

Kryptonian 681

Chapter 681 All Kryptonians awakened!

Kryptonians, a race from a distant galaxy, have a physiological structure that is undoubtedly unique on Earth.

Their bodies are like an efficient and complex energy converter that can directly draw energy from sunlight and convert it into the bioenergy they need.

When Kryptonians are exposed to sunlight, the first thing that is activated is the deepest genetic mechanism in their bodies.

These genes encode sensitivity to sunlight radiation. They are like awakened ancient guardians and begin to guide biochemical reactions in cells.

After receiving sunlight signals, the ribosomes in cells begin to busy synthesize sunlight-like proteins. These proteins are not only key components of cell activities, but also bridges between sunlight and cell functions.

This is a biological mechanism at the cellular level, which can be said to be very exaggerated.

As sunlight-like proteins are delivered to the cell membrane, a series of amazing changes begin.

The phospholipid bilayer, which is the basic structure of the cell membrane, interacts with the proteins and sugars embedded in it to form a dynamic barrier.

Under the stimulation of sunlight, this barrier seems to be injected with electric current, producing a sunlight transmission reaction similar to electric shock. This reaction is quickly transmitted between cells, just like the flow of current in a circuit, efficient and precise.

Next, the organelles, as if activated by electric current, began to efficiently convert energy and transmit information.

In particular, mitochondria, as the "energy factory" of cells, began to accelerate respiration, produce more ATP (adenosine triphosphate), and provide sufficient energy for cells.

At the same time, organelles such as the endoplasmic reticulum and the Golgi apparatus also participated in this process. They worked together to ensure that various substances and information in the cell could be efficiently transmitted and coordinate various biochemical reactions.

In the cytoplasm, the boiling phenomenon of vacuoles is particularly eye-catching.

These vacuoles are filled with various biological molecules and ions. They began to move violently under the stimulation of sunlight, producing a visual effect similar to burning.

The rotation of the electron reaction in the vacuole intensified, and the electron concentration quickly increased by more than ten times.

This super-strong electron movement not only provides a powerful source of energy for cells, but also enables Kryptonian cells to have the ability to control biomagnetic fields.

The electron movement in the cytoplasm is fed back to the entire body, forming a controlled biomagnetic field network, allowing Kryptonians to accurately sense and control the changes in the surrounding magnetic field.

It can also be used to manipulate objects, sense distance and direction, and even generate powerful energy waves.

Whether it is heat vision, freezing breath or steel body, they are all manifestations of this biomagnetic field under different conditions.

When Kryptonians need to release heat, they can adjust the movement of electrons in the biomagnetic field to make the body emit strong light, which is their heat vision ability.

When they need to lower the temperature, they can change the nature of the biomagnetic field to make the body emit cold energy and form freezing breath.

However, all this is just the beginning.

In the body of Kryptonians, the innermost cell nucleus also began to change.

The cell nucleus is the command center of the cell, which stores genetic information and guides the growth and division of cells.

After multiple sunlight feedbacks such as cell membrane, cytoplasm, chlorophyll absorption factor in the cytoplasm, green leaf decomposition fluid, reconstruction fluid, protoplasm, etc., the energy of sunlight finally enters the cell nucleus.

When the energy of sunlight penetrates into the cell nucleus, more amazing changes occur.

In the cell nucleus, the cytoskeleton network channel becomes an important channel for energy and information transmission.

Under the stimulation of sunlight, the cytoskeleton network channels in the cell nucleus begin to become active. They are like high-speed channels that quickly transmit the energy and information of sunlight to every corner of the cell nucleus.

In the cell nucleus, chromosomes are the carriers of genetic information.

They are composed of DNA and protein and carry the entire genetic code of the organism.

Chromosomes begin to separate and the process of cell division is initiated.

In this process, the DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) in the cell nucleus begins to replicate and recombine, providing the necessary genetic information for cell division and differentiation.

When the first cell exposed to the sun successfully divides, this process is like starting a chain reaction.

The cells after division begin to change in different directions in morphology, structure and function. This is the process of cell differentiation.

Cell differentiation is the basis for the development and maturation of organisms.

In Kryptonians, this process is more complex and efficient.

These differentiated cells gradually form different tissues, such as muscle tissue, nerve tissue, epithelial tissue, etc.

These tissues are combined into organs in a certain order, such as the heart, liver, brain, etc. These organs coordinate and cooperate in the body of Kryptonians to form an efficient biological system.

It is this series of biological processes that give Kryptonians a series of superpowers.

For example, their muscle tissue is differentiated into highly developed muscle fibers, which gives them great strength and speed.

At the same time, their nerve tissue is also extremely developed, allowing them to sense weak magnetic field changes and control their own biomagnetic field.

In addition, the liver of Kryptonians can quickly synthesize and decompose various biological molecules, giving them strong healing and adaptability.

The steel body of Kryptonians is because their cells become tougher and stronger under the sunlight.

Their cell walls become as hard as iron and can withstand huge impacts and pressures.

At the same time, their cells also have extremely strong regenerative abilities. Even if the body is severely damaged, it can recover quickly. This is their super healing ability.

In addition to the above superpowers, Kryptonians also have sensory abilities such as super vision and super hearing.

These abilities are also the product of their biomagnetic field and cell structure under the action of sunlight.

Their eyes can see farther and weaker light, while their ears can hear smaller sounds and farther distances.

All this can be said for days and nights, but in fact it only happened in an instant.

General Zod and his men are all military Kryptonians after all, and their adaptability is much stronger than Clark, a naturally born Kryptonian.

Especially General Zod, who did not lose control of his body throughout the whole process. Even if the drastic changes in his senses affected his body's balance, he did not fall down.

So he quickly mastered the new power.

Fiora and his men were more than a beat slower, and it took them half an hour to recover.

Chapter 682: Kryptonians' New Evolutionary Path

"What on earth is going on?"

General Zod's voice echoed in the empty base, full of confusion and puzzlement. He looked at the Kryptonian warriors around him who were also in doubt, and their eyes revealed the same doubts and uneasiness.

They were just ordinary warriors in the universe, but at this moment, they felt that their bodies were undergoing unprecedented changes.

At first, they only noticed that their visual ability had become extremely sharp.

Originally, they needed the help of advanced astronomical telescopes to observe the outer space planets, but now they can clearly see those distant planets with just a glance.

The textures, colors, and even the climate activities on those planets seem to be close at hand and within reach.

They seem to have the ability to penetrate the cosmic dust and interstellar clouds, and can directly peek into the depths of the universe.

Then, their hearing reached an unprecedented height.

The sounds of the entire planet seemed to gather in their ears, whether it was the sound of distant ocean waves, the clamor in the forest, or even the squeezing of rocks deep underground, all came into their ears one by one.

This medium-free hearing allows them to hear any sound without any delay, as if the whole world is under their control. They can even hear the heartbeats of other creatures and feel the rhythm of their lives.

