to steal the limelight.

"Stop screwing around!"

"You're just a geomancy expert! You know nothing here!"

In his eyes, the price of the relic was worth no more than a hundred and fifty million dollars.

He'd surely get a cut out of the operation if Wes benefited from it too.

Lachlan was sure Harvey was just stopping him from earning money!

Harvey calmly stepped forward, then smashed the first layer of the pagoda.

"This is a listening device. It doesn't need any electricity to run and can keep itself powered for at least ten years. It has a radius of at least a hundred and sixty feet."

"The Pagan family won't have any secrets anymore if this gets brought back."

Crack!

Harvey crushed the second layer of the pagoda.

"This is a rock with a psychedelic scent. It's fine to smell this for a short period of time, but exposure to long periods of time will lead to a mental disorder. Even if death doesn't come soon after, it would lead to loss of control of one's entire body."

Crack!

Harvey crushed the third layer of the pagoda.

"Aside from that, there's also a cursed doll in this layer."

"Mr. Pagan's house will be in turmoil because of this. The entire family would turn to ashes if they're unlucky enough."

“Simply put, the so-called treasure will make the Pagan family cease to exist in just three months”

Everyone was dead silent after hearing Harvey’s words.

They were all filled with nothing but shock.

Arlet and the rest of the Pagan family gasped.

Then, they looked gratefully at him.

They didn’t expect that Phantom would be so heinous just to complete her mission. One wrong step, and the family would’ve collapsed instantly.

Phantom and her subordinates were stunned as they looked at Harvey.

They did all of this just to make sure that Wes died from the Triple-Layered Pagoda.

However, they didn’t expect a random person to be able to foil their entire scheme with a single glance.

More importantly, he was able to point out exactly how they would kill the entire family.

It would be impossible for them not to be shocked.

Safe to say, Wes had brought an extremely skillful person with him.

After a moment of silence, Arlet chuckled coldly.

“How dare you, Phantom?!”

Phantom couldn’t be bothered to talk any longer.

“Go!” she exclaimed coldly.

Naturally, she didn’t want to waste any more time since her plan had been completely exposed.

She and her subordinates wasted no time taking action.

A dozen people in sneaking suits pulled out their weapons and charged forward.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Arlet flung her hand, revealing an exquisite- looking firearm.

She quickly pulled the trigger; three people fell to the ground, paralyzed.

Phantom laughed coldly, and swung her hand forward. Two needles covered in green flew right into the Pagan family bodyguards, making them collapse to the ground.

Blades clashed all over the place.

Blood was constantly being drawn.

The entire place looked like a battlefield; it was a suffocating sight.

There were no screams; only sounds of constant clanging of weapons.

“Get out of here, Grandfather!”

“Keep him safe, Senior!”

Naturally, Phantom and the others were destined to die as long as Wes was kept alive.

Wes stepped back, and looked at Harvey.

“Let’s go, Sir York.”

Harvey nodded, not rushing to take any action.

After all, small fries don’t deserve him to lift even a finger.

That said, he sensed danger once everyone got to the villa entrance.

“Look out!” Harvey exclaimed instinctively.

Boom!

The door was blasted open at the same time.

A monk covered in gold walked right toward the group.

He attacked each and every one of the Pagan family bodyguards, sending them flying with a single punch.

Arlet and the others frowned. They didn't think the enemy would be this prepared, let alone bring a martial arts expert.

The monk pressed on without saying a single word.

A bodyguard pounced right at him with every single step he took.

When he was around thirty feet away from Wes Pagan, half of the family's bodyguards were already killed off.

"Kill them, Skullface! Leave none alive!"

Phantom saw the monk before smiling coldly.

Harvey York squinted at the monk. He was surprised the man before him to be the legendary head of the Skeleton Gang.

'The gang has a relationship this deep with Faceless, huh?

"The gang leader would step up just to kill Wes..."

'Looks like they're working for Evermore after all.'

"What capable people you have with you!

"I devised so many plans just to deal with you, but it looks like I have to resort to brute force!

"I guess there's no point in holding back my strength.

The killing around her did not even faze Phantom as she slowly strode toward Wes with two of her subordinates.

“Mr. Faceless knows you well.

“He said there’s only one way to go against you.

