

Chapter 19

Izaak's Pov

"That was hilarious!" Rick could not stop laughing after he witnessed what Fiona had done the other night.

"One more sound from you and I might actually rip your head off your body for real this time" I growled.

"Oh please," he chuckled as he munched on the popcorn he brought to my study. With a wide grin on his face I could tell he was replaying last night's incident over and over again in his head.

To make the whole situation more infuriating, Luo still hasn't shown up. I have a meeting with the elders as the full moon festival is approaching, but now I'm going to have to show up with my hands in bandages.

How the hell will an alpha of a pack not be able to heal?
How will I explain that?

"You are so unbelievable!" I lashed out at Rick as he still had that wide grin on his face.

"Oh come on, admit it, it was hilarious how she put you in your place," he laughed out loud. "Has anyone ever done that to you? I don't think so, not even Tiana, she dares not."

"You are having fun right?" I glared at him, and he simply shrugged and continued to munch on his popcorn.

"I'm supposed to meet up with the elders today and instead of you coming with an idea to help with this.." I said stretching out my bandaged hand towards him. "You are just sitting here being useless," I flared.

Rick looked at me seriously for like thirty seconds and burst into another series of laughs.

Do I look like a clown? What's so funny about this whole situation?

I think I might actually keep to my threats and literally rip his head off.

"What's so funny about what I just said?" I asked. I stood up from my seat with my arms folded together on my chest as I walked over to him with a piercing gaze.

"Come on man," he said, as he saw I wasn't finding his frequent laughs and giggles funny anymore. "Is that what you're worried about?"

"Why is there something else I should be worried about?" I asked, with arch brows as I studied his face. From his facial expressions I could tell there was something he wasn't telling me.

"If you've got something meaningful to say, just spill it," I demanded.

Rick stared at me for a while clearly thinking about what he had in mind to say.

"You know what I changed my mind, don't say it," I said.

One thing was certain, no matter what Rick had in mind right now I'm sure it won't help with my bandaged hand or Luo leaving.

Thinking about Luo, I know he's the cause of my hand not healing, because even if I was an ordinary human my hand should have healed by now and not be covered in bandages.

"Not fair Luo," I muttered. "You should be on my side at all times not someone else's."

"Everyone knows what happened last night, everyone is talking about it" Rick blurted.

"WHAT!" I yelled, as I stared at him in disbelief.

He shrugged. "Word's do spread fast around here you know," he added. "Especially ones that have to do with the alpha."

"It's a good thing she gave you a thirst of your own medicine," Luo chipped in. "Now you'd know what it feels like to be humiliated."

Oh wow!

I guess I'm on my own this time. Luo finally decided to show up only to scold me.

"This is all her fault," I muttered. I didn't even want to mention her name as it's going to piss me off the most, now even Rick seems to be on her side.

"Do you know why the whole thing is funny?" Rick asked.

"Why?"

"You know man," he began. "If she had just reminded you about her being your wife and all, it wouldn't be this funny. What's funny is the way she mockingly bowed and said..." he chuckled and took a few steps backwards. "Your royal rudeness," he said and burst out laughing. "Just so you know, I'm anti Izaak now."

My mind flashed back at last night's event and it made my blood boil.

What does she mean by calling me 'your royal rudeness' is that even a word?

"By the way what do you mean by Anti Izaak?" I enquired.

"Oh it's a thing humans say" he replied.

"You went over to the human world? Rick!" I fumed. I know I'm not supposed to get really pissed off about him going to the human world but I just need to transfer my reason for getting furious on something that has nothing to do with Fiona.

"Relax man, chill. I just downloaded an app, it's called TikTok. That's where I heard it" he explained. "Besides, from what I overheard, she doesn't even remember a thing from that night," he added.

"What do you mean she does not remember?" I asked, with furrowed brows.

"Yes, it was as though the memory was plucked out" He answered.

I smiled coyly. "We have a meeting," I said to him as I packed up a few things from my desk and headed for the door.

"I know that look, you're kidding right?" he stopped me, and placed his hand on the door knob as he stared at me. He already knows what I have in mind.

"I'm not, it's a very great idea, you're gonna love it" I smirked, and placed my hand on his on the door knob and opened the door. I headed towards the meeting room.

"Izy!" He called out.

"Shh, she can't just get away with this, it's just nice as she can't remember a thing" I chuckled.

"Oh you Devil!"

"Easy now, I'm the Alpha, not the devil."

"Hold on, let me help you with your things," he offered to carry my things.

"Leave it be," I said to him with a smile

"Ok, you are beginning to sound like a crazy person, Izy, are you sure you wanna push through with this?" He asked with a worried look on his face but I just smiled and walked away

"He is nuts just like his wife, what sort of match is this?" He mumbled under his breath but I could still hear him.

Right after the meeting, I headed over to Fiona's room but she was not there and I came across Mrs. Teresa's granddaughter.

"Hey Lily" I called out with a smile as she slowly approached me.

"Good evening Alpha Izaak" She greeted with a bow.

"Good evening to you too Lily, have you seen my wife?" I asked with a smile.

"Oh, the Luna is at her favorite spot in the mansion," She replied politely.

"Does she have a favorite spot?" I mumbled.

"The garden next to the fountain," she said as she read my face, knowing I didn't know Fiona's favorite spot.

"Thanks, Lily," I said to her and set out to meet her.

As I approached the garden, the breeze was cool, the silence was surreal, it was peaceful. The only sound around were the birds and the water from the fountain.

I closed my eyes as the cold breeze slapped my face mildly, and the smell of the roses and flowers, they were soothing until I heard a mumbling sound

"What exactly did I do?"

"What did I do?" I heard Fiona as she kept beating herself up, trying to remember what she had done.

"Fiona!" I called out with my hand on her shoulder and it scared the bejesus out of her as she thought she was the only one here.

As she turned to see who it was, she lost her balance and almost landed on the ground. But Luo returned just in time and pushed me to catch her.