However, what shocked them the most was the surging power in their bodies. This power shocked them so much that it seemed to be able to easily shake the entire planet.

This power was so strong that it seemed to tear their bodies apart.

They felt that the power inside their bodies was constantly expanding and spreading, like a volcano about to erupt, accumulating huge energy.

They tried to wave their fists, but found that the air around them was twisting and vibrating with their movements.

Every breath they took seemed to be causing the air around them to flow, forming invisible storms.

At this moment, they were no longer ordinary warriors, but beings with power beyond ordinary people.

They felt as if their bodies were dominated by this power, and every cell was cheering and boiling.

"This is the special thing about you Kryptonians."

Luther's voice rang in everyone's ears, his voice was calm and mysterious, as if it could penetrate everyone's heart.

Everyone turned their eyes to him, looking forward to his explanation. Luther looked at them with a smile, his eyes gleaming with wisdom.

"When you meet the right star, you can awaken your racial talent, which is a more powerful force than your technology."

Luther's words exploded in everyone's hearts like thunder.

They finally understood that these changes in themselves were not special and uncontrollable mutations caused by different planetary environments, but the racial talents of their Kryptonians.

Before this, they had always been proud of their technology and wisdom, believing that with these, they could gain a foothold in the universe and even surpass other races.

But now, they realized that they might have overlooked a more important factor - that is, their innate racial talent.

This talent can only be awakened when they meet the right star, and the huge yellow star of Terra is the "key" they have been waiting for for a long time.

"So that's it..." General Zod's voice echoed in the empty base, with a bit of relief and emotion.

He has been thinking hard, trying to find the value of Kryptonians in Luther's eyes. Krypton, a planet that was once glorious, has now fallen into such a field, wandering in a foreign land and living under someone else's roof. Their former power and glory seemed to have been forgotten until Luther appeared and rekindled their hope.

General Zod recalled his first meeting with Luther, when he was still wary and suspicious of this mysterious outsider. Luther's interest in them surprised and disturbed him. He was worried that Luther's purpose was to use them instead of really helping them to regain their strength.

However, as time went on, General Zod gradually discovered that Luther was not the kind of person he imagined. He treated the Kryptonians like his own relatives, not only providing them with the resources and technical support they needed, but also pointing out the direction for the future. All this made General Zod begin to believe that Luther really wanted to help them.

And now, he finally understood why Luther valued the Kryptonians-their racial talent. This talent allows them to directly absorb stellar energy and convert it into their own power. In the universe, such an ability is undoubtedly very powerful.

General Zod looked at the Kryptonians in front of him, and their faces showed expressions of shock and excitement. They never thought that their race had such a secret and such power. They had always thought that their armor was the source of their power, but now it seemed that it was just an external aid.

As a representative of the Kryptonians, Fiora was the first to raise her doubts: "Why have we never felt this kind of power in previous battles?" Her voice was full of confusion and puzzlement.

Luther smiled and explained: "This is because of your armor. Although your armor is powerful and can enhance your strength and defense, it also hinders your connection with the energy of the universe. Only when you take off your armor and expose yourself directly to the sun can you have a more direct contact and resonance with the energy of the universe."

Hearing this, Fiora and other Kryptonians suddenly realized. They have always relied too much on the power of the armor and ignored their own potential.

Now they understand that true power does not come from external equipment, but from their own heart and the talent of their race.

Luther continued: "The energy of Terra is very powerful. The stellar energy you absorb here for one minute is much more than the stellar energy Clark absorbs on Earth for a year. Therefore, your current power is far greater than Clark on Earth."

His words made the Kryptonians feel extremely excited. They realized that they had extremely powerful power, and as long as they could use it correctly, they could revive the glory of Krypton.

As for whether the situation of All-Star Superman absorbing too much energy and dying will occur?

Generally speaking, the relationship between Kryptonians and yellow stars is just like that between a power bank and the charged. Just like a mobile phone will not continue to charge once it is fully charged, because the battery has a protection mechanism.

Chapter 683 Kryptonians vs. Universe Emperor Frieza

The bio-force field on the Kryptonians is equivalent to this protection mechanism. This force field is their innate protection mechanism, which can automatically screen and filter out excess stellar energy.

For Kryptonians, this is a vital survival guarantee to ensure that they will not face life threats due to excess energy.

The bio-force field is like their second skin, protecting them from external energy at all times.

When Kryptonians approach a star, their bio-force field will automatically start, like a precise filter, removing harmful substances and excess energy from the energy emitted by the star, leaving only pure energy for them to absorb.

However, in the case of All-Star Superman, we saw a special case.

This powerful Kryptonian warrior encountered the calculation of Baldy Lai when he approached the sun. Baldy Lai is a cunning and powerful enemy who knows the weakness of Kryptonians and cleverly uses this.

He managed to induce All-Star Superman to take the initiative to release his bio-force field, exposing him directly to the energy of the sun.

In this case, his body cannot withstand such a huge energy load, so he will die.

However, this is just an exception.

Under normal circumstances, Kryptonians do not face such a crisis.

Their biological force field is their most solid backing, and they can easily cope with any strong energy shock. Moreover, their cells' ability to absorb and utilize energy is far beyond that of other races.

At the same time, the evolution of Kryptonians is also quietly progressing.

Although their cells have reached saturation, the energy of Terra is too abundant.

This planet is like a huge energy reservoir, continuously providing pure energy to Kryptonians. In this environment, the evolution of Kryptonians also began to accelerate.

Unlike Clark, Clark gradually strengthened his strength through long years and intermittent sun exposure. His process of becoming stronger is stable but relatively slow.

The Kryptonians are different. They are in an environment with sufficient energy and absorb energy every moment. This subtle influence makes their evolution speed far exceed Clark.

Luther stood on the edge of the Kryptonian base, looking at the busy figures of Kryptonians in the distance.

A bold idea was gradually taking shape in his mind. It was an unprecedented plan - to introduce the Kryptonians into Frieza's universe and let them fight a life-and-death battle with the powerful cosmic emperor.

This idea repeatedly circled in Luther's mind. He imagined the upcoming battle. What kind of battle would it be?

Is it a fierce battle with flames rising to the sky, or a contest of wisdom and strength?

With Luther's super brain, this imagination can even be said to predict the future.

He has a huge amount of information and intelligence, which includes not only Frieza's situation, but also the strength and potential of the Kryptonians.

He can play hundreds of millions of possibilities in his brain in real time, and each possibility is like an independent universe, unfolding in his mind.

However, Luther knew that this was just an imagination, and the real battle still needed to be carried out in reality. He longed to see the real scene of this battle, and the feeling of blood boiling made him excited.

It would be too boring to just "watch" the movie in his mind. What he longed for was real excitement and challenge, not empty fantasy.

