Chapter 561 Resurrection

Thor's heart is full of determination. He wants to find the dark elves and stop their conspiracy.

So, after he successfully built the power of Thor, he summoned the Rainbow Bridge and returned to Asgard.

Thor's footsteps were hurried and determined, and his figure shuttled through the palace of Asgard.

He is looking for Heimdall, the eye that protects Asgard, and the dynamics of the nine worlds and even the universe are under his control. Thor knew that Heimdall was the key to finding the Dark Elves.

Thor finally found Heimdall in a corner of the palace.

Heimdall sat on his throne, eyes closed, as if listening to the sounds of the entire universe.

Thor stepped forward and eagerly asked about the whereabouts of the dark elves.

Heimdall opened his eyes, his eyes were deep and bright, as if he could see through all hypocrisy and lies.

He looked at Thor, took a deep breath, and then spoke slowly.

"The Dark Elves are not in their world right now."

Heimdall's voice was calm and powerful.

"They are wandering around, gathering strength. They have recruited many plunderers who once conquered many planets by force, but now they have become minions of the dark elves. In addition, they have also recruited many enemies of Asgar. The dissatisfied resistance forces, induced by the dark elves, began to pose a threat to Asgard. "

Thor listened to Heimdall's story, and the sense of urgency in his heart became stronger and stronger.

He knew that the ambitions of the dark elves were far beyond that. Their goal was the entire universe.

If they are not stopped soon, the entire universe could fall into the reign of darkness.

Thor's eyes became firm and cold, and his heart was filled with determination.

He knew that he couldn't sit back and watch, he had to stand up and protect Asgard and the entire universe.

"We have to stop them,"

Thor's voice was firm and powerful.

"We cannot allow the dark elves' conspiracy to succeed, and we cannot allow the Nine Realms and even the universe to fall into the rule of darkness."

Heimdall looked at Thor, a hint of appreciation flashing in his eyes.

"I'll do whatever I can to help you."

Heimdall said.

"But it's a tough battle and we need to be well prepared."

Thor nodded.

However, now that the situation in Asgard has become like this, it is impossible to find any army.

Thor didn't care and directly called his three warriors of Asgard and Sif.

According to Heimdall's observations, the dark elves are actively preparing a huge fleet with the intention of fighting against Asgard.

Their actions were quick and decisive, and they had robbed dozens of spaceships in a short period of time, becoming new predators and growing in strength like a snowball.

Faced with this situation, Heimdall was deeply worried because he knew that once the Dark Elves' fleet was formed, Asgard would face an unprecedented threat.

However, what makes Heimdall even more troublesome is that Malekith seems to have anticipated his surveillance.

He cleverly used the power of ether particles to cover his whereabouts so that Heimdall could not spy on their true situation.

This situation made Heimdall feel powerless. He could not determine the movements of the dark elves at the moment, nor could he predict their next move.

Despite this, Heimdall did not give up.

He knew that although the dark elves were cunning, they also had their weaknesses.

He began to carefully analyze the movement patterns of the dark elves, trying to find their weaknesses.

He discovered that no matter how dark elves hide, they always need a territory of their own to operate their power. Therefore, Heimdall deduced that the Dark Elves had probably established their own base somewhere.

They would never have thought that the dark elves had returned to their hometown.

Watt Alheim!

Watt Alheim is a place full of mystery. Legend has it that the dark elves were born from the initial darkness of the universe.

Because they live underground all year round, their bodies gradually become snow-white, and their body hair is as white and flawless as snowflakes.

They have a unique appearance, with pointed ears unique to elves, and a pair of blue eyes in the deep-set eye sockets, which seem to be able to see everything.

The Dark Elf army warriors are also quite powerful. Each of them is equipped with a laser gun that emits a red laser, as well as a shield and a knife for close combat.

This configuration makes them very powerful in combat, and they can handle both long-range attacks and melee combat with ease. Moreover, dark elves may also possess magical power, which makes their strength even more important.

Malekith chose to return to Vat Alheim because his fusion with the ether particles gave him unprecedented power.

He discovered that ether particles not only possess powerful energy, but can also modify reality.

This gave him hope of reviving the Dark Elves.

That is to raise the dead!

Malekith discovered the ability of ether particles to modify reality.

He didn't trust those cannon fodder and looters, but the number of dark elves was too few.

The current dark elves don't even have four figures, how can they take the lead?

"Come back!"

Malekith's voice echoes like an ancient spell in the heart of Vat Alheim.

His voice was deep and majestic, as if it contained some kind of magic power, making the entire space tremble. His eyes were like a torch, staring straight ahead, as if summoning something.

As his voice fell, a bright red energy began to spread from his body. This energy was like liquid flame, hot and dazzling, and instantly covered the surrounding ground and sky.

It was like a huge red ripple, spreading outward until it covered the entire Watt Alheim.

Under the influence of this energy, the land of Watt Alheim began to tremble, as if some powerful force was awakening. The cracks on the ground continued to expand, as if to swallow everything.

The sky also became dim, and the clouds were thick and low, as if foreshadowing the coming storm.

Thousands of years, for the dark elves, is a long and tragic history. They once prospered, but eventually perished because of the power of ether particles.

Today, the former dark elf warriors have died without a slag left, but the magic of ether particles is that it is not restricted by time and space, and can travel through time and space to bring back the lost life.

Those dark elf warriors who once died began to stand up again under the call of this energy. Their bodies gradually became whole, and the wounds they had once suffered began to heal.

Their eyes shone with determination, as if they had forgotten the pain and sorrow they had once experienced. At this moment, they seemed to have been reborn, and their vitality was revived.

Chapter 562 The trouble-making duo

The Dark Elves are resurrected. Thousands of Dark Elves have returned from thousands of years ago, and the strength of the Dark Elves has returned to its peak!

No, it is stronger than the peak period!

Malekith stood on a towering mountain, overlooking the Dark Elves below.

His eyes flashed with excitement and satisfaction. The return of these Dark Elves made his plan more perfect.

Although maintaining their existence requires a lot of his vitality, Malekith doesn't care about it. For him, the length of life has become irrelevant. He has only one goal-to return the Nine Realms and the universe to darkness.

However, Malekith knows that now is not the best time to act.

The prophecy of the unification of the Nine Realms has not yet been realized. They need to wait, wait for the best time. Only in this way can they succeed in one fell swoop and plunge the entire Nine Realms into eternal darkness.

