Jeremy was flattered and hurriedly walked up. He held Robert's hand with both hands and smiled apologetically, "I've been busy all day and didn't have time to walk around. I haven't recruited any suitable employees. I'm going back to the company now."

Ever since Jeremy knew that Robert was a super-rich man, his manner had completely changed.

Whenever Jeremy's friends asked him about his change, he would reply embarrassedly, "Robert is so rich but still keeps a low profile. I have no right to act proud."

"It seems that you have found some good talents. Congratulations," Robert smiled.

"Robert, you're being humble. If it weren't for you, I would still be messing around. I was so busy today. Do you have time tomorrow? I would like to treat you to a meal. We haven't had a meal together since we graduated," Jeremy said while looking at Robert expectantly.

Robert nodded. "Okay. Call Samuel and others tomorrow. Let's get together. It'll be my treat."

"No, no, no. It'll be my treat. I'll contact you tomorrow, Robert."

"Okay. I'll leave you to your work first. I have something to do. Please excuse me." Robert waved his hand to Jeremy and then walked away.

The young man who tore off Robert's paper today walked to Jeremy. After he saw Jeremy's humble attitude toward Robert, he asked tentatively, "Mr. Walker, do you know that person?"

"He's my college classmate," Jeremy exclaimed proudly, patting his chest. "You have no idea how excellent he is. He is a low-key person. He worked his way through college. Everyone thought that his family was not good, but guess what, he is actually the heir of the Zabinski Group! I'm sure you know Zabinski Group, right? Their market value is billions of dollars! He is now the chairman of Zabinski Group!"

"A market value of billions of dollars. Chairman of Zabinski Group!" Those words echoed in the young man's mind.

The young man who ripped off Robert's paper was beyond stunned.

"Is that man really the chairman of Zabinski Group, a company with a market value of billions of dollars? Did the chairman of Zabinski Group tell me today that he appreciated my talent? What did I do? Not only did I tear off his paper, but I also ridiculed him. I ridiculed the chairman of Zabinski Group, a super-rich man who has billions of dollars. Most importantly, I've missed an excellent opportunity to become the assistant to the chairman of Zabinski Group!" A thousand thoughts flitted through the young man's mind right at this instant.

The young man knew very well what it was like to be an assistant to a chairman with billions of dollars.

The 1,200 dollars monthly salary was just the base pay for his living expenses. If he excelled in the job, he would have prominent prospects ahead of him. If he managed to become the chairman's confidant, he would at least get promoted to general manager of a branch company.

After all, the general managers of many large companies started their jobs as the assistant to the chairman. One could learn the most in this position and have the most chance to gain the trust of the chairman.

He couldn't believe he had let the chance to reach the peak of his life slip from his hand.

The young man stood on the spot, dumbfounded.

Not only had he given up the opportunity to reach the peak of his life, but he had also publicly insulted the chairman of the Zabinski Group.

The young man could still remember what he had said. "So what if you admire me? I can go to whichever company I want."

However, he realized now that no company could provide him with a salary and development prospects comparable to being the assistant to the chairman of Zabinski Group.

The young man felt that he was going crazy! He could feel his heart burning with frustration. It was as if he had torn up a lottery ticket that won 750 thousand dollars.

"No, this position is more than 750 thousand dollars!" the young man shrieked inwardly.

Of course, Robert didn't care what the young man was thinking right now. After a busy day, he went back to Grand Triumphant Hotel and contacted Gilbert and Jacob respectively. After setting a date for the construction with them, Robert threw himself into bed and fell asleep.

Robert didn't remember how long he had not gotten a good sleep.

At ten o'clock in the evening, Sophia practiced presentation in front of a mirror. She didn't remember how many times she had practiced introducing herself, but she always felt that it was not perfect.

Buzz! Sophia's phone had been vibrating on the desk for almost ten minutes.

Sophia had no choice but to answer the phone.

"Sophia, what are you doing? Come out to have fun with us! There are a lot of handsome young boys today." Juliette's voice came from Sophia's phone, and there was a DJ shouting in the background. She was obviously in a pub.

Chapter 100

"Have fun. I'm not going. I have an assessment tomorrow morning at seven o'clock." Sophia refused.

"Sophia, why are you being so hard on yourself? It's just an assessment. You won't die if you go a little later. If they really appreciate your talent, you can even go the day after tomorrow." Juliette didn't seem to bother about Sophia's job application at all. "Zabinski Group also said that we should report at nine tomorrow morning. But I'm still having fun right now, ain't I?"

Sophia held the phone and shook her head. "Forget it. I have to prepare for it."

"Sophia, what if it's a fraud company? Then, you'd get up so early for nothing."

"It doesn't matter." Sophia didn't seem to be concerned. "Anyway, they won't ask me to pay anything. The worst it can get is that I'd get fooled around. But what if I manage to land the job?"

"Come on... I'm sure the company is not genuine. Why don't you come out and have fun with us? I will introduce you to a few rich young men next time. If you can hook up with one of them, wouldn't that be better than just being an assistant?"

"You guys have fun. We'll talk later." Sophia hurriedly hung up the phone and practiced again in the mirror.

The next morning at six o'clock, Sophia got up from bed when the alarm clock went off. The small rental room she was staying in was clean and tidy. But as soon as she opened the bedroom door, Sophia saw her two roommates, who were dead drunk.

Sophia stepped into the bathroom, put on her makeup, and went out at half past six on time.

It was 6:50 a.m. when she arrived at Grand Triumphant Hotel. Sophia had made an effort to dress up. She was wearing a white shirt and a pair of trousers. She looked like a vigorous modern woman. Her long hair was tugged behind her head, and she exuded an air of confidence.

Sophia waited at the gate of the hotel. At seven o'clock, her phone rang.

Sophia was immediately excited to hear