Chapter 88 Little Betty's Complaints

Ricky had a string of wooden beads on his wrist, with every bead containing poison bugs. Some of those poison bugs were given to him by Jocelyn for self-defense, while others were given to him by Isabella for the same purpose.

There were also some others. For example, the Truth Poison in Bridget's body, being raised by Ricky herself.

The little boy might have feelings for those bugs.

Isabella touched his head gently and comforted him softly. "Ricky, don't be sad. Mommy will help you raise. another one as a gift, okay?"

Ricky was about to speak when he heard Betty's voice.

"I have one. I'll give mine to Ricky." Betty generously placed a transparent little bug in Ricky's hand.

Ricky immediately blushed.

He felt that his dignity as the elder brother had been offended by his sister. He pursed his lips and his face looked very serious. He straightened his chest and returned the bug to his sister. Then, he looked at Isabella and said seriously, "Mom, I'd raise one myself. I don't need one from you or Betty."

Isabella looked at his serious little face and listened to his soft little voice. He could not help but look solemn. She then said, "Ricky, you can do it. Mommy believes that you can definitely do it."

She clenched her fists and cheered the boy on.

Ricky nodded. He looked extremely cute. Then, she said to her sister, "Keep your own. I don't need yours."

Betty pouted and said, "Ricky, are you embarrassed? Don't worry, Mom and I won't laugh at you."

Ricky took a deep breath. In the end, he just reached out his chubby hand and rubbed his sister's soft curly hair to show his magnanimity and tolerance as the elder brother.

Betty was stunned. By the time she reacted, Ricky had already gone to prepare the stuff for raising poison bugs.

Betty pouted. When she turned around and saw her mother smiling at her with a dangerous gaze, she immediately shrank her neck. "Mom..."

She wormed her way into her mother's embrace, cupping Isabella's face with her tiny hands, and kissed Isabella on the face. She then said cooly. "Mommy, Betty misses you so much. Betty loves mommy the most. Betty finally gets to meet mommy!"