"Leader."

Algorim walked to Malekith, his eyes full of worry. He knew how much Malekith had paid for this plan, and he was worried that Malekith would not be able to hold on to the end.

Malekith turned to look at Algorim. He knew what this loyal warrior was worried about.

He smiled and said, "Algorim, look, the cursed division formed by the cursed warriors is back too."

He pointed to the ferocious warriors below.

Algorim looked at the cursed warriors and was shocked.

These cursed warriors had died thousands of years ago, but now they are back again. Their eyes were full of dead silence and coldness, as if nothing could stop them from moving forward.

"As long as I am here, you are immortal!"

Malekith continued.

His voice was full of confidence and domineering, as if he was the master of the darkness.

Algorim looked at Malekith and felt awe in his heart.

He knew that what Malekith said was not empty talk. As long as there were ether particles, these dark elves and cursed warriors were indeed immortal. They could be resurrected continuously in battle until the enemy was completely destroyed.

Thor, the god of thunder, took his friends to search for the whereabouts of the dark elves in the universe, completely unaware that they were right under his nose.

Luther felt that he couldn't fight for a while.

He returned to Earth very rarely.

At this time, the Earth was no longer what it used to be.

The Illuminati, a mysterious organization that once manipulated the world behind the scenes, has now stood on the stage in a dignified manner. They are like towering towers, standing in every corner of the world, guarding the peace of this planet.

Their power has penetrated every corner of the earth, whether it is politics, economy or technology, leaving their shadows.

Although they are powerful, they are not invincible.

After all, the crisis of the Saiyan invasion is like the sword of Damocles hanging over your head, and you don't know when it will fall.

Faced with such a threat, Tony Stark, a scientific and technological genius, did not place his hopes on others.

He is conceited and confident, knowing that he can find a way out and deal with the coming storm.

He knows that no matter how powerful the Illuminati is, facing an alien race like the Saiyans, he still needs to rely on his own strength.

This is the nature of Tony Stark. He is conceited and confident, and believes that he can find a way to fight against the Saiyans.

Among the many members of the Illuminati, Steve the Blue Elf is undoubtedly the strongest.

His body has been transformed by the power of Black Caesar, and has surpassed the limits of human beings and become a true super soldier.

However, he is not satisfied with this.

He works hard to train himself every day and constantly improves his strength.

Carol and Hulk became his sparring partners. Although they were often beaten to a mess by Steve, this also allowed them to constantly break through their limits.

However, under this seemingly peaceful appearance, undercurrents are surging and crises are everywhere.

Loki and Ultron, the two hidden beings in the dark, are closely watching the movements of the Saiyans.

They know that the invasion of the Saiyans is inevitable, and their goal is to wait for this moment to come.

Loki does not have a deep understanding of the Saiyans.

She only knows that the Saiyans have strong combat power, but she does not know that they have a more terrifying ability-that is, to recover from the brink of death and reach a higher level of strength.

Therefore, she did not know that after Raditz's near-death recovery, his combat power had soared to an astonishing 6,000, which even exceeded Naba's 4,000 combat power.

If Raditz attacked at this time, I'm afraid no one in the Illuminati would be his opponent.

In Loki's eyes, although Raditz was powerful, he might not be the opponent of all the strong men in the Illuminati.

She valued the invasion of the Saiyans as a whole more, because that would be her chance to show her strength.

She was looking forward to the arrival of that moment, looking forward to being able to shine at that time, and through Raditz, to eliminate the threat of the Saiyans and the Illuminati in one fell swoop, and then she could rule Midgard and become the king of Midgard!

On the other side!

In Ultron's laboratory, the atmosphere was extremely tense.

In stark contrast to Loki's gentleness and harmony, it was full of the sound of steel and electricity colliding, and the tracks of laser beams passing through the darkness.

He, the highly intelligent robot, has been secretly preparing a bold plan - mass production of vibranium cloned Saiyans.

For Ultron, power is always the core of pursuit.

He longs to be strong and to be the one who controls everything in the upcoming unknown crisis.

He carefully selected the cells of the Saiyans, which are full of endless potential and power.

Then, he used his powerful technological power to perfectly fuse these cells with vibranium.

Vibranium, that rare and powerful metal, makes the clones' bodies indestructible and their strength increases exponentially.

Not only that, Ultron also transferred his consciousness to these clones.

He hopes that these clones will not only have the powerful power of the Saiyans, but also inherit his wisdom and thinking.

In this way, he can spread his will to every corner of the earth through these clones.

However, things did not develop as smoothly as Ultron expected.

As time went on, although the bodies of these clones gradually matured, their combat effectiveness never reached the height expected by Ultron.

Although they are powerful, they always seem to be missing something and cannot display the power to destroy everything like Raditz.

Chapter 563 The Coming Invasion

This plunged Ultron into deep confusion.

He stood in the center of the laboratory, looking through the rows of motionless clones, filled with doubts.

He began to wonder if there was a problem with his cloning technology, or if the Saiyan cells were not perfectly integrated with his own technology.

He constantly tried to change the genetic structure of the clones, tried to use different materials to strengthen their bodies, and even tried to use Dr. Zhao Helen's Cradle of Life technology to create more perfect vibranium Saiyans.

However, no matter how hard he tried, the results were always disappointing.

The combat effectiveness of these clones has never been able to break through that bottleneck and reach the heights Ultron expected.

Whenever night falls, Ultron stands alone in the laboratory, surrounded by cold machines and static clones.

He looked at these clones, feeling helpless and disappointed. He began to reflect, had he misunderstood the power of Saiyans from the beginning?

Saiyans, one of the most powerful races in the universe, where does their power come from?

Is it genes, environment, or some other factor? Ultron began to delve into the biological characteristics of Saiyans, trying to find the answer.

"Can't the power of Saiyans be easily copied?"

Ultron said to himself.

He began to wonder if his plan had been wrong from the start.

Is he too confident, thinking that he can control everything with his own technological power?

However, even though his heart was full of confusion and disappointment, Ultron did not give up.

He understands that only by constantly trying and exploring can he find the real answer.

So, he returned to the laboratory again and started a new attempt.

He reanalyzed the Saiyan cell structure, trying to find its secrets.

He carefully observed the subtle changes in each cell and recorded the combination of each gene.