“I couldn’t even make my life just a bit easier!

“That said, you must die here no matter how impressive you are.

“All of this amounts to nothing.

“What a shame. I wasn’t planning to cause uproar in the first place...”

Phantom pulled out a thin, long cigarette and took a huff with a casual look.

Arlet Pagan gloomily took off the safety of her firearm.

“If you even lay a finger on my grandfather, you won’t leave Golden Sands alive! I’ll make sure of it!”

“Is that a threat?

Phantom put on a cold smirk.

“You should consider whether you want a quick and painless death or otherwise!

“After all, it’s been a while since my brothers here have a fair share of good meat!

“I’m sure they’ll do their best to care for a beauty such as yourself!”

The battle immediately got a lot tenser.

One side was filled with nothing but nervousness, while the other was chuckling without pause.

Harvey squinted at the sight before him.

He realized the so-called experts of the sacred martial arts training ground were trembling in their boots.

On the other hand, Wes calmly observed the slaughter in front of him, as if this did not even concern him.

As expected from such an experienced man!

Truly an impressive sight!

Because of Skullface's appearance, Wes and the others were completely forced into a corner.

After seeing all the casualties of the Pagan family, Harvey sighed before showing a frown.

"Stand down. I'll handle this."

"Keep quiet!"

Lachlan Bree fiercely glared at Harvey.

"You're just a geomancy expert! Focus on doing your damn job! What's the point of you showing off right now?!"

His juniors also disdainfully glared at Harvey.

'What can a geomancy expert even do in this situation? He's just going to cause trouble at this point!'

"Don't move, Harvey. Just watch him."

Arlet dragged Harvey back right as he was about to say something.

"He'll have a good chance of winning this..."

"I'll definitely win!"

Lachlan slowly drew his sword with a distant look on his face.

"There'll be no exceptions!"

‘No exceptions?!’

Lachlan Bree’s face was filled with nothing but pride and arrogance.

It was as if he was the world’s champion.

Harvey York sized up Lachlan before saying another word of caution.

“Phantom and Skullface are tough to deal.

with, Lachlan...”

“Tough to deal with?”

Lachlan and his juniors scoffed after hearing Harvey’s warning.

The juniors were crossing their arms while glaring derisively at Harvey.

“Are you dumb? Or are you just ignorant ?”

“You talk like our senior’s an easy target!”

“Let me tell you something! He’s taken more lives than you can ever imagine!”

“If he weren’t worried about Mr. Pagan and Arlet’s safety, he would’ve taken down those people in a single slap by now!”

Lachlan felt incredibly proud after hearing his juniors’ words.

“You’re exaggerating. These people are pretty capable. I probably won’t be able to do that...”

“Maybe two slaps at least.”

Naturally, Lachlan’s words were as arrogant as could be at this point.

Harvey showed a bitter expression.

“I know you’re capable, but Skullface is a King of Arms...”

“Enough. You’re just a geomancy expert.

“You clearly know nothing about martial arts!

“If he’s a King of Arms, then I’m a God of War!

“Don’t get involved in this!

“My power is way beyond your wildest imagination!

Lachlan was showing a righteous expression on his face.

“Watch and learn, kid! I’ll show you what it means to be an expert!”

Lachlan took a step forward.

The juniors were utterly fascinated by the sight.

“You’re so handsome, Senior!”

“As expected from the top disciple of our sacred martial arts training ground! He doesn’t get a lot of opportunities to show his strength!”

“To stay by your side and receive your teachings is the best thing that’s happened to our lives!”

Then, one of the juniors glared at Harvey furiously.

“Only an expert like our senior has the right to be the Pagan family’s important guest!”

she exclaimed.

“How dare a geomancy expert like you try to take our senior’s place just by running your mouth like that?”

“Forget it! He’ll understand that he’s no match against our senior when he sees how powerful our senior is!” another junior coldly interjected.

“He’ll know regret soon enough!”

Arlet Pagan felt a little awkward after hearing her seniors’ words. She did not expect that they would have this many opinions toward Harvey.

“Be careful, Young Master Bree,” said Harvey sincerely. He did not want to hide anything from Lachlan.

“You’re no match against Skullface.

“I suggest you proceed with your juniors.

“That’s enough!

