

Kick Ass Wife 36

Chapter 36 Easier To Invite Devil

Alan rushed to the kindergarten. When he arrived at the kindergarten, he came across Martin, who happened to be there.

It was Martin, indeed.

Martin had nothing to do on that day. He and Alan had planned this to test Isabella out.

So, Martin went to pick Ricky up. Meanwhile, Alan drove Isabella in the name of picking Ricky up and lured her to jump into the alley.

They also hired some thugs to go after Isabella and force her to expose some of her true self.

As a result, the plan failed because of unforeseen circumstances. Some of the men from Skydragon kidnaped Isabella.

Alan did not know about that yet.

He arrived at the kindergarten and saw Martin picking up Ricky instead of Isabella.

When Martin saw Alan, he was surprised and whispered, "So soon? Did you get to know anything about her?"

Alan's expression changed slightly as he said, "I lost her. She... Didn't she come here?"

Martin's brows furrowed, and he looked around in shock. "Lost her? I haven't seen her around here."

That caught Alan off guard.

Ricky suddenly asked, "Mr. Martin, Mr. Alan, did mommy come along? I want to sit in the same car as mommy."

As he spoke, he wanted to get off the car and head to Alan's car.

Alan was nervous, and cold sweat drenched his forehead.

Martin was also anxious.

Alan wiped off the sweat on his forehead and said to Martin, "Send Ricky back home. I'll go and look for her."

Then, he looked at Ricky and said uncomfortably, "Ricky, your mom did not come because she had something to do. Go back home with Mr. Martin first. I have something to settle and will be back later."

When Ricky heard that his mother was not there, he looked at their pale faces. He was confused.

He silently glanced at both of them before getting into the car obediently.

Martin took Ricky back home, while Alan sped to the alley where he dropped Isabella.

On the way, he called home, and Cooper told him that Isabella had not returned.

Alan knew Isabella would be in trouble if he did not find her before the sky turned dark. He could not imagine the consequences of the situation by then.

Not to mention how Ricky would react if he found out that they lost his mom. He and Martin did not know how to explain it to Draxton either...

Alan was overwhelmed by his regret. He was in despair. All he wanted was to test out Isabella, and he had never intended to put her in danger.

Isabella was, after all, Draxton's woman and Ricky's birth mother...

Alan searched the alley and saw no sign of Isabella.

As the sky grew darker, Alan was contemplating if he should call more people to search for her.

However, by then, he could no longer hide this matter from Draxton.

Alan's face turned paler.

Meanwhile, Martin was also in a difficult situation.

When they were back home, Ricky thought he could see his mom, but he looked around and did not find her anywhere.

"Mr. Cooper, have you seen mommy?" Ricky asked Cooper.

Cooper was puzzled and asked, "Didn't Miss Thompson come and pick you up with Mr. Martin?"

Ricky was startled, and he stared at Martin, confused.

Martin did not dare to have eye contact with Ricky.

So, he did not notice the glow and hope in Ricky's eyes fade.

Cooper's expression turned gloomy as he glared at Martin sharply. His look was quite different from his usual gentle gaze.

"Martin, Alan and you are Mr. Lockwood's most trusted subordinates. I hope that you will never do something silly and unnecessary."