He constantly adjusted the genetic combination of the clones, trying to stimulate the potential in their bodies.

In the process, Ultron conducted in-depth research on Saiyan cells.

Ultron first began to analyze the structure and function of Saiyan cells in detail. He used high-precision microscopes and advanced biotechnology methods to carefully observe and measure each cell.

He sought to find out the differences between Saiyan cells and those of other races, and how these differences affected Saiyans' powerful abilities.

With the deepening of research, Ultron gradually discovered that Saiyan cells have an amazing adaptability.

This kind of cell can evolve and grow rapidly in various environments, allowing Saiyans to quickly adapt to various extreme conditions, thereby exerting superhuman strength.

However, despite Ultron's considerable progress in genetic modification and material enhancement, he found that the clones still seemed unable to fully realize the potential of the Saiyans.

This made him start to wonder if he had missed some key factors?

Ultron began to reflect on his research methods, and he realized that simple genetic modification and material enhancement may not be the key to the problem.

He began to wonder if there was some key environmental factor missing that prevented the clones from growing and evolving like real Saiyans?

In order to verify his conjecture, Ultron began to design various simulated battle scenes, trying to create an environment for the clones similar to the growth of Saiyans.

He took into account the environment of the planet where the Saiyans live, the climatic conditions, and the combat challenges they often face.

Eventually, he decided to try to simulate the gravity environment on the Saiyan planet.

Ultron chose ten times the Earth's gravity as a simulated environment. He hoped to use this extreme condition to stimulate the potential of clones.

At the beginning, these cloned Saiyans all showed obvious symptoms of maladaptation. They staggered under ten times gravity, barely able to stand, let alone fight.

However, Ultron did not give up.

He firmly believed that his guess was correct. As long as the clones were given enough time to adapt to this environment, they would be able to show their Saiyan potential.

So, he continued to carry out experiments and paid close attention to the changes in the clones.

Over time, these clones began to adapt to the environment of ten times gravity.

They no longer stagger as before, but are able to stand steadily on the ground and begin to perform some simple exercises and battles.

Ultron saw hope, and he knew that his conjecture was gradually being verified.

Under the exercise of the gravity environment, the clones' bodies began to undergo amazing changes.

Their muscles become more developed, their bones become harder, and their reaction speed becomes more agile.

Through rigorous testing and observation, Ultron found that their individuals had grown by leaps and bounds.

Their strength, speed and endurance have been greatly improved, far exceeding that of ordinary clones.

Ultron was pleasantly surprised. He didn't know that he had accidentally found another "plug-in" of the Saiyans - that is, the ability to adapt to gravity environments and the speed of growth!

Saiyans can quickly improve their combat effectiveness and physical fitness under the training of gravity environment, which is one of the reasons why they are so powerful.

Over time, the combat effectiveness of these clones began to gradually increase.

Not only do they perform well in simulated battles, they can even show great strength when facing real enemies.

Although they still can't compare with the real Saiyans, their progress is obvious.

Ultron watched these clones grow and evolve in the gravity environment, and his heart was filled with joy and pride.

He knew that his plan was gradually moving towards success, and he began to look forward to creating more powerful clones in the future.

"My Saiyan army!"

Ultron looked excitedly.

Luther didn't expect these two guys to be so capable of making trouble, but the Saiyans mass-produced by Ultron were naturally more difficult to deal with than the genuine Saiyans.

Vibranium strengthened the cells, making them tougher than ordinary Saiyans, equivalent to Broly's iron body per capita.

However, at present, they are in a ten-fold gravity environment, and they have only adapted to the gravity they should have adapted to, so their combat power has not been exaggerated to soar to three digits.

But it is also very powerful. Saiyans with double-digit combat power are all Saiyans at the national level.

"Since you are all ready, it seems unreasonable for the Saiyans not to come."

Luther thinks it's time for the Saiyans to come to Earth.

The Illuminati, Loki, and Ultron, the three forces are all ready.

Chapter 564 The Saiyans are coming!

The Illuminati base is full of high-tech atmosphere.

Tony Stark is now fully devoted to the research and development of his new battle suit.

Since returning from the Martian Empire, Tony knows that the peace of the earth is not eternal.

He uses the Saiyans, Captain Marvel, Steve the Smurf, the Green Hulk, Black Caesar, and the unknown forces of the Martian Empire as imaginary enemies to simulate and test his new battle suit.

He incorporates the characteristics of these enemies into his own design, trying to create a series of anti-"imaginary enemy" battle suits that can deal with various threats.

Enemies emerge in an endless stream and become stronger and stronger. His battle suit must also keep pace with the times and continue to upgrade.

Therefore, he invested a lot of time and energy to try to develop a battle suit that can deal with various powerful enemies.

However, the research process is not smooth sailing.

His new battle suit design was overturned again and again, and started again and again.

Tony found that his research always seemed to be unable to keep up with the speed of enemy renewal.

He tried to install the new element reactor into each vibranium nanorobot, hoping to create the most powerful suit in this way. But unfortunately, he failed.

Although vibranium nanorobots are powerful, they also have their own limits.

When faced with forces beyond their ability to withstand, they may be seriously damaged or even destroyed.

Once attacked by a powerful enemy, these robots can easily be damaged, causing the suit to fail.

This made Tony very frustrated.

He knew that if he wanted to protect the earth from the invasion of alien forces, he must have more powerful weapons and equipment.

And now, his research seems to have reached a bottleneck and can no longer make a breakthrough.

At this time, Tony's heart was full of uneasiness.

He originally planned to trade technology with the Martian Empire to improve his research level.

But when he contacted the Martian Empire again, he found that there was no one there.

Luther and the Martian Empire seemed to disappear overnight.

Where did he go? What happened? Why move?

These questions lingered in Tony's mind.

Captain Marvel also realized the seriousness of the matter.

She began to look for Luther who had moved in the solar system, hoping to find some clues.

However, the Galactic Empire on Venus obviously has extremely high concealment technology, so Captain Marvel found nothing.

"Sir, a UFO was detected in the atmosphere. According to the energy and other data responses, it is consistent with the No. 1 object that the satellite had detected before."

In Tony's laboratory, Jarvis, who was made of vibranium, stood quietly, with a gleam in his eyes, and was obviously analyzing a large amount of data.

