

ILY Monster 120

Hinari was indeed dumbfounded. Never in her dream that she'll meet a person like this, a person who would actually crash her confidence just by existing. However, by the time she noticed the way he looked at Davi, a playful smile flashed across her face in a second. Awakening her knocked down composure once again.

Hmm...? Could it be that this man is...

As they waited for their food, Hinari was still secretly observing Sei while talking to Davi. And this whole time, apart from the moment Davi introduced him to her, the man never threw a glance at her at all. As though the only person exist in this man's eyes was only Davi and no one else.

But the longer the man treated her like nothing, the more she wanted to dare and execute her plan to him anyway. It was because this is the first time any man ignored her to this extent. In her whole life, she met few loyal men whom she failed to seduce, however, those few men have fought their desire to the limit to escape from her bewitching grasp.

Due to that, Hinari wanted to dare challenging this mighty icy statue before her. She originally wanted to do her plan mainly to understand him for the sake of the advices she will give to Davi, however, this time, it isn't solely for Davi anymore, she thought that if she could at least get a glimpse of this man's attention, then it wouldn't be exaggerated for her to declare herself as one of the world's best seductress. And most importantly, Hinari just wanted to confirm one thing.

Thus, shortly after Hinari has processed her thoughts, she sidled towards Davi and whispered.

"Davi dear, can I ask you a favor?"

"Of course, what is it?"

"Actually, my period just unexpectedly came just now and I didn't get anything..."

"Huh? Are you serious? How could you..."

"Well, I'm so excited to meet you I actually forgot."

"Huh? Seriously? Okay, I get it. I'll go find a nearby store."

"Thank you."

Davi then stood and told Sei she'll go out for a while to buy something and as expected, Sei just looked like he wanted to go and follow her when Hinari talked softly to get his attention.

"Do you want to know a secret about your wife?" she asked but Sei just glanced at her blankly. Emotionless as ever, as if she was just a speck of dust in his eyes.

However, Hinari still stood and she moved closer to him. According to her experience, the most lethal seduction tactic to someone you just met was through the power of eye contact and touch. And because getting through him by eye contact was a mission impossible, the power of touch was the only thing left. And this seduction tactic was proven 100% effective not only based on her experience, but lots of girls also confirmed that every guy responds to it.

And so the next second later, Hinari finally began.

She suddenly touched the back of Sei's forearm for a strict one second as she talked seductively. "I know you're interested about her secret, right?"

This tactic wasn't just a mere random touch, the reason behind this was because the back of the forearm was a very sensitive patch of skin. The nerve endings in that part is sensitive enough to create great sparks.

However, to her surprise, no reaction has occurred at all. He just looked like he was a robot suddenly shut down the moment Davi left. He didn't even talk nor made a single move.

T-this man...

Due to his zero reaction, Hinari continued to the next level. She unleashed every seductive reservation within her as she moved even closer to him. Her next target was the back of his neck and one of the most easily aroused part of man's anatomy, the ears.

Thus, the next second, Hinari laid her palm on the back of his neck as she pulled him towards her before she whispered way too close that her lips even brushed into his ear slightly. "Davi actually likes someone," she said.

However, the instant reaction she received from him was a chilling icy aura that enough to froze her spine. That moment, she felt like the lifeless perfect mannequin was suddenly being possessed by a demon.

The man held her wrist as he glared at her coldly.

"Who?" he asked and due to fear Hinari just answered him right away.

"You." she said and once again, to her surprise, the scary monster in front of her suddenly calmed as though the demon who possess him suddenly disappeared as he slowly let go of her hand.

And the next second, Hinari was dumbstruck. It was because, the man's ears slowly turned red as he covered his lower face with the back of his hand the moment the word 'you' came out of her mouth.

That moment, Hinari realized he actually didn't reacted like that because of her moves on him, he reacted because of what she told him that Davi has someone she likes.

Wait... this man is actually... he's actually the one who's head over heels towards Davi?! Oh my gosh...! Davi my great student, you actually conquered this man?