Anyway, General Zod and his men have been fooled by him. It is not impossible for Luther to tell them to complete the task of annihilating the cosmic emperor Frieza. After all, they don't know that they have gone to other universes. They will only think that they have been teleported to other places in the Milky Way by Luther.

Luther has already determined that they have no ability to observe the Milky Way and have no way to confirm their position and coordinates through his behavior of finding life planets for them.

It is really suitable for fooling.

Of course, in this process, Luther also needs to consider some details.

For example, how to ensure that the Kryptonians don't know that they have been teleported to other universes?

How to ensure that they can quickly adapt to the environment there after arriving in Frieza's universe?

How to ensure that they can exert their greatest strength in battle?

"General Zod."

Luther found General Zod who was busy.

"Master Supervisor."

General Zod immediately replied respectfully.

"Be prepared, there will be a war that you need to fight soon."

Luther said calmly.

Luther planned to let the Kryptonians prepare first, and he couldn't suddenly drag them to fight, otherwise they would probably be unprepared.

General Zod was slightly startled. He didn't expect that they would be needed to provide services so soon.

However, as the leader of the Kryptonians, he naturally understood his responsibilities.

He nodded and said in a deep voice: "We are ready and will obey your orders at any time."

"What kind of enemy is it?"

General Zod asked.

The Kryptonians will naturally not break their promise, otherwise, who knows what price the galactic supervisor will make them pay?

Even if the Kryptonians have awakened their true power, General Zod does not think they can defeat Luther.

"Fighting an enemy who claims to be the emperor of the universe, a war of annihilation."

Luther said in a deep voice.

"There will probably be very powerful enemies, and it may be a fierce battle for you. You are at an absolute disadvantage in terms of numbers, but your strength may create miracles."

Luther thought for a while and said.

General Zod frowned. What does it mean to be very powerful? Are Kryptonians who have awakened their racial talents and gained true power powerful?

"The leader of the enemy is your target this time-the cosmic emperor Frieza."

Luther continued.

"How powerful is he to us?"

General Zod asked in a deep voice.

Luther was silent for a moment, and then slowly said: "For me, he can be destroyed with a wave of my hand. But for you, it may not be the case. His power is so strong that it is unimaginable. You must be fully prepared. Otherwise, once a mistake is made, it may lead to the destruction of the entire race."

General Zod's heart sank. He did not expect the consequences of this war to be so serious.

But he knew that now was not the time to hesitate. He must lead the Kryptonians to face this challenge bravely.

"I understand, Lord Supervisor."

General Zod said in a deep voice.

"We will be fully prepared to meet this challenge."

Chapter 684 The Prototype of the Justice League

General Zod stood on the podium of the Kryptonian Parliament Hall, his eyes like torches, sweeping over every tribe member present. His voice echoed in the empty hall with unquestionable majesty.

"Fellow countrymen!" He spoke, his voice loud and firm, "We are about to face an unprecedented challenge. Although we cannot determine the exact start time of the war, we must immediately enter a state of combat readiness."

The atmosphere in the hall became tense in an instant, and all the Kryptonians focused their attention on General Zod, waiting for his further instructions.

"This time the mission is not in our star system, but in other galaxies in the distant Milky Way." General Zod continued, "But we still have to go all out, because we are Kryptonians, we are warriors, and we are fearless!"

Hearing this, many Kryptonians had a gleam in their eyes. They were eager to fight and eager to prove their worth. And General Zod's words undoubtedly gave them great encouragement.

"I know you may be worried."

General Zod's tone softened a little.

"But please believe that we have enough strength and wisdom to deal with all challenges. Moreover, this mission is also an important test for us Kryptonians."

The Kryptonians don't know the situation yet.

"The Lord Supervisor gave us this mission in the hope that we can act as cleaners of the galaxy and protect the peace and stability of the galaxy."

Then General Zod quickly explained.

Hearing this, many Kryptonians showed surprised expressions. They never thought that they would shoulder such a heavy responsibility. But at the same time, they also felt extremely proud and honored.

"I know this mission is not easy."

General Zod continued.

"But as long as we are united, nothing can stop us from moving forward. Let us fight for the glory of Krypton!"

As General Zod's voice fell, thunderous applause and cheers rang out in the hall.

In the following days, General Zod began to organize his people to conduct intensive preparation training.

They not only have to improve their combat skills, but also master and develop their new abilities.

As for the combat range in the Milky Way, they were not surprised. Luther was the Milky Way Supervisor. Isn't this a very normal thing?

Although they didn't know that the Milky Way in the Dragon Ball Universe was a little different from the Milky Way they knew.

As for testing them, it was just a specious reason.

This was to increase persuasiveness. As for the rest, General Zod would make up for it himself.

General Zod has now awakened his super brain, and his thinking ability has been greatly enhanced. When he heard Luther say this, his brain has already started to work.

Cleaner?

It seems that they, the Kryptonians, will have the task of fighting against the invaders of the Milky Way in the future. The so-called cleaner should be this, right?

However, General Zod and his people are naturally very good at this kind of battle. After all, they are all Kryptonians with combat genes.

Luther saw that General Zod and his people began to settle down, and then returned to Earth.

At this moment on Earth, human beings are at an unprecedented crossroads.

The judgment of the Milky Way Supervisor hit people's hearts like a heavy hammer. Those distant and mysterious star fields seemed to become within reach overnight, and full of unknown dangers.

America, the most powerful country on Earth, has been condemned by the world for its improper behavior, but its strong military strength still makes it difficult for other countries to easily move against it.

The helplessness of the Earth comes from the lack of a unified regime. Every country and every nation has its own interests and demands, and it is difficult to form a consistent foreign policy.

Faced with the warnings of the galactic supervisor, the human beings on Earth are even more at a loss.

If one day, alien civilization really comes, whether human beings can unite and jointly resist foreign enemies is still an unknown.

If they really fight, maybe human beings will perish first.

Batman didn't care about what would happen to America. He felt unprecedented pressure at this critical moment.

The plan of the Justice League has begun to be implemented, and superheroes such as Clark and Wonder Woman have joined in.

However, they are not only facing the evil on Earth, but also the unknown threats from the stars. Batman knows that the existing superhero power alone is far from enough to resist the possible alien invasion.

So Batman began to turn his attention to the space field. He announced that Wayne Group would open a space department and invest a lot of money and resources to conduct space exploration and technology research and development.

He hoped that in this way, he could gain more living space for humans on the interstellar stage.

At the same time, Batman also realized that in order to truly resist alien invasion, he needed a powerful ally.

And on this earth, the only person he could think of who could fight alongside him was the mysterious Death.

At the same time, he also planned to have a good talk with the Death, so he asked someone to light his bat lamp again.

However, the Death seemed to have disappeared for more than a month.

In the past month, Batman has been looking for the traces of the Death through various channels, but to no avail.

