

High Martial 90

Chapter 90: Listing Speech

Many readers might be surprised, since there was an update at midnight. But now, there's another update, and when you check, you'll find it's an announcement for the novel going on sale.

Ahem, it's going on sale.

The time: Tomorrow at midnight.

It's kind of awkward to say, but we lost the contest against other novels of the same period, so we can't feature on the main page, which means it will just go on sale.

But this loser author has tried his best. I'm very grateful for everyone's support along the way. If we can't make it, then so be it.

Speaking of which, the current performance of this novel has somewhat surprised me.

When I started writing, I only spent two or three days brainstorming and then wrote a detailed outline for the beginning before I started writing.

After the beginning was written, I posted it directly in the backend, and it wasn't until it reached nearly 30,000 words that the backend sent me a contract message. Here, I especially want to thank Lord Ye Xiao for uplifting me.

Looking back at the novel, some parts are indeed done casually, which may be the reason I've failed for many years and can't win against others in contests.

But later on, I've been writing very earnestly, and the plot was also carefully thought out. However, there will still be some flaws. On one hand, it's due to the author's own limited knowledge, and on the other hand, it's because this is a light novel, so the plot logic has to give way to highlights and excitement as much as possible.

Writing up to here, I actually have many feelings and thoughts. But, thinking about it, I might save it for later. Maybe when this book gets longer, it won't be too late to talk about it.

After all, putting the novel on sale is just the beginning, the road ahead is still long and filled with obstacles.

On the day of the sale, there will be a 20,000-word update. This was promised, and the author will not break his word.

After that, the daily update amount should be between 8000-10000 words.

As for the rules for additional updates, there are none. Yes, you read correctly.

Actually, updating this much daily is already my limit, so the author doesn't encourage everyone to send rewards, it's not necessary.

That's it,

I hope everyone continues to support me!

Your subscriptions are my biggest motivation to keep updating!!!

I beg you!!!