His words were full of seriousness, and it was obvious that the situation this time was not simple.

It was said before that Jarvis was created by Tony, but because there was no Mind Stone, it was not Vision, but Jarvis.

Jarvis is Tony's right-hand man. He has undergone several upgrades. Not only does he have a body composed of vibranium nanorobots, but he has also become a "stronger and smarter" strong artificial intelligence.

He can think independently and even become Tony's right-hand man in battle.

Moreover, he has clones from No. 1 to No. 199, forming a powerful legion that can provide strong support at critical moments.

"Subject No. 1?"

Tony's face changed when he heard Jarvis' words.

He quickly pulled himself away from the complicated data and looked at the information provided by Jarvis attentively.

In his mind, the data details captured by the satellite were replayed quickly like a movie.

Every data point and every energy fluctuation were captured and analyzed by him one by one.

His eyes gradually became deep, as if he saw some unknown truth in those numbers and lines.

His face became solemn, and he obviously realized the seriousness of this incident.

"Yes, sir."

Jarvis' voice was calm and objective.

"According to our data analysis, the energy reaction, speed and flight trajectory of this UFO are highly consistent with the records in the database of Object No. 1."

The "Object No. 1" mentioned by Jarvis undoubtedly refers to the Saiyan Raditz, who once posed a huge threat to the earth.

The alien creature with powerful combat power once plunged the earth into panic.

And now, the same energy reaction appears again, what does this mean, it is self-evident.

Tony took a deep breath, and his mood became extremely heavy.

He knew that this time they might be facing an unprecedented challenge.

The Saiyans were extremely powerful, and they seemed to always be able to find the location of the earth, which kept them in a passive state.

Again?

"Is it coming again..."

Tony muttered to himself, and a hint of determination flashed in his eyes.

"This time, I won't let you succeed again."

Although Raditz was arrested, he said before he was arrested that his people would also come!

After that day, Tony has been worried about the invasion of the Saiyans.

It even made Tony develop anxiety.

Especially some time ago, Raditz inexplicably "disappeared" from the cage.

Tony asked Captain Marvel and Jarvis to search the world at that time, but they could not find the missing Saiyan Raditz at all.

He has been worried about when this time bomb will explode somewhere, and for this reason he has forcibly controlled the whole world.

Entering a plot similar to the comics in which the Illuminati rules the world, the only difference is that due to the obstruction of Steve the Smurf and the disapproval of Captain Marvel, in the end the Illuminati only became a secret "controller" instead of "ruler."

Jarvis looked at Tony. He knew Tony's determination and understood the difficulty of this mission. But he did not back down, but strengthened his belief.

He is Tony's assistant and the guardian of the earth. He must face this challenge with Tony.

"Sir, I have activated the global defense system and begun to summon clones No. 1 to 199 to prepare for war."

Jarvis said.

Tony nodded, knowing that Jarvis was fully prepared.

"Notify other people in the Illuminati, and by the way, also send a message to Thor. Although I don't know if he can receive it, it is still a hope..."

Tony spoke.

"Yes, sir."

Jarvis quickly sent the signal.

He quickly stood up and walked to the other side of the laboratory, where his newly developed suit was.

"Anti-imaginary enemy" suit!

Chapter 566 The Saiyans are coming!

The shock wave generated by the explosion spread in space, setting off a strong energy storm.

Although all this happened in silent space, observers on earth could clearly see this scene through images sent back by satellites.

After completing this strike, the Interceptor energy cannon seemed to have exhausted all its power. The light at the muzzle gradually dimmed, and finally calmed down.

Tony was staring nervously at the images and data analysis on the screen.

His heart was filled with uneasiness and expectation, because he knew that the victory or defeat of this battle was related to the safety of the entire earth.

"Did it succeed?"

Tony's voice had a tremor.

He couldn't believe his eyes or his own judgment. He could only rely on data and images to feel the intensity and shock of this battle.

"Sir! High energy reaction detected!"

Jarvis's voice suddenly sounded, breaking the silence.

This is Tony's artificial intelligence assistant and his most trusted companion. Jarvis's analysis ability and reaction speed are top-notch, and its early warning made Tony's heart rise again.

"Energy value...!"

Jarvis continued to report the data, but Tony couldn't listen anymore.

His eyes were fixed on the image on the screen, and he saw a burst of energy suddenly shot out from the explosion!

This energy beam hit his Interceptor Satellite Cannon at an astonishing speed, and then the Interceptor Satellite Cannon was easily reduced to nothing by this energy in an instant, completely gone!

Tony was stunned, he couldn't believe his eyes.

His Interceptor Satellite Cannon was a weapon he designed himself. It was the culmination of his countless efforts and wisdom in protecting the earth.

But now, it has turned into nothingness under the attack of this mysterious energy.

"This...this is impossible!"

Tony muttered.

His heart was filled with doubts and fear. How could a Saiyan do nothing under such an energy attack? ? ?

You know, according to Tony's calculations, the Interceptor satellite cannon can destroy meteorites at the level of dinosaur killers!

However, he didn't have time to think about these issues.

Because Jarvis issued an early warning again: "Sir! Another high-energy reaction has appeared! This time it is aimed at our ground facilities!"

Tony snapped out of his thoughts and knew he had to take action now.

"What's the energy value of that energy beam?"

Tony continued to ask.

Jarvis was silent for a moment, seeming to be conducting more in-depth calculations and analysis.

"According to my calculations, the energy value of that energy beam... cannot be accurately estimated."

There was a hint of surprise and uncertainty in Jarvis's voice.

"Can't estimate?" Tony frowned.

"What's going on?"

"The energy of that energy beam seems to be beyond our measurement range, and its value far exceeds any energy source we know."

Jarvis explained.

"I recommend that we activate emergency defensive measures immediately while continuing to analyze the source and nature of this energy beam."

"Activate all defense facilities!"

Tony gave the order decisively.

"At the same time, increase the intensity of energy collection and analysis. I want to know the details of this energy beam!"

As Tony's order was issued, the entire defense system immediately took action.

Satellites, radars, missile defense systems...all available forces were mobilized to jointly deal with this sudden threat.

Vegeta and Napa didn't expect to be attacked as soon as they got close.

Fortunately, they were thick-skinned and not afraid of attacks, but in space, the Saiyans could not exist for a long time, so they quickly landed on the earth.