Catwoman and "Ninja", two people who have had contact with the Grim Reaper, also said that they didn't know where the Grim Reaper had gone. This made Batman very anxious. He knew that time was running out and he couldn't delay any longer.

Batman resumed his daily life of fighting crime, and found that the criminals who had not shown up for a month began to become active again.

That night, Batman had just completed an operation to fight crime.

He drove the Batmobile through the streets of the city.

Suddenly, his headlights illuminated a familiar figure - it was a black cape, and the gold and black armor flashed coldly in the moonlight.

"Grim Reaper!"

Batman exclaimed and braked quickly. He jumped out of the car and walked quickly towards the figure.

"You finally showed up."

Batman said.

"I know you are looking for me."

The voice of the Grim Reaper was low and powerful.

"Yes, I need your help."

Batman said bluntly.

"We are facing unprecedented challenges. Only by uniting together can we overcome the difficulties."

Death was silent for a while, then nodded and said, "I know what you mean. However, I am used to acting alone. However, when necessary, I will appear to help you."

Chapter 685 Talia's Purpose

Just kidding, joining the Justice League means that Batman will have all the information.

Once you join, all your actions and plans will be exposed to Batman's sharp eyes.

Although Luther can easily make false information to deceive Batman, it is too troublesome and he is too lazy to do it.

Moreover, he also hopes to maintain the mystery of the identity of "Death".

Hearing Luther's words, Batman's face showed a complicated expression.

Batman knew that Death was a man who kept his word. Since he had made a promise, he would definitely fulfill it.

He certainly knew the strength and ability of Death, and his importance to Gotham City.

But as a superhero, Batman also has his own principles and bottom line. He hopes to be able to master the intelligence of all superheroes so that he can coordinate their actions when necessary.

However, he also understands that Death is an independent and powerful individual with his own beliefs and pursuits.

"Thank you, Death."

Batman said sincerely.

"I will take Bat's thanks seriously."

Then, he said nothing more and turned and disappeared into the darkness. His figure gradually blurred in the night, and finally turned into an elusive phantom.

Batman stood there, watching Luther's back as he left.

He began to wonder, where did Luther go in this month? What private affairs did he deal with? These questions lingered in his mind.

Although superheroes are also human beings and sometimes need to take a vacation, it's a month.

On the other side of the city, the night slowly fell like a thick black cloth, with street lights flickering and light and shadows mottled. Here is a relatively hidden corner of Gotham City, where an abandoned warehouse has become the secret base of Catwoman Selina and female ninja Talia.

Selina, the mysterious woman who always wears a tight black dress and a cat mask on her face, is sitting in a corner of the warehouse, playing with a small silver weapon in her hand, with a hint of imperceptible anxiety in her eyes.

She looked out the window from time to time, as if waiting for something.

Talia, the female ninja from the Assassin's League, sat quietly in another corner, closing her eyes to rest. Her face was stern, but there was a strange light in her eyes.

She held an exquisite short knife in her hand, and the blade flashed with cold light, as if ready to be unsheathed at any time.

Just then, a slight sound of footsteps broke the silence of the warehouse.

The two looked up at the same time, and saw a man wearing a black cloak and gold and black armor and a mask walked into the warehouse.

"Death, where have you been? We thought something happened to you!"

Selina couldn't help asking. Her voice was full of concern and worry. She felt tortured by the wait during this period.

She thought that something had happened to the Death.

Since the disappearance of the Death, the criminals in Gotham City have become active again. They seem to think that without the threat of the Death, they can do evil without scruples.

Not to mention Talia, who always has some ulterior motives and is worried that the Death will never come back.

After a month of worrying about gains and losses, and seeing the god of death again, Talia has decided that she can't wait any longer!

"I just went to do some personal things."

He said lightly.

"What? Can't I have time to rest?"

He asked back, with a hint of ridicule in his tone.

"Of course not!"

Selina explained quickly.

"We are just worried about your safety."

Her voice revealed an indescribable emotion, both worry about Luther and joy for his return.

Talia also opened her eyes, her eyes stayed on Luther for a moment, and then said lightly: "You are back."

Although there was not much emotional fluctuation in her tone, the light in her eyes was brighter than before.

"Yeah."

Luther nodded, and then waved to the two.

"Let me check your efforts during this period without saying anything else."

Selina and Talia looked at each other, and then launched the attack at the same time. Selina was as agile as a cat. Her movements were flexible and swift. Her body seemed to be as soft as a cat, and she could perform various difficult movements.

Her ten fingernails were as sharp as blades, turning into sharp claws, drawing silver tracks in the air.

However, Luther did not choose to take Selina's attack head-on. He knew that his defense was enough to withstand any attack, so he wanted to test Selina's attack speed and skills.

He flashed and easily dodged Selina's attack, then turned and came behind her.

"The speed is good, but the skills need to be improved."

Luther said lightly, then stretched out a hand and gently grabbed Selina's arm.

Selina was startled and wanted to break free, but found that her arm seemed to be clamped by an iron clamp and could not move.

At this moment, Talia also launched an attack.

She flashed and instantly came behind Luther, and the dagger in her hand turned into a cold light and pierced Luther's vest.

The two of them hadn't done nothing in the past month. They had become very skilled in cooperating with each other. After all, they were facing even crazier gangsters, and everyone had a gun.

If they weren't careful, they would die.

However, Luther seemed to have eyes behind him, and dodged Talia's attack with a sideways movement.

"Good cooperation."

Luther nodded in appreciation, and then moved to Talia. He stretched out a hand, gently grasped Talia's knife handle, and then pulled it hard, and took the dagger from Talia's hand.

"Your strength needs to be strengthened."

Luther looked at Talia and said, then returned the dagger to her.

Talia took the dagger, and a trace of unwillingness flashed in her eyes.

She knew that there was still a big gap between her and Luther, but this also strengthened her determination to achieve that goal.

After fighting with them for thirty minutes, both women became sweaty.

Thirty minutes of high-intensity exercise, even people who have been trained for a long time do not have such good physical strength.

Talia looked at Luther, who did not even have a drop of sweat, and quietly began her preparations.

She first opened the aromatherapy type anesthetic that she had prepared for a long time.

Then Talia nervously poured Luther a glass of wine. She had already "shown" her love for cocktails a long time ago, so this was not abrupt.

There was also a small bar in their base.

Chapter 686 The two who succeeded knew they were in the wrong

Talia walked lightly with her signature charming smile on her face, slowly approaching Luther who was sitting in the corner.

On the silver tray in her hand, two exquisite cocktails shone brightly under the light, one of which was specially made for Luther.

This cocktail was the recipe she finally determined after countless attempts and improvements.

She chose the highest-proof spirits as the base wine, added a variety of rare fruit juices and syrups, and after careful stirring and filtering, finally presented this cocktail with attractive color and unique taste.

