Chapter 0030

Fiona's Pov

"What?! How far away is she?" I asked Lily, as I quickly sprang into action putting up finishing touches on everything we've been doing so far.

"Ermmm.." Lily stammered. "A few minutes I guess," she said.

"Okay, that's good Lily," I said trying to encourage her as I saw she was finding it hard to process the whole urgency. "Quickly get your grandma and the other servants in here."

Lily ran off quickly to do as I instructed.

"Oh gosh!" I grumbled. "The cake is not in the perfect position." I whined as I tried putting other things in place.

Alpha Izaak just stood by a corner with his arms folded,looking at me with an amused expression.

"Don't just stand there, help!" I yelled, and he chuckled.

What's there to laugh about? He's the cause of this mess anyways. If he hadn't offered to help I wouldn't have sent the servants away, and now he's laughing?

Mrs. Teresa rushed in with the other servants behind her.

"Mrs. Teresa quick, everyone should get in place just as we practiced," I ordered, and everyone scattered around trying to get in position.

"Alpha Izaak!" I said, with my voice high. "Find a place to hide," I said in a low tone as I realized I was yelling at the alpha. But you won't blame me, him just standing there is pissing me off already.

"Luna Fiona I'm back," Cora announced as she swung the door open.

"Oops," Lily said awkwardly.

Cora stared at everything and everyone wide eyed. Amidst the chaos we were not able to get in place before Cora arrived.

"Happy belated birthday Cora!" I said, and the others cheered and clapped.

"Happy belated birthday Cora," they all said one after another as they came closer to hug her.

Cora just stood frozen in shock, as tears streamed down her face uncontrollably.

"Happy belated birthday Miss Cora," Lily said, snapping Cora out of her shocked state.

"Thank you Lily," she replied, cupping Lily's cheeks.

"L- Luna Fiona," Cora stammered, amidst fresh tears on her cheeks. "You didn't have to," she said in between sobs.

"Of course I had to," I said, enveloping her in a hug. " You are my friend and like a sister to me," I said, wiping the tears from her eyes, but they only poured out more.

"But.."

"No buts," I scolded, shushing her up. "I meant everything I said."

"Awww..." the voices of the other servants echoed in the room as they smiled at me and Cora.

"Alright, time to cut the cake," I said happily, as I pulled Cora to where the cake was.

"Make a wish!" Lily said excitedly.

Cora closed her eyes for a few minutes and when she opened them she blew on the candle and cut the cake.

"Yay!" Everyone said excitedly.

"Thank you so much Luna," Cora said with teary eyes, as she fed me a slice of cake.

"I'm sorry I sent you out last minute, I just needed a long distraction so I could pull this off and I didn't do this alone" I chuckled, and Alpha Izaak stepped forward.

"Greetings Alpha," She bowed.

"Happy belated birthday Cora," Alpha Izaak said, with a small smile on his lips

"Thank you Alpha," Cora replied, with her eyes buried on the ground. "Thanks everyone," she raised her head up looking at the other servants.

"You are welcome Cora," they all said in unison.

"Next time, give me a heads up about your birthday, okay?" I said to Cora, and she nodded in response.

With Alpha Izaak present it was a bit awkward for the servants as everyone was trying to compose himself and not get him angry.

"I heard there's a partyyyy!!!" Rick's voice echoed in the room as he stepped in with a bottle of wine in his hand. "And I wasn't invited," Rick said with a small pout and a frown.

"I'm sorry Rick, it's all my fault for not inviting you," I apologized.

"I'm here now, and it's all forgiven," he said with a wave of his hand.

Comments

Vote (1.3K)