

Kick Ass Wife 51

Chapter 51 This Pilf Is Amazing

Draxton Lockwood supported Isabella Thompson and comforted her, "It's okay. You'll get used to it."

Isabella was lost for words.

Isabella looked at Ricky with her mouth agape. If not for the fact that she could recognize Ricky from his demeanor, she would have almost recognized Ricky as Betty.

After all, they were twins. They hadn't grown up yet, so Ricky still looked similar to Betty when he was dressed up.

"Wow!"

Roger Lockwood let out a soft cry and looked at the child with sympathy.

Wilson Lockwood said, "Dad, Mom, don't you feel guilty for dressing the boy up as a doll?"

Sir Graham Lockwood immediately shot him a sharp glare. He exclaimed, "Why would I be? Then what about you? Don't you feel guilty for escaping from your responsibilities? What does dressing up our great-grandson have anything to do with you? Why don't you get your son to get us another great-grandchild if you're that capable?"

Wilson was speechless.

Macpherson Lockwood patted his shoulder sympathetically. "Second Brother, be smart and don't provoke the old man. Can't you see that he's in high spirits now?"

It was a heinous crime to disturb the two elders who were busy playing with their great-grandson.

Ricky pursed his lips tightly and blushed. His big clear eyes flashed with a hint of shame and anger. There was a lipstick mark on the left side of his small face.

How tragic.

Isabella's heart ached a little. She could not help but tug at Draxton's sleeve. "Will grandma and grandpa dress their granddaughter up as a boy seeing how they dressed up Ricky as a girl?"

Draxton shook his head. "No, grandpa and grandma like girls. In our family, girls are more popular than boys. Little children are more popular than older children. The two elders adore Ricky because he is at that age. Look at those few. They were treated like this when they were young. Olivia and Yale must have gone through the same thing."

Isabella looked at the younger generation sympathetically, who were all pitying Ricky.

Roger even muttered, "This little baby is really our successor!"

Isabella did not know what to say.

What successor?

Isabella could already imagine how Betty would be dressed up if the two elders saw her.

However, with Betty's personality, it was still uncertain who would suffer when the time came.

Isabella shuddered at the thought of the two elders being "tormented" by Betty.

Isabella was somewhat amazed.

Then she suddenly thought of something. Isabella tugged Draxton's sleeve and whispered, "Did grandpa and grandma dress you up when you were young?"

Draxton fell silent.

He suddenly froze.

Jeanne Lockwood happened to hear her say that. She let out a smile and said, "Of course, Bella. I even took a photo of him. The photo is with me. I'll show it to you when I have the chance."

She was simply a master at exposing her son's dark past.

Jeanne continued, "Ricky looks just like Draxton when he was dressed up as a doll!"

The two elders looked at everyone proudly and said, "This is Ricky, our great-grandson. Don't scare the child, all of you! Line up here and give my great-grandson a welcome gift!"

Everyone was speechless.

It was like they were worthless, and the only treasure here was the child.

Shepard Lockwood said, "Grandma, you've had a change of heart. Have you forgotten the beautiful memories of dressing us twins up?"

Madame Emma Lockwood glanced at him loftily. "Of course, I remember. But you're not cute anymore once you grow up!" she said disdainfully.

They became so naughty after they grew up.