However, behind this glass of wine, there is an unknown secret.

"Death, try the wine I made for you."

Talia's voice was as pleasant as a nightingale, with a hint of imperceptible temptation. She leaned forward slightly and handed a glass of wine on the tray to Luther.

Luther raised his head slightly, and his eyes stayed on Talia's face for a moment. He saw the expectation and nervousness in her eyes, and also felt the faint fragrance emanating from her body.

He took the wine glass and took a sip gently. The wine spread in his mouth, sweet but not greasy, with a hint of alcohol stimulation, as if it could ignite the fire in his heart.

He was relieved that this was not the kind of inferior sleeping pills with only a drop of wine in them.

Otherwise, Luther would still be a little unwilling to pour on such inferior products.

A special drug had been added to this glass of wine by Talia. This was a mixture of animal sleeping pills and aphrodisiacs that she had recently developed.

The combination of these two drugs will produce a strong hypnotic effect, which will make people fall into a deep sleep, and at the same time will trigger an inexplicable desire.

This drug will have a strong hypnotic effect on ordinary humans, making people fall into a deep sleep; and on superhumans, because their body's metabolic capacity is much stronger than that of ordinary people, a larger dose is required to produce the same effect.

Talia had already considered this when she prepared this glass of wine. She deliberately increased the dosage of the drug to ensure that Luther could be successfully knocked unconscious. At the same time, she also prepared a special antidote to prevent herself from being affected by the drug.

Talia watched Luther drink the whole glass of wine, and her heartbeat accelerated a bit. Success or failure depends on this move, she must make sure everything is safe.

"Why did Selina fall asleep?"

Luther suddenly asked, his eyes turned to the other corner of the bar.

Talia's heart suddenly tightened, and she almost couldn't control her emotions.

Catwoman was naturally fascinated by the incense, and now she was sleeping very deeply without any defense.

"Maybe she is too tired, it's like this usually."

Talia tried to make her voice sound calmer.

Luther nodded and said nothing more. He continued to taste the wine in the glass, and didn't seem to notice anything unusual.

Talia breathed a sigh of relief, she knew she had to act now. She turned and walked to the bar, ready to pour another glass of wine for Luther.

At the same time, she quietly took an antidote to prevent herself from being affected by the drug.

She stuffed two pills into her nasal cavity, which were used to isolate the incense. She had to keep a clear mind to deal with everything that might happen next.

When Talia returned to Luther again, she found that Luther's eyes had begun to become blurred. She knew that the drug had begun to take effect.

"Have another drink, Death."

Talia said with a smile, handing the wine glass in her hand to Luther.

Luther took the wine glass and drank it without hesitation.

His movements became a little slow, and his eyes became more and more blurred. After a while, he fell on the sofa and fell into a deep sleep.

Talia was happy, she knew that her plan had succeeded.

She gently patted Luther's cheek to confirm that he had completely lost consciousness.

"Finally succeeded."

Talia did not dare to stop the aromatherapy. She was worried that Luther's metabolic function was beyond her expectations. In that case, he might wake up halfway.

She carefully took off the mask of the Death. Fortunately, it was not a bad look. In that case, Talia would probably feel a little nauseous.

"You are mine, Death."

Talia couldn't help but kiss him.

Such a powerful and charming guy made Talia's heart surge.

It is impossible to say that Talia has no good feelings for the god of death, not to mention that she is tormented and longing for what she wants.

This made Talia almost unable to control her emotions. Fortunately, she succeeded.

Next, Talia began the long journey of empty hands, taking things from the bag, sucking and licking to learn.

In order to ensure the effect, Talia entangled for a long time.

Until she was exhausted and the water supply in Chimelong Happy Valley was cut off, she stopped.

However, when Talia was resting and preparing to leave with a full bag of fine silver jewelry, her neck hurt and she was knocked unconscious from behind.

Catwoman Selina's eyes were as big as copper bells, and the aromatherapy could not last too long. After all, this battle lasted too long, so long that Catwoman regained consciousness.

"Asshole, you actually used such a bad method!"

Catwoman naturally has a good impression of the Grim Reaper, and it can even be said that her favorability has been maxed out, but she is also unable to get what she wants. The Grim Reaper treats her like raising a pet cat. You can pet the cat, but there is no deeper or further thought.

Now that she saw that Talia had succeeded with her despicable means, Catwoman felt so uncomfortable.

However, after knocking Talia unconscious, Selina looked at Luther.

"Mr. Death..."

Selina couldn't help but lie on him, like a clinging cat.

Luther kept letting them toss and turn until Catwoman couldn't stand it anymore, and he woke up.

At this time, Talia also woke up. After all, she was from the Assassin's League and had been trained to stun, that is, to resist this kind of stun.

But Catwoman is not an ordinary person. She almost broke Talia's neck that time.

That's why Talia was unconscious for so long.

"Who can tell me what happened?"

Luther was naked, but he was the most imposing one, because he was justified!

On the contrary, Talia and Selina were humble and lacked confidence.

After all, they were in the wrong. Even if according to modern society, it should be the women who suffered, but this is America, where gender equality is emphasized!

Naturally, there is no such thing as women being at a disadvantage and men taking advantage.

"I will take responsibility!"

Selina said seriously, and then she was hit on the head by Luther.

"Ah!"

Selina cried out in pain and covered her head.

Chapter 687 Parallax Monster

"Is it enough to just say you will be responsible?"

Luther said coldly.

Selina didn't know what to say.

"Changing the perspective, if a stranger did this to you, would you forgive him and stay with him because he said he was responsible?"

Luther asked Selina to put herself in her shoes.

Talia rubbed her neck that was hurt by Selina. After hearing what Luther said, she didn't know what to say for a moment.

They were indeed acting against Luther's own wishes.

Luther had no problem pointing fingers at them from a moral high point.

Thalia's mentality has changed. Before she succeeded, she just wanted to give birth to a powerful offspring with Luther. Now, Thalia wants more than just a child.

She wanted the father of her child.

"Death, I know this is all my fault, but I love you so much."

Thalia then said to Luther.

"Then after you were fucked like this by another man and he said this to you, you would forgive him, right?"

Luther said coldly.

Thalia was speechless, how could it be possible, she was afraid she would kill that man.

But Talia quickly thought of a solution. As long as she was pregnant with Luther's child, she wouldn't need to worry about this problem. For the sake of the child, Luther would definitely be willing to be with her.

Now the God of Death can't accept this. It's normal. Thalia plans to give Luther time to calm down.

Selina wanted to say something else, but was pulled away by Thalia.

It's not a good thing to continue irritating Luther. It's better to let him calm down.

Luther watched the two people leave.

"By the way, Damian is gone now, right?"

Although Luther would not really let Talia get pregnant with his child, if he really wanted a child, it would definitely be Qilin and the others.

He is just playing now.

