Chapter 77 Smart Grandpa

Martin's face was very pale. When Draxton entered, Martin struggled to get up from the bed. Draxton said in a deep voice, "Lie down and don't move."

Martin looked at Draxton's serious expression and finally lay down weakly. However, his eyes still followed Draxton closely.

other Draxton was also shocked. All of them knew very well how serious Martin's injuries were. If it was any hospital or doctor, Martin would have ended up dead. However, he was really saved in Lotus Village. This was a life that was really taken back by force from the gates of hell.

Draxton figured that the Sanctum of Holy Doctors's medical skills were really magical to an unimaginable extent.

"Mr. Lockwood..." Martin said weakly as he looked at Draxton. Currently, he was only slightly weak from just waking up.

"The Star of Cold Light has been found. You saved my life. From now on, you're free."

Draxton looked at him and said calmly.

Martin's eyes turned red. "Sir, are you kicking me out?"

Draxton shook his head and said seriously, "No, I'm not kicking you out. I just want to give you a chance to choose. You can choose any life you want. This is my compensation to you."

Martin's eyes lit up.

He

struggled to get up. That time, he did not listen to Draxton's orders. He forcefully got up from the bed and knelt on the ground with a loud thump. He said extremely sincerely. "Mr. Lockwood, I can no longer follow you in the future!"

Draxton looked at him with an indescribable feeling in his heart. Since Martin had chosen to leave, since Draxton had said that he would let the man go, he would definitely keep his word.

Before he could speak, Martin continued, "Sir, please allow me to stay by Ms. Betty's side and protect her. My life was saved by Ms. Betty and Mr. Falkona. My life will belong to Ms. Betty from now on. Beginning from this day, I will only be loyal to Ms. Betty. I will be loyal to her for the rest of my life and would rather die than change. Please agree to my request.

Draxton looked at him with a complicated expression.

"Since this is your choice, I have no objections. However, I have no say in regard to Betty. You have to seek her permission yourself."

Draxton also had a headache. If Betty was just an ordinary child, he would agree on her behalf. However, when he thought of that child's personality, Draxton felt both proud and helpless. He really did not dare to make her unhappy.

Martin's eyes were filled with gratitude when he saw Draxton agree. From then on, his life was Betty's. "Then recuperate well. We'll talk about everything after you recover."

Draxton gave him a complicated look, turned around, and walked out.

A month later.

Draxton, Betty, and Old Greg walked down the mountain with a large medicine basket on his back. Mr. Langley and Jocelyn stood at the entrance of the village and watched the three of them come down the mountain. Mr. Langley's expression was cold as he said in disdain, "Why isn't he leaving? How long has he been staying around here? That guy practically lives off of us here. How shameless. He's the head of the Lockwood Group. Does he have nothing better to do?"

Jocelyn sneered. "Didn't you see that although Betty has been teasing him a lot recently, the kid has already gotten very happy to get along with him?"

Mr. Langley snorted. "He does have his way, I'd admit. First, he captured Bella's heart, made Bella marry him, and even took in Ricky. Now, he even wormed his way to Betty."

Jocelyn sighed softly. "Bella is not someone who will suffer losses and do nothing about it. I'm not worried about this. The main thing is that the children need a father."

Mr. Langley's face darkened. After a while, he snorted and said, "Humph, it's all because of the children. Otherwise, I wouldn't have let him off so easily!"

In the past five years, Bella had been forced into a corner. It was only a given that they felt sorry for her.

After all, Bella was their beloved disciple. They did not have children of their own and treated her as their biological daughter.