Lachlan fiercely glared back at Harvey.

“I am invincible!”

He swiftly stepped forward with lightning speed!

Clang clang clang!

Sounds of metal clanking could be heard when Lachlan’s righteous look was clearly showing. It was as if he was actually the strongest man on earth.

“Come on!

“All of you!

“Useless filth!

“Come at me!

“I’ll take on all of you!”

Lachlan Bree let out a righteous cry as he waved his arms around.

The sound alone made it seem like Lachlan was an unrivaled expert.

“Don’t be scared, Harvey! My senior’s pretty impressive!

“He previously took down ten experts all by himself!

Arlet Pagan admired her senior quite a bit.

“I asked him to be here because he’s strong!

“These people are no match against him!

“He’ll deal with them soon enough....”

The juniors were holding their heads up high after hearing Arlet’s words, as if they were expecting Lachlan’s triumphant victory.

Someone even started to record Lachlan, preparing to show him off on social media.

Wes Pagan squinted at the sight before him, speechless.

Harvey York heaved a sigh. There was nothing else he could say at that point.

Clang clang clang!

Loud sounds were echoing everywhere.

The monk covered in gold took a step toward Lachlan.

“You’ve got power, but it’s a shame I’m your opponent.

“Kneel and admit defeat. I’ll spare your life then.”

Lachlan showed a prideful expression on his face, as if he had total control of Skullface’s life.

Skullface froze momentarily before showing a merciless smile.

He wasted no time throwing his fists straight at Lachlan with full force. Every single punch felt like a cannon going off.

Lachlan was filled with righteous spirit but continuously stumbled back after taking each hit.

Bam!

The entire villa trembled when the final punch was dealt.

Soon after, a cry of pain was heard.

“Aaagh!”

Arlet and the others instinctively looked over.

A figure was sent flying before crashing straight into Arlet and the others.

Lachlan’s body was scarred and completely covered in blood. His entire body shuddered incessantly out of fear.

His high and mighty attitude was gone. At this moment, he was no different than a dead dog.

Everyone instantly stood frozen.

Nobody thought that Lachlan would end up like this after talking big.

In Arlet’s and the others’ minds, Lachlan should have been able to slice Skullface to pieces without shedding a drop of blood.

They never expected that he would be rendered paralyzed like this after all that showing off.

He was constantly gasping for air with a horrible look on his face.

Naturally, he immediately forgot whatever he said before getting into the fight.

“What now, Harvey? What now?”

“Senior’s badly hurt! You have an idea, don’t you?”

Arlet came to her senses before hopefully looking at Harvey.

“Please! Save my senior!”

Harvey let out a sigh before stepping out, ready to take action.

“He’s just a geomancy expert... He can’t help me...” replied Lachlan weakly.

Naturally, Lachlan still did not believe that Harvey could save him despite his miserable performance.

His juniors stumbled around with bandages and the All-Cure Medicine, trying to stop Lachlan’s bleeding.

It was a shame that no powder was enough to treat him.

“I’ll handle it,” said Harvey with another sigh.

He could not be bothered with that man if it was not for Arlet’s sake.

“You can’t! I’ll kneel in front of your face if you can even stop my bleeding...”

Bam!

Harvey poked his body and sealed the wound, immediately stopping the bleeding.

Lachlan Bree and the others were completely shocked. They did not expect that Harvey was actually this capable.

That said, his pride would not allow him to show his gratitude or apologize.

“How did you get hurt like this?”

Arlet Pagan bandaged Lachlan’s wounds before she brought up the subject.

“Did you get hoodwinked?”

"It's him! It's all because of him!

Lachlan's emotions were volatile when he furiously screamed at Harvey.

"He made me doubt myself right as I was about to fight!

"That was why I couldn't fight properly!

"I barely lost to Skullface because of that!

"This b*stard did this to me!

"I'm not done settling scores with you yet!"

Harvey was utterly speechless.

He had seen quite a number of shameless people, but it was his first time seeing someone like this in his entire life.

Not only did he not thank Harvey for saving his life, but he was also trying to put all the blame on him...

He even mentioned that he barely lost against Skullface after suffering countless injuries.

'What a joke...

"I know you're from a sacred martial arts training ground, but at least be reasonable about this.