Thalia seems to have fallen in love with him, so she probably won't go to charm Batman for another plot.

So Damian's fate has been changed. Unless Batman and Harley Quinn or Poison Ivy give birth to Damian, otherwise, Damian will not be born.

However, anything can happen in the DC Universe, and there is no guarantee on this.

"Thalia, what should we do?"

Selina had no idea for a moment.

Catwoman hasn't grown up yet, and she hasn't had the experiences she had before.

When encountering something like this, I naturally lose my sense of proportion and have no idea what to do.

"Let Death calm down for a while, or wait until we are all pregnant with his child."

Thalia looked at Selina, she originally planned to kill Selina, but now she changed her mind.

"Is this really okay?"

After hearing Thalia's words, Selina said suspiciously, looking at Luther's appearance, it seemed that he did not intend to continue to interact with them.

"Don't worry, as long as you are a responsible man, you will not neglect two unborn children. Also, we are so beautiful, how can he resist?"

Thalia was convincing Selina as well as herself.

Otherwise, can we say that she is not sure?

Selina was a little skeptical, but there was no better way now.

However, Thalia herself soon couldn't hold it any longer, because she found that she had been testing for a while, but there were no results.

Obviously not pregnant.

The same goes for Selina.

You've done it so many times and asked for so many things, but you're not pregnant?

Thalia was puzzled, and then a possibility occurred to her.

Could it be that it is more difficult to conceive a transhuman, or is there already reproductive isolation?

Thalia felt like all her thoughts were gone when she thought about this possibility.

If she wasn't pregnant, how could she be with this cold guy like Death?

Luther was not idle during this time. Thalia and Selina wanted to calm him down, so Luther simply left Gotham City.

Seaside City, this bustling city located under the bright starry sky, is famous for its unique seaside scenery and highly developed technology.

On this land, the future Green Lantern Hal Jordan is quietly cultivating. He wears a green suit and holds an energy ring that emits a dazzling green light. He is an intern in the Green Lantern Corps.

Although he is still just a fledgling young man, he cherishes the dream of protecting the peace of the universe and looks forward to one day becoming a hero in the universe like the legendary Green Lanterns.

However, a twist of fate caused Hal Jordan to encounter an unprecedented enemy at this challenging moment - the Parallax Monster.

Parallax, this name was mentioned countless times in Green Lantern's preschool education. It is one of the most terrifying creatures in the universe, condensed from endless fear.

Its appearance is strange and terrifying, like a demon from the abyss, which is daunting. Its body is made of black material, occasionally flashing yellow light, as if the flame of fear is burning.

The power of Parallax Monster is extremely powerful. It can manipulate the inner fear of creatures, trigger their violent behavior, and then provide itself with a steady stream of energy.

Its appearance undoubtedly brings a huge threat to the universe. And Hal Jordan, the young Green Lantern intern, had to face this powerful enemy.

Hal Jordan felt unprecedented pressure. He knew that he was just a rookie who had just stepped out of the novice village. Facing such a full-level BOSS-like existence, he had almost no chance of winning.

However, he did not back down. Because he knew that as an intern of Green Lantern, he was responsible for protecting the peace of the universe. He could not let the people he loved and the world fall into danger.

Hal Jordan decided to ask for help from Oa Star. Oa Star is the headquarters of the Green Lantern Corps, with powerful technology and combat power. However, his request was rejected by Sinestro.

Sinestro is one of the commanders of the Green Lantern Corps, and he knows the horror of Parallax Monster.

He told Hal Jordan that Parallax Monster is a creature born in terror, and any intelligent creature has a terrifying emotion, and conventional means cannot kill it at all. He suggested that Hal Jordan give up resistance and let Parallax Monster leave on its own.

However, Hal Jordan could not accept this suggestion. He knew that if Parallax Monster continued to grow, it would bring disaster to the entire universe.

He could not watch his world and his loved ones fall into danger. So, he decided to stand up and fight against the parallax monster alone.

The reason why Luther appeared was, of course, to build up the image of the Galaxy Supervisor.

Chapter 688 The Parallax Monster Arrives

The famous Green Lantern Corps is helpless with the Parallax Monster. They can only watch the Parallax Monster grow stronger and sacrifice other civilizations to buy time.

The Galactic Supervisor does not need to do this and can directly deal with the Parallax Monster. With this comparison, does the Galactic Supervisor have a higher status?

So, this is also the reason why Luther will appear. He wants to brush up the status and identity of the Galactic Supervisor.

In the vast universe, a huge shadow quietly crossed the low-Earth orbit, like a silent giant beast, quietly moving towards the American Empire California Seaside City on Earth.

This shadow is not an ordinary celestial body, but a cosmic creature named "Parallax Monster" by the Green Lantern Corps.

The body of the Parallax Monster is huge, like a dark mountain floating in the universe.

Its skin is a deep black color, and the surface is full of pits and depressions, like an ancient relic eroded by time.

The most eye-catching thing is its pair of yellow lantern eyes, which flash a cold light in the dark, like two huge stars, exuding a palpating pressure.

The parallax monster moved slowly, its tentacles like huge vines, stretching out in the universe, exploring the road ahead.

Although its speed was not fast, every step was full of power, as if the entire universe was trembling with its pace.

Its target was clear - Seaside City.

This city on the west coast of America is Hal Jordan's hometown, but at this moment, this quiet city is about to face an unprecedented disaster.

The parallax monster stared at its yellow lantern eyes, with greed and cruelty flashing in its eyes.

It seemed to have seen the prosperity and beauty of Seaside City and the scenes of those innocent people struggling in fear.

It couldn't wait to make this city its first target for invading the earth, and wanted to use the fear and despair of the people here to replenish its energy.

Just as the parallax monster was about to descend, the defense system on the earth, which had been prepared for a long time, also discovered its traces.

In a secret military base located in the earth's orbit, three special nuclear warheads were carefully prepared.

These nuclear warheads are different from conventional weapons. They are specially designed to adapt to the outer space environment and can release the greatest power in the vacuum.

As the roar of the rocket engine sounded, the three nuclear warheads were like arrows from a string, cutting through the sky and rushing towards the location of the parallax monster.

They were so fast that they seemed to be able to travel through time and space, conveying the hope and determination of mankind to everyone who witnessed this spectacular scene.

However, releasing nuclear bombs in outer space is not a simple matter.

In the vast universe, the vacuum is like a dead ocean, swallowing all sounds and waves.

Experts on Earth know that the power of nuclear bombs in a vacuum will be greatly reduced.

Shock waves and mushroom clouds, these terrifying phenomena on Earth, are useless in the universe.

Because there is no air as a medium, shock waves cannot propagate, and mushroom clouds have lost the conditions for formation.

The heat energy released when a nuclear bomb explodes will spread rapidly in a vacuum at the speed of light, just like dropping a drop of ink into the sea, instantly dissipating without a trace.