Flights that use gas to generate propulsion are very fast.

During the landing process, their bodies had severe friction with the atmosphere.

The flames burned behind them, like a fire dragon writhing in space.

The heat generated by this friction is enough to melt steel, but for the Saiyan, it is only a slight irritation.

Although their skin was burned red, it was not damaged at all, and instead appeared stronger and tougher.

As the distance gets closer, the Earth's gravity begins to act on them.

Their bodies began to accelerate gradually, as if being pulled by an invisible force. Their heartbeats also began to accelerate, and their blood surged in their bodies, as if cheering for their upcoming battle.

Finally, after a long fall, their bodies finally passed through the atmosphere and landed on the surface of the earth.

Their feet stepped heavily on the ground, making a dull sound.

The surrounding air seemed to be shaken by their momentum, causing ripples in circles.

At this moment, Tony was using advanced technological equipment to immediately locate the landing location of the two Saiyans.

He was surprised to find that they had actually landed in America.

The people of America probably didn't expect that the last time the Saiyans came here, they would choose here this time.

"Vegeta, the gravity of this planet is so small, it's like child's play!"

Naba moved his body and said excitedly.

"Humph, that's natural. The gravity of Planet Vegeta is ten times that of Earth, so it's certainly easy for us here. I just didn't expect that Kakarot and Raditz, two rubbish, would be killed by a group of Earthlings here. It's really a disgrace to the Saiyans!"

Vegeta folded his hands and said with disdain.

"Let me see where the powerful warriors on this planet are."

After that, he activated the combat power detector and began to search for powerful warriors on this planet. Soon, his detector made a beeping sound.

"Ding ding ding..."

"6000 combat power!"

"Huh? There's actually a guy with a combat power of 6000?"

Napa said in surprise.

There was a hint of nervousness in his voice.

Before, he thought he would be invincible on this planet, but now it seems that this is not the case.

He thought that the most powerful warrior on this planet was only a combat power of 1,800, after all, he could kill Raditz, or a group of people with a combat power of hundreds of people with a small difference in combat power would beat Raditz.

I didn't expect there was a guy with a combat power of 6,000!

"6,000 combat power?"

Vegeta was also surprised. How could it be possible that this backward planet that couldn't even leave its own star system actually had a guy with a combat power of 6,000?

"How could there be a guy with a combat power of 6,000 on this planet?"

Naba said in confusion, his heart was full of confusion.

If he felt disdainful before, now his forehead was sweating and he felt the pressure.

Chapter 567 The war is about to break out!

"Hmph, it seems that Kakarot and Raditz were killed by this guy."

Vegeta sneered, a cold light flashing in his eyes.

"With 6,000 combat power, no wonder Raditz died."

There was a kind of callousness and cruelty in his words, as if he didn't have much sympathy or regret for Raditz's death.

Nabal also felt that Raditz and Kakarot died unjustly. After all, they had 6000 combat power, and even Nabal, his superior warrior, only had 4000 combat power.

"But it doesn't matter. Although it is a bit unexpected, it is not without a fight."

Nabal took a deep breath and tried to calm down.

"4000 versus 6000, it's not like I have to fight. What's more, I'm still a powerful Saiyan!"

Vegeta nodded too, his eyes sparkling with excitement.

"Humph, it seems that this trip to Earth was not in vain. It is really exciting to meet an opponent with such a powerful fighting force!"

However, in addition to targets with a combat power of up to 6,000, Naba also discovered other targets with strong combat power.

"Combat strength 1500, location nearby."

Naba frowned slightly. He didn't expect that besides the guy with 6000 combat power, there were other people with good combat power.

"Didi didi... combat power 957, combat power 123, combat power 99, combat power 96... combat power 10?"

As the detector continued to make sounds, the expressions of Naba and Vegeta became more and more solemn.

They didn't expect that this seemingly ordinary earth would actually hide so many powerful warriors.

Especially those guys with double-digit combat power. Although they are insignificant, their numbers are astonishing.

And those three-digit and four-digit warriors surprised them even more.

Rocky and Ultron also discovered the Saiyan invasion. Ultron did not invade Tony's system because Tony had found Jarvis. After all, the upgraded Jarvis really had the possibility of killing him. .

But that doesn't mean he can't get information.

Not to mention Luo Ji, the Hydra she controls can now be said to have gone deep into various major countries to monitor the situation.

Rocky, who didn't know that her Raditz had been discovered, looked at the invading Saiyans with great anticipation.

At the same time, a girl in purple tights stood on a high-rise building and looked at Vegeta and Napa curiously.

Her eyes sparkled with curiosity, as if she was full of interest in these two guys.

"Is this a Saiyan? It looks delicious."

The girl licked her lips and said.

Although her words were a little frivolous, there was a powerful aura about her.

Obviously, she is not an ordinary chuunibyou girl.

Vegeta and Napa did not intend to move their positions, because the targets began to gather in the combat power detector.

"The guy with a combat power of 6,000 didn't move."

"Have you been looked down upon?"

Naba and Vegeta laughed angrily when they saw that the one who came to them was not the strongest fighting force.

"It seems that the two losers Kakarot and Raditz made that guy misunderstand the power of us Saiyans!"

Vegeta's words were full of disdain for Kakarot and Raditz.

In their eyes, those two guys are not worth mentioning at all. Their failure and weakness will only make outsiders mistakenly think that Saiyans are a group of weaklings.

Nabal's face was horribly gloomy, his eyes flashing with anger. He could not accept such an insult, nor could he tolerate others' contempt for Saiyans.

"What an arrogant guy!"

He roared, his voice echoing in the air like thunder.

There was a powerful aura exuding from his body, as if it was tearing apart the air around him.

"That guy dares to underestimate us Saiyans! We must let him see how powerful we are!"

The two people's voices echoed in the empty venue, which seemed particularly shocking.

The powerful aura exuded from their bodies made everything around them seem dim.

Tony, Steve, Captain Marvel, Green Hulk, Jarvis and those brave and fearless warriors have gathered together to face the tall and burly giant in front of them - Nabal.

Nabal's body was like a towering mountain, and his muscles were like hard rocks, full of strength. His eyes were cold and sharp, as if he could penetrate all illusions.

Nabal roared so loudly that the surrounding air seemed to freeze.