Harvey did not hold back on his words.

"You didn't seem that strong. That was why I suggested you three to fight simultaneously.

"But not only did you ignore my call and go alone, but you're also blaming me for your loss?

"You're being a little unreasonable, aren't you?

"At least back it up with results if you're going to flaunt your strength like this."

Lachlan was on the verge of coughing up blood.

“You...”

“How dare you talk to him like that?!”

“Lachlan used all his power to protect you!

It’s already bad enough that you’re not thanking him, yet you’re here acting all petty!”

“Are you a man or what?!”

“Lachlan’s right! He wouldn’t have ended up like this if it weren’t for you!”

“Aren’t you a mere geomancy expert?! You must’ve sabotaged him after realizing that he’s way stronger than you!”

“You keep saying that Skullface is stronger, but where’s your proof?! You have none!”

“Not only that, you’re constantly provoking Lachlan, making him second guess himself!

All this happened because of you!”

“In any case, this is your responsibility!”

“Don’t even try to run away from it!”

Arlet’s two seniors were gritting their teeth while furiously berating Harvey, planning to blame Harvey for what happened no matter what.

“That’s right! If you begged me to stay back, I would’ve done so!” Lachlan exclaimed.

Harvey was utterly speechless.

It was his first time seeing so many useless filth gathered in one place.

‘He thinks he can just escape from his responsibilities like this...?’

Harvey heaved a sigh.

“Your shame knows no bounds after all!”

“You b*stard! What did you just say to me?!”

“Enough!” Fast update on [daotranslate.com]

Skullface and Phantom moved forward while Arlet Pagan showed a horrible gaze.

Skullface was covered in gold paint when he showed a wretched and fierce smile.

The murderous intent he exuded felt as if it was real, suppressing everyone around him.

Arlet and her seniors looked at each other while gritting their teeth.

“We’ll go together! We’ll get revenge for Lachlan!”

Harvey York did not even have time to stop the two seniors rushing forward with swords in their hands.

“You can’t fight them! Come back!” Harvey instinctively exclaimed.

Even before Harvey’s words traveled far enough for the seniors to process, Skullface showed a cold smile before throwing two punches a few times faster than the seniors.

The two changed expressions instantly, thinking that they were done for.

They prepared to step back during the process...

They were pretty swift but still a little too slow.

The golden fists landed on the two immediately after.

The so-called experts coughed out blood before they were sent flying, crashing onto the ground.

It was not a lethal blow but enough to incapacitate them.

“B*stard!

Lachlan Bree stumbled off the ground while gritting his teeth.

“You’d be no match against us if it wasn’t for your secret techniques!

“We wouldn’t lose to the likes of you!”

Skullface showed a playful expression.

“You’re Lachlan, right?”

“You’re the alleged top disciple of the Oeus Temple, right?

“You must be mistaken about something !

You dare to call yourself the top disciple?!

“Even with my power, I have only ranked tenth!

“This generation of the Oeus Temple must be worse than the last!

“Not only are you people poor at learning, but your eyesight’s also worsening!

“You don’t recognize the Golden Shield of the Oeus Temple?”

Lachlan’s expression changed immediately.

“You were the one who betrayed us back then?!

“How dare you show up now?! Are you not scared of us issuing you a kill order?!”

“Of course I’m scared, but who’s going to do that after I kill all of you here?”

“You...”

Lachlan showed a horrible expression when he stumbled off the ground.

“Mr. Pagan! Arlet! Get out of here!

“I’ll hold him off!

“Call my teacher ! He’ll bring the Eighteen Sadens here to kill this damn traitor!”

Arlet looked horrified when she was about to take Wes Pagan away...

Harvey shook his head to stop the two.

“There’s no need for that.”

Slap!

Skullface casually slapped Lachlan aside before smiling faintly.

“That’s right. You won’t get a chance to after all.”

Pffft!

Lachlan slammed right in front of Harvey before coughing up blood. His face was as pale as a paper at that very moment.

“Lachlan!” Fast update on [daotranslate.com]

The two juniors stumbled over before showing utter despair.

They never expected that their invincible senior would be outmatched!

Lachlan barely kneeled up straight before screaming at Harvey.

“You’re killing Mr. Pagan, you b*stard!”