However, humans have not given up.

They understood that although nuclear bombs could not produce the traditional explosion effect in a vacuum, the heat and light they released could still cause some damage to the parallax monster.

Especially those high-energy rays, such as gamma rays and X-rays, which are not affected by air and can penetrate the universe, becoming a weapon for humans to fight against the parallax monster.

As the nuclear warheads flew closer and closer, the huge body of the parallax monster gradually became clearer.

It seemed to be a huge creature floating in the universe, covered with tentacles and mouthparts, each of which was as deep as a black hole, swallowing everything around it.

Its body exuded a strange purple light, as if it was a demon crawling out of hell.

However, at this critical moment, the huge and strange body of the parallax monster suddenly moved.

Its huge tentacles squirmed slightly in the vacuum of the universe, like living snakes looking for prey, and finally they aimed at the three nuclear warheads floating quietly in front.

Then, the hideous mouthparts expanded like petals, revealing a complex structure with a faint glow inside.

Then, a golden energy beam gushed out from the center of the parallax monster's mouth. This beam of light was like a golden torrent, carrying the momentum of destroying the world, and rushed straight towards the three nuclear warheads.

In the dark deep space, this golden light was extremely dazzling, instantly illuminating everything around, swallowing up the original deep darkness.

Under the illumination of this light, the nuclear warheads seemed to be fixed. They stagnated in the air for a moment, and then suddenly exploded.

However, because it exploded in a vacuum, the power of the nuclear bomb did not cause as much damage as people imagined.

They just released bright lights and strong radiation, which flashed in the universe and then quickly dissipated, as if it was just a short fireworks show.

The parallax monster seemed to have anticipated all this, and it did not retreat because of the explosion of the nuclear bomb. Instead, it continued to eject golden energy beams, clearing away the obstacles in front of it one by one.

These obstacles may be meteorites, asteroids, or other unknown celestial bodies in the universe. In the face of the powerful force of the parallax monster, they had no power to fight back, and soon a wide and straight passage was cleared.

The speed of the parallax monster's movement instantly accelerated. It was like a burning meteorite, carrying a long tail, whistling and falling towards the surface.

Its size was gradually increasing, and its light was becoming more and more dazzling, as if it was going to swallow up the entire city. The people of the coastal city began to feel unprecedented fear and despair.

They looked up at the sky and saw a huge fireball approaching the ground rapidly. The volume of this fireball was larger than any celestial body they had ever seen, and its light was more dazzling than any star.

It rushed towards this innocent city with a breath of destruction.

On the streets of the city, people ran in panic, trying to escape from this place that was about to be destroyed. They screamed and shouted, and their voices were full of fear and despair.

However, the speed of the parallax monster was too fast, and they could not escape at all. Fear spread among the crowd like a plague, and everyone's heart was filled with despair and powerlessness.

Chapter 689: Green Lantern in Green

This fear is not only the fear of death, but also the fear of unknown forces.

They don't understand why this monster appears here, nor do they know why it wants to destroy the city. They can only helplessly wait for the arrival of fate.

Suddenly, a green figure appeared in people's sight like a ghost. He was wearing a green battle suit and his eyes were shining with a firm light. It was Hal, the Green Lantern.

Hal stood on the edge of the high-rise building, looking at the raging parallax monster in the distance. The huge body of the parallax monster almost covered the sky and the sun, and countless tentacles were waving in the air, spewing destructive energy rays.

The city's buildings were crumbling under the attack of the parallax monster, and people on the streets fled in panic.

Hal took a deep breath. He knew that he had to stop the parallax monster, otherwise the city would be reduced to ruins. He closed his eyes and began to concentrate his will and strength.

His heartbeat began to accelerate, blood boiled in his blood vessels, and a powerful force surged in his body.

When he opened his eyes again, his eyes were full of firm light. He held up the green lantern ring and poured his will and strength into it.

The ring began to emit a dazzling green light, which condensed into a powerful energy wave in the air, rushing towards the parallax monster like a green dragon.

The energy wave collided with the energy beam of the parallax monster in the air, making a deafening explosion.

The explosion seemed to tear the entire universe apart, and the shock wave shattered the surrounding objects. Hal was also blown away, his body drew an arc in the air, and finally stopped after smashing the wall.

He lay in the ruins, groaned a few times, and struggled to stand up. He felt as if his body was torn apart, and the pain was unbearable.

But he did not give up, he knew he could not fall down, he had to protect the city and the earth.

He raised his head and looked at the parallax monster. The monster was standing in the center of the city, its body was huge, like a mountain.

Its body was covered with tentacles, those tentacles were waving in the air, spewing energy rays. Its mouth kept opening its huge mouthparts, making a deafening roar.

The lantern ring, this magical prop, was like Hal's patron saint, accompanying him through countless battles. As long as Hal's will was strong enough, he could use it to create anything he wanted.

He could turn energy into physical objects and manipulate objects in the real world with his spiritual thoughts. He could even change the form of matter and himself, strengthen his spiritual abilities, and derive various superpowers.

But at this moment, facing the parallax monster, Hal felt unprecedented pressure.

The green lantern ring in Hal's hand emitted a faint light, which was the source of his power and his only hope.

He held the ring tightly, feeling the warmth and power from the ring, as if he could draw endless courage from it. However, even with such power, he still felt deep fear.

He knew that the power of the parallax monster was far beyond his imagination. This monster had left the Green Lantern Corps helpless and could only adopt a strategy of sealing and avoidance. Not to mention a human like him who had just become a Green Lantern.

Although Hal has the power of the Green Lantern Ring, he is psychologically at a disadvantage. He has no confidence in defeating the Parallax Monster and only wants to protect the earth from harm.

Hal took a deep breath and tried to calm himself down. He knew that fear is human instinct, but he couldn't let fear control himself.

He must face the Parallax Monster and protect the earth from harm. He closed his eyes and began to imagine himself as one with the power of the Green Lantern Ring.

He imagined himself turning into a green lightning, rushing towards the Parallax Monster at a speed beyond the limit; he imagined himself turning into an indestructible mountain, and no matter how the Parallax Monster attacked, he could not shake him; he imagined himself turning into a blazing flame, burning everything of the Parallax Monster.

However, no matter how he imagined, he could not find a way to defeat the Parallax Monster. He felt as if his imagination was bound by something and could not exert the power he should have.

He began to feel desperate, but he knew he couldn't give up. He had to hold on until he found a way to defeat the Parallax Monster.

With Hal's imagination and power injected, the green lantern ring began to emit a more dazzling light. These lights gathered into a huge green beam in the air, rushing towards the parallax monster like a giant dragon.

The parallax monster seemed to feel this powerful force, and it roared deafeningly and waved its tentacles to meet the beam.