He took heavy steps, like a furious rhinoceros, and rushed towards Tony and the others. Every step he took seemed to make the earth tremble, and the majestic feeling of power made people's hearts palpitate.

Tony and the others couldn't help but feel a sense of nervousness in their hearts as they watched Nabal's huge body approaching them.

They know that facing such an opponent, they cannot be careless in the slightest.

"Drink!"

Nabal suddenly let out a thunderous roar, clasped his hands together, and then let them go suddenly.

A powerful airflow appeared between his hands. With him as the center, this airflow spurted out, sweeping everything around him like a violent storm.

The pressure in the air suddenly increased, as if an invisible heavy hammer was constantly beating their bodies. Tony and the others felt it was difficult to breathe, as if they were being restrained by an invisible force.

A terrifying momentum swept up from Naba and swept in all directions. His figure looked even taller and more powerful against the backdrop of the momentum, like an invincible god of war.

As Naba's power was continuously released, the ground began to rumble and vibrate. The tiny gravel escaped the gravity under the traction of energy and slowly floated up beside him, forming a strange scene.

Boom!

Naba stepped on the ground with both feet, and the exploding muscles stepped out a deep pit on the ground.

His figure rushed towards the leading Smurf Steve like a cannonball. Steve clearly felt the ground shaking, and his brain worked rapidly, trying to find a countermeasure.

However, Naba's speed was too fast. Before he could come up with any countermeasures, Naba's huge fist had already landed in front of him.

Steve only felt a strong gust of wind blowing in his face, which made his cheek hurt.

He could clearly see the skin texture and bulging blue veins on the fist, as if a moving mountain was pressing towards him.

Steve transformed into the Blue Hulk without saying a word!

"Bang!!!"

Fist to fist!

Smurf Steve's powerful punch was bent by Naba and pressed into the ground!

The ground collapsed instantly, and Steve's pupils shrank. He never expected that the power gap would be so huge!

Chapter 568 Tony is defeated again

Nabar's big fist hit Steve like a meteorite, with a gusty momentum. Before Steve could react, he was hit hard into the ground by this thunderbolt, as if he was going to embed his whole body into the soil. The ground cracked instantly, and gravel splashed everywhere, stirring up a cloud of dust.

"I knew he was unreliable!"

Tony stood aside, watching Steve being smashed into the ground, and couldn't help but complain.

His vibranium nano suit shone with a mysterious luster in the sun, and every inch seemed thick and solid, as if it could withstand all attacks.

However, Tony did not relax his vigilance because he knew that Nabar in front of him was not an easy person.

Tony's suit began to change, and the originally smooth surface suddenly cracked, revealing rows of small and delicate thrusters.

Under Tony's control, these thrusters began to spray energy crazily, pushing Tony's body to rush towards Nabar at an astonishing speed. In the process of instant acceleration, Tony felt as if he had turned into a meteor, streaking through the sky and rushing towards the target.

When Tony's fist came into contact with Naba's face, there was a deafening crash.

However, surprisingly, Naba's face did not change at all, as if Tony's attack was just a tickle to him.

"Such a toy dares to appear in front of your uncle Naba?"

Naba laughed sarcastically, with a contemptuous arc at the corner of his mouth, and his eyes were full of disdain.

He stretched out a big hand and grabbed Tony's neck tightly like a chicken.

Tony's eyes were wide open, and he felt a huge force was ruthlessly squeezing his throat, making it almost impossible for him to breathe.

He struggled, grabbing his hands in the air, trying to find a chance to escape, but Naba's strength was far beyond his imagination. He was like a bird firmly clamped by an iron clamp, unable to move.

Naba's palm seemed like a huge millstone, and the force of every square centimeter reached a terrible level of tons.

He tightened his palm hard, as if he wanted to crush Tony's neck.

Tony's face showed a painful expression, his face was pale, and the veins on his forehead bulged, as if they would burst at any time.

However, at this moment, a cold light flashed.

"Sir!"

Jarvis rushed up, and his hands instantly turned into sharp blades, flashing with cold light.

He slashed at Naba without hesitation, trying to save Tony.

Naba turned his head slightly and avoided Jarvis' attack.

He smiled contemptuously and kicked Jarvis.

This kick was so powerful that it seemed to be able to kick down a small mountain.

Jarvis did not choose to resist this sudden kick.

His nano suit instantly began to perform complex calculations, analyzing the strength and angle of Naba's attack. In a very short time, he made the best response plan.

When Naba's foot was about to kick Jarvis, the structure of Jarvis's suit changed amazingly.

The hit part began to deform rapidly, and the nanorobots rushed to the surroundings like water, leaving a hole.

As a result, Naba's kick was in vain.

However, Naba's reaction speed was also very fast.

When he saw that his kick missed, he immediately adjusted his posture and prepared to attack again. His eyes were fixed on Jarvis, as if he wanted to see through him.

Jarvis took this opportunity to use the rapid movement and reorganization ability of the nanorobots to lock Naba's leg tightly.

These nanorobots wrapped around Naba's legs like countless small snakes, making him unable to move.

Then, Jarvis waved his double swords again, stabbing Naba's body with a sharp gust of wind. His movements were swift and accurate, like an experienced assassin.

Naba felt the restraint on his legs and showed a surprised expression on his face.

He tried to break free from Jarvis's lock, but the power of the nanorobots was far beyond his imagination. He struggled hard, but his legs were as if locked by iron chains and could not move.

Of course, more importantly, the effect of vibranium absorbed his kinetic energy, making Naba unable to break free for a while.

Jarvis's double knives stabbed at Naba like two lightning bolts, so fast that it was dazzling.

"Bang!"

A loud bang sounded, and Jarvis was knocked out by Naba using Tony as a weapon.

His body drew a parabola in the air and hit the wall in the distance heavily.

However, even after such a fierce attack, Jarvis still did not give up.

He struggled to stand up, and a dazzling light emanated from his body. That was the nano suit quickly repairing his body, allowing him to continue fighting.

But even if he was knocked away, Jarvis still left a part of his body to trap Naba.

Naba was just about to use a qigong wave to destroy this part of his body, and at this moment, Captain Marvel also rushed up.

She directly entered the binary state, and her whole body radiated a dazzling light, like a goddess descending to the earth.

She hit Naba hard, and the huge impact force made Naba take a few steps back.

After Naba stabilized his body, he looked at Captain Marvel angrily.

