

Chapter 0034

"I'm tired," I said in between sobs, and sank on the floor with tears streaming down my cheeks. "I'm tired of how he treats me, how he just assumes the worst when it comes to me. Just this morning he..."

I couldn't continue as I choked on my sobs. Cora knelt beside me, enveloping me in a comforting embrace.

"Everything's going to be fine Luna," she comforted, parting my back lightly. "Don't let him get to you, be strong and don't fall into his trap, play your role as the Luna and leave him be" She advised.

"It's easier said than done, try having a stunningly gorgeous husband," I said, my voice a bit steadier. Cora released me from the hug, and gave me this look of, 'did you just hit your head', and we burst out laughing.

I know alpha Izaak is a jerk but I couldn't deny how stunning he looks, and no matter how hard I try, I'm still drawn to him.

I wiped the tears on my face with the back of my hand, took a deep breath, and went back to my closet to look for a comfortable outfit to wear. The preparations were not over, and it won't be right to just leave it halfway.

I took a quick shower, got dressed, and Cora and I headed back to the garden.

As soon as we got back to the garden, all eyes were on me. I know seeing me storm off like that, they would probably think I'm so vulnerable, and I wouldn't want to give them that impression, most especially Tiana, who is obviously out to humiliate me any chance she's got.

Mrs. Teresa walked up to me, with Lily trailing behind her.

"Are you feeling okay Luna" Lily, wrapped her arms around me.

"I feel much better with your warm embrace," I said to her with a smile.

"Are you sure you are fine Luna?" Mrs. Teresa asked, her face etched with worry. "You can sit this one out if you'd like," she suggested. "What's left of the preparations is not something the pack members can't handle."

I smiled reassuringly to her. "I'm fine, and it won't be right to just leave it to you guys."

Most of the pack members smiled at me genuinely, but Tiana couldn't hide her disdain. I simply ignored her, and turned to face Mrs. Teresa.

"What's the plan for lunch?" I asked Mrs. Teresa, as I noticed everyone still kept on working, and it was almost lunch time.

"There's no plan Luna," she replied.

"What do you mean, no plan?" I asked. "It's almost Lunch time, I'd be glad to bring lunch over here for everyone," I said.

"It's how things are being done, Luna," she said. "The alpha wouldn't want anything to go wrong during the preparations, so we will have lunch after we are done."

"That's absurd," I growled. "Give me a second," I said, walking out of the garden, and headed straight to the kitchen.

Hello" I greeted the chef

"Good afternoon Luna Fiona, would you like me to serve you lunch," The chef asked.

"That is not why I'm here" I answered.

"Oh, what brings the Luna down to the kitchen?"

"I need you to fix a quick lunch for the pack members working on the upcoming full moon festival preparations," I said, and the chef stared at me like I spoke in foreign language. "Did you hear what I just said?" I asked, sternly.

"B- But.." he stuttered, trying to find words that wouldn't offend me. "The Alpha..."

"I know," I interrupted. "Let me worry about that," I said flatly.

The chef bowed his head in surrender and quickly got to work. After a few minutes, the chef brought a cucumber sandwich, spread with cream cheese-yogurt.

"Thank you," I said. This is not much, but it will at least keep them going till they can get a proper meal.

With the help of the kitchen assistants and some omega's, the lunch was brought to the garden. At the sight of lunch the pack members' faces lit up.

"Lunch!" Lily squealed excitedly. Lily was not exactly doing anything, she was just behind her grandmother playing. She must really love her grandma, to want to be around her all the time.

The pack members lined up, and each took one sandwich. I didn't see Tiana as I scanned around, she's probably gone. Seeing that alpha Izaak was not here either, alongside his beta Roderick, I believed they were all together.

"What the hell is this?! Alpha Izaak thundered, as he got back. The pack members were already trembling with fear as noone had the guts to speak up, until the Chef spoke up.

"Lunch, Alpha." He said, his voice trembling.

"On whose orders!" he flared.

"Mine!" I replied flatly, walking over to where he was.
