

Host, Please Be Honest! What Exactly Are You?

Chapter 4 The Enemy

While Dorian was eating, Butler Sheng was closing up the house.

There were just 2 of them here. So if they were all out, they needed to at least lock placed up.

Butler Sheng shook his head in pity when he saw the overgrown lawns outside the grand building.

Everyone had betrayed them, and no one was even willing to work here anymore.

No matter who they tried to employ, the person or the hiring agency would only snob them aside.

That was probably the work of the Mistress' brother.

The Thief who stole their company.

Butler Sheng found the accident and everything else too coincidental.

But what could he do?

As of now, the person who would call the shots was his young master, whom he would serve faithfully.

He didn't believe that the heavens would watch such injustice and let it slide.

After shutting every place up, Butler Sheng walked into the dining room wearing his black butler hat and a coat.

That's right.

He would be the Young Master's driver.

He stood patiently at the side and waited for Dorian to finish up his meal.

"Young Master, the vehicle is ready."

"Good. Let's go."

With that, the duo were off.

As for where they were going, only time would tell.

And the moment they passed the massive estate gates, several seemingly innocent passerbys quickly became alert.

And just when they were about to go after Dorian, a cell phone rang.

.

~Ring.~~~

One took out his phone with a cold expression on his face: "Boss. They're on the move. Should we follow them or do you have another job for us?"

"Yes. Something has just come up.

So forget about the kid.

Sending you all to watch the good for nothing day in and day out is a complete waste of your talents.

After watching him for months, it's clear that the kid has no one to turn to.

Heh. Who would dare help him after the warning I issued out?

As for where the kid is going, where else would it be other than the hospital?

You all should head back to the estate and wait for further instructions.

So from today onwards, forget about the kid." said the arrogant voice on the other end of the phone.

Hearing the new instructions, the man holding the phone replied faintly before dropping the call.

Indeed. He felt like he had been wasting his time over the past few months, looking at this good-for-nothing former son of wealth.

Looking at the direction the waste went, the burly man couldn't help scoffing in disdain.

Like that, he and his men left the scene for good.

It was just that, while they had been observing their target, their target had also been listening in on them too.

Just within the estate, a few inches away from the gate, a thin sheet of paper began burning and fading away, as if it was never there in the first place.

~Brmmm~

Dorian suddenly opened his eyes and chuckled playfully.

Well, it looked like that uncle of his had decided to give up on him, thinking that he wasn't much of a threat.

Perfect. This worked well for him too.

Luckily, he had drawn up a few talismans and scattered them around the estate while they were gone.

Now, he could focus on improving his strength.

Earlier on, he took a long time bathing, not only to rid himself of the horrifying stench of alcohol on him but to also rid himself of the black tar-like substances oozing out of his skin.

The system did reward him with a Jade Heart Cleansing Pill.

With all impurities gone, he spent almost every free second cultivating.

When Butler Sheng was running up and down, he had paused his meal to continue on.

And even within the room, before Butler Sheng came in, he had been cultivating nonstop.

Already, he had entered the 1st Dan of the True Qi Realm.

Of course, he was still at the early stages.

And with the very sparse amount of qi in this world, he would have to create a qi gathering array in future if he wanted to improve his strength fast.

.

Vrmmmmm~~

The very elegant vehicle drove across the busy streets amidst several awed expressions.

The car was indeed a beauty and a rare one at that.

Too bad they didn't know that the owner within the vehicle was now 'broke.'

The classy vehicle steadily made its way past the traffic, taking several turns and bends, until it reached its final destination.

The Winston Lee Hospital.

Dorian stepped out and couldn't go marvelling at the glorious building before him.

No wonder it was one of the most famous hospitals in this world.

It's said that almost all doctors here are famous worldwide, and the private research centre is a national treasure.

People from all over the world flew in here for service.

Some even quoted that if one's illness couldn't get cured here, then it meant that there was either no cure, or they were destined to die.

Without wasting any more time, Dorian and Butler Sheng stepped into the building, intending to see his parents.

But who would've known that they would run into trouble so soon?

A smug-faced young man holding a beauty beside him, saw Dorian and immediately smiled arrogantly.

Ghu Sota looked at Dorian victoriously, as if he had won.

He hated Dorian down to the bone!

In school, the girl he liked had a crush on Dorian instead.

And what ticked him off the most was that after she confessed, Dorian blatantly rejected her.

He was so pissed when he saw her tears that he wanted to beat the bastard.

But at the time, because of Dorian's parents, he dared not do so.

Later on, in order to get back at Dorian, he seduced the fool's girlfriend and even made her break up with him after this whole incident happened.

Sota hated Dorian's handsome face the most.

Look! Even the beauty he was now holding was blushing hard after seeing the bastard.

Dammit!

This bastard was definitely doing this on purpose!