He didn't expect these earthlings to be so difficult to deal with, which made him feel very unhappy. He decided not to hold back and to defeat all of them with all his strength.

So, he took a deep breath, and the strength of his whole body began to surge.

His aura became stronger and stronger, like a volcano about to erupt.

The air around him began to become distorted, as if it could not withstand the powerful force he exuded.

Knowing that they could not be careless in the face of Saiyans, everyone came up with full firepower. Captain Marvel directly entered the binary state, and his combat power soared to four digits, which made Vegeta look surprised.

"Are these guys hiding their combat power?"

At this moment, a green figure suddenly rushed towards Vegeta.

That was the Green Hulk, who was burly, muscular, and exuded a violent aura.

He had no tactics or strategies, and only knew how to fight in the simplest and crudest way.

The Green Hulk rushed towards Vegeta at a very fast speed, as if a green lightning flashed across the sky.

He clenched his fists and hit with all his strength, trying to knock Vegeta to the ground.

However, Vegeta just smiled contemptuously, as if all this was within his expectations.

"Combat power 123, what an ignorant beast."

Vegeta said lightly.

Although his voice was not loud, it was full of confidence and dominance.

"I can't even tell the difference between the enemy and me."

He did not dodge the attack of the Green Hulk, but stood still and easily blocked the attack with one hand.

Chapter 569 The Strange Earth

Green Hulk's eyes flashed with green light, his fists were clenched, and his muscles were tense, as if he wanted to focus all his power on this blow.

Green Hulk took a deep breath and then lunged forward.

His fist was like a hammer, hitting Vegeta hard.

However, when his iron-hard fist collided with Vegeta's solid palm, he immediately felt an indescribable counterattack.

This force was like a violent torrent, instantly breaking through his defenses.

Green Hulk only felt a huge force coming from his fist, as if countless steel needles were piercing his muscles and bones.

He took a few steps back involuntarily, and every step seemed to be stepping on cotton, unable to steady his body.

Green Hulk raised his head, his green eyes full of surprise and disbelief.

His eyes widened, looking at Vegeta in front of him, as if he couldn't believe this fact.

Just then, Vegeta moved.

His figure flashed and instantly appeared in front of Green Hulk.

There was a kind of indifference and killing intent in his eyes, as if he was looking at an insignificant prey.

He punched Green Hulk hard in the chest.

The punch was so powerful that Green Hulk couldn't resist it.

He only felt a huge force coming from his chest, as if he was hit by a heavy hammer. His body instantly flew to the sky, like a fired cannonball.

While flying in the air, Green Hulk's heart was filled with anger and unwillingness.

His green, gamma-ray-radiated blood was thrown in the air, like blooming green flowers.

His chest was almost penetrated by Vegeta's punch, and the severe pain made him almost unable to breathe.

Green Hulk couldn't accept this fact, couldn't accept that he would lose to this Saiyan.

However, he also clearly realized that the strength gap between himself and the two Saiyans was too great.

He recalled his previous battle with Raditz. Although he also lost, he could at least still fight against him.

But now facing Vegeta and Nabal, he had almost no power to fight back.

"Damn, these two Saiyans are much more powerful than Raditz!"

Tony stood up again, thanks to vibranium and the structure that imitated Captain America's shield. Although Captain America's shield was destroyed by Black Caesar, Tony analyzed the internal structure of the shield, plus the recovered scene of Raditz's battle. Serve fragments.

The material in Raditz's battle suit is not found on earth. Tony tried his best to analyze the molecular structure and atomic structure before figuring it out, but it is very strong.

That's why we now have this sturdy "anti-imaginary enemy" suit!

So Tony was not injured just after being used by Nabal to knock Jarvis away. However, Tony, who believed deeply in data analysis, now analyzed a surprising fact based on the data obtained in just a few minutes of fighting.

Napa and Vegeta are much more powerful than Raditz!

Although Tony did not recover Raditz's combat power detector, after all, it was damaged to a size smaller than sand. Even if it was recovered, there would be no way to analyze and reorganize it.

But he also made similar combat effectiveness detection based on his own understanding and data.

It's just that the numbers are very large.

It can only be said that Saiyans are indeed the most dangerous guys.

"Um?"

Vegeta noticed a change in the data on the combat power detector. It was the green beast that he had just knocked out and thought he was dead.

"The combat power has become 300?"

Vegeta couldn't understand the situation.

This was not over yet, a trace of surprise flashed in Nabal's eyes.

He originally thought that Captain Marvel was just powerful, but he didn't expect to have such an ability.

I saw Captain Marvel getting stronger and stronger, and every attack seemed to be injected with new power, as if there was no end.

Especially in the double star state, her abilities have been greatly improved.

Her body seemed to have become a huge energy absorber, constantly absorbing energy from the surrounding environment and then converting it into her own power.

Although this kind of power is not as exaggerated as in the comics, it is enough to put Nabal under pressure.

He no longer dared to be careless and faced Captain Marvel's attack with all his strength.

Steve saw Nabal's predicament and moved quickly to wrap his arms around one of Nabal's arms.

His movements were skillful and decisive, obviously after a long period of training. He used his grappling skills to try to restrict Nabal's movements.

Meanwhile, Captain Marvel is not idle either.

She quickly gathered photon energy, preparing to unleash a fatal blow on Nabal. Her eyes were firm and resolute, as if nothing could stop her determination.

Finally, she released a photon energy blast!

This blow gathered all her power, as if to destroy everything. The photon energy impact rushed towards Naba at an alarming speed, making a deafening roar.

"Rumble, rumble, rumble——"

The entire battlefield seemed to be shaking at this moment.

The photon energy impact hit a distance of thousands of meters, and the coverage area was even more exaggerated.

If Captain Marvel hadn't concentrated his power and Nabal had not withstood most of the photon energy impact, this blow could have hit a distance of tens of thousands of meters.

In the aftermath of the impact, both Nabal and Steve were blown away.

They fell heavily to the ground, leaving different degrees of scars on their bodies.

But even so, they did not give up.

They struggled to stand up.

Steve was okay, after all, he was a Smurf, and he was determined to be indestructible, and he could really be indestructible and powerful if he was extremely powerful.

At first, he couldn't hurt Naba, but now, his combat power has soared to four digits, and he has become a difficult enemy for Naba.