The two powerful forces were like two lightning bolts, cutting through the dark sky and suddenly colliding in the air. The moment the force collided, the whole space seemed to be trembling, and the energy generated by the explosion was like a surging torrent, raging wildly.

On the ground, the city's high-rise buildings collapsed under the shock wave of the explosion and turned into ruins. Pedestrians on the street fled in panic, their screams intertwined with the explosion, forming a doomsday picture.

However, Hal did not retreat. He continued to gather strength and pushed the green beam towards the parallax monster.

"Boom boom boom boom!!!"

The beam collided with the energy on the parallax monster, making a deafening explosion. The whole city seemed to be trembling at this moment, as if it was about to fall apart under the impact of this force.

The Parallax Monster stared with a pair of huge golden eyes, which were full of contempt and disdain. There were countless tentacles coiled around its body, and those tentacles twisted, as if provoking Hal.

And its petal mouthparts made a hoarse cry, which was sharp and piercing, and people couldn't help but feel fear after hearing it.

"A human!"

The Parallax Monster's voice was low and terrifying, as if it came from the depths of hell.

"Human..."

It repeated the word, as if it was savoring the meaning. Then, it suddenly lowered its head and looked directly at Hal with its golden eyes.

"A human became a Green Lantern, you are very good."

The Parallax Monster's voice was full of praise, but that praise made people feel chilling.

"I feel fear in your heart."

The Parallax Monster continued.

"Your strength makes your fear extremely delicious!"

Hal clenched his teeth, he knew he couldn't refute the Parallax Monster's words. His fear of the parallax monster is real, and even though he keeps telling himself to stay calm and brave, he can't completely eliminate this emotion.

Chapter 690 Finally appears

The parallax monster roared, and the sound was as shocking as thunder, as if it was going to overturn the entire city. Its body began to tremble slightly, releasing an invisible pressure, making the air around it heavy.

"Human, fear sprouts above courage, continue to fear me, and then become my food!"

The parallax monster's voice was low and terrifying, and its words were full of contempt and ridicule for humans.

A hideous smile appeared on its face, and its mouth opened like a snake, revealing a scarlet tongue and sharp teeth. Each tooth seemed to be made of fine steel, flashing a cold light.

In its mouth, golden light began to slowly condense, as if these lights were squeezed out from the depths of its body. They twisted and rotated in the air, like golden snakes dancing.

The light became brighter and denser, and finally they gathered into a dazzling energy ball.

The energy ball continued to expand and enlarge under the control of the parallax monster. Its light almost blinded people's eyes, and the power it contained was unimaginable.

The golden light illuminated everything around, making the entire ruins shrouded in a golden ocean.

The surrounding air was distorted by the high temperature of the energy ball, as if pulled by an invisible force. And the ground began to vibrate under the powerful energy, as if foreshadowing the impending disaster.

The parallax monster suddenly opened its mouth and released the energy ball to the ground.

At that moment, the whole world seemed to be still. Then, an extremely dazzling golden shock wave burst out instantly, it was like a golden dragon tumbling in the air, and fell down with an indiscriminate coverage mode!

Wherever the shock wave passed, everything turned into nothingness. Buildings collapsed under the bombardment of the shock wave, as if destroyed by an invisible force.

The streets were torn into ruins, and the once prosperous city was now only left with broken walls and ruins.

Countless people screamed and ran in fear. They tried to escape the disaster, but in front of the power of the parallax monster, they seemed so small and powerless.

In a corner of the city, Green Lantern Hal was struggling to resist the shock wave. He tried his best to stabilize his body, but the force still made him feel overwhelmed.

His body was shaken and seemed to fall at any time. His green lantern ring was constantly flashing, releasing a green energy shield to try to resist the invasion of the shock wave.

However, the power of the energy ball was too strong. It kept hitting Hal's energy shield, making Hal feel dizzy and powerless.

His heartbeat was accelerating, and cold sweat oozed from his forehead. He knew that he couldn't just give up. As a member of the Green Lantern Corps, he had to protect this planet and the people here.

"This... Is this the power of the source of fear?"

Hal exclaimed in his heart. He never thought that such a powerful enemy would appear in front of him, making him unable to withstand even a blow. But he knew that he couldn't be bound by fear.

He took a deep breath and tried to stabilize his emotions.

He closed his eyes and merged his consciousness with the power of the green lantern ring. He felt the energy in the ring surging, as if it were green rivers flowing through his body.

He directed the energy to various parts of his body, strengthening his defense.

However, just as Hal was about to resist the energy ball again, the parallax monster condensed a larger energy ball again.

The energy ball was more dazzling and powerful than before. It drew a dazzling light track in the air and fell again with an indiscriminate coverage pattern.

Hal's eyes widened. He couldn't believe what he saw. But he knew that he had to do his best to resist this attack. He once again concentrated all his strength on the green lantern ring in his hand.

The green lantern ring emitted a more dazzling light, and a more powerful green energy shield formed around his body.

However, the power contained in the energy ball was far from ordinary.

It was like an out-of-control star, rampaging in the universe, ruthlessly destroying everything. When it hit Hal's energy shield again, the invisible barrier was like thin paper, vulnerable to a single blow.

Hal felt an unprecedented pain, as if countless sharp blades were cutting his soul.

He gritted his teeth and tried to keep the shield intact, but he only lasted less than ten seconds before the energy shield scattered like broken glass.

Then, the energy ball crashed into Hal with a thunderous force.

At that moment, the whole world seemed to be lit up. The dazzling light flooded Hal's vision, and the huge impact force blew him away like a cannonball.

Hal's body drew a long arc in the air, like a meteor across the sky.

He felt as if his body was torn apart by countless hands, and the pain almost made him lose consciousness. But even so, he did not give up.

He knew he couldn't just fall down like this.

He struggled to open his eyes and rushed towards the parallax monster with all his strength.

He knew he couldn't confront this monster head-on, but he also knew that if he didn't do this, the entire earth would be in crisis.

Hal rushed to the front of the parallax monster and blocked its sight with his body.

He felt the terrifying aura on the monster's body like a cold blade, but he didn't flinch. He took a deep breath and gave the final command to the green light ring.

"Green light! Please give me power!"

Hal shouted. His voice echoed in the air, full of determination and determination.

Frustratingly, however, Hal's inner fears seem to have rubbed off on the Green Lantern ring.

The magical ring that had given him strength countless times had now become dim. It glowed faintly, like a light bulb about to go out.

"Please!"

Hal shouted anxiously. He felt his hope disappearing little by little. If the ring loses its power at this time, he will no longer be able to fight against the Parallax Monster.

At this moment, a hand gently fell on Hal's shoulder.

He was suddenly startled and looked back, only to see a figure wearing pure white and flawless armor appearing next to him.

The armor had a dreamlike blue luster, as if it was woven from stars picked from the starry sky.

This man has no decorations on his head and has a delicate face, quite similar to that of an Earthling.