Two four-digit combat powers are fighting, and Naba has to accept various interferences from the outside from time to time.

Naba has realized the danger.

"How is it possible!"

Naba couldn't believe that these earthlings were so weird that they could continuously improve their combat power in battle?

It is not easy to determine the winner in a battle between four-digit combat powers.

Unless the gap is too big, it is possible to kill instantly.

What Captain Marvel hates most is the Saiyans' inexplicable defense. The impact of photon energy is indestructible. Theoretically, there is no matter or energy that can resist it. As a result, the Saiyans really ignore the impact of photon energy.

Although he was injured, it was just a small injury. What's the big deal?

Vegeta can no longer sit back and watch. This earth is too weird.

Chapter 570 Anger is Power

So Vegeta also took action.

In the original plot, Vegeta did not take action because he really felt that the earthlings were nothing special.

And those earthlings were not like the Hulk who could increase his combat power with infinite anger, the Captain Marvel who could absorb energy to increase his combat power, and Steve who could increase his combat power infinitely through his will...

Steve did not rely on any special ability to increase his combat power, but purely on his willpower.

As long as he was given a goal and a height, he could pursue and surpass it with his firm will.

This alternative "50-50" ability is invincible as long as he is not killed by the opponent right at the beginning!

In this case, even if Vegeta was very conceited, he felt the pressure when he saw the rising combat power.

Vegeta was about to take action against Steve or Captain Marvel, and he could see that Naba should have been able to suppress Steve and Captain Marvel.

However, with the joint efforts of Steve and Captain Marvel, coupled with the interference of Tony, Jarvis, Venom and others and the little bugs of the Illuminati, Naba's injuries began to accumulate.

So only one needs to be dealt with, and Napa, who is free, can deal with the others.

But the Hulk rushed back at this time.

It is still stubborn.

"Huh?" Vegeta frowned.

He remembered that his punch just now almost punched the Hulk through, and that kind of injury is fatal to any creature.

So even if the Hulk's combat power soared to 300 points, he didn't care.

However, now the Hulk stood in front of him intact, as if the previous injury had never happened.

Not only that, Vegeta could see that the Hulk's body seemed to have become stronger.

"Like the Namekians, do they have the ability to regenerate?"

Vegeta guessed secretly in his heart.

The Namekians are a kind of creature with strong regenerative ability. As long as part of the body is not completely destroyed, they can recover quickly.

The Hulk in front of him seems to have a similar ability, otherwise it would not be possible for it to continue fighting after being so seriously injured.

Vegeta nodded. For Saiyans, regeneration is not a rare thing.

They have fought in the universe for many years and have seen all kinds of strange creatures and abilities. Just the ability to regenerate, as long as the opponent's body is completely destroyed without leaving any part, the battle can be completely ended.

Thinking of this, Vegeta's eyes became sharper.

He was ready to take action. This time he would not give Green Hulk any chance. He wanted to use his own strength to completely destroy this stubborn opponent.

As Vegeta took action, the atmosphere of the entire battlefield became more tense.

Steve, Captain Marvel and others also felt unprecedented pressure.

They knew that the opponent they faced this time was stronger and more dangerous. However, they did not mean to retreat, but instead aroused their stronger fighting spirit.

Green Hulk had suffered a lot of frustration and great losses. Every failure made him realize more deeply that his power was not invincible.

From the battle with the royal guards of the Martian Empire, to the contest with Black Caesar, to the duel with Raditz, he tried his best every time, but every time he paid a heavy price.

These battles made Hulk understand what it means to be high and deep, and what it means to be beyond the sky and beyond the people.

But Hulk also knows his advantages. After all, he has grown up and has wisdom. Emperor Luther told him before he left that the source of his power is anger, so when he encounters an enemy he can't beat, he only needs to be angry!

Leave everything to his anger, and then!

Every punch is thrown with all his strength!

So, Hulk roared and swung his angry punch at Vegeta.

His fist seemed to carry the power of thunder, whistling towards Vegeta.

Vegeta looked at Hulk's fist whistling, and a hint of coldness flashed in his eyes.

He had no intention of dodging, but instead faced Hulk's fist and punched it.

The two forces met in the air, bursting out amazing energy fluctuations.

For a time, the entire battlefield seemed to be overturned by this force, with smoke and dust rolling and waves of air.

"Boom!" A loud noise was deafening.

Vegeta smashed the Hulk's fist and arm together, blood and flesh flew everywhere, bones splashed.

The power of this punch was enough to shock anyone.

The Hulk roared in pain, and his body swayed and stepped back a few steps.

An angry and unwilling expression appeared on his face. He knew that his opponent was very strong, but he would not give up.

He stared at Vegeta angrily, with an unyielding light flashing in his eyes.

However, he did not fall down, but supported his body with his only remaining hand, staring at Vegeta angrily.

His chest rose and fell violently, and every breath seemed to be roaring with dissatisfaction with fate.

His anger burned in his chest, as if to devour the whole world.

Then Vegeta attacked again.

He flashed and appeared in front of the Hulk in an instant, and then punched the Hulk's chest fiercely.

The Hulk roared and tried his best to resist Vegeta's attack.

However, his strength was so insignificant in front of Vegeta that he was unable to withstand the attack that was like a landslide or tsunami.

"Bang!" With a muffled sound, the Hulk's huge body was knocked out by Vegeta's punch and fell heavily to the ground.

His chest was dented and blood gushed out of his mouth.

His eyes began to become blurred, as if he had lost focus.

Vegeta did not give the Hulk any chance to breathe. He followed closely and kicked the Hulk's head.

The Hulk felt pain and roared for the last time.

However, he could no longer resist Vegeta's attack.

"Bang!" With a loud bang, the Hulk's head was kicked out by Vegeta, and it fell heavily after drawing an arc in the air.

The Hulk's huge body without a head was shaky and finally fell to the ground with a bang, splashing a cloud of dust.

"Hulk!!!"

Steve and the others looked at this scene in disbelief.

Even when facing a terrifying existence like Black Caesar, the Hulk was not killed!

As a result, even his head was knocked off now?

Vegeta did not hold back at all. Even though the Hulk's head had been kicked off by him, Vegeta still released a Qigong wave towards the headless body on the ground.

Tony's nano suit and Jarvis both detected an amazing energy reaction.

"Danger, get out of the way!"

He quickly shouted to Steve and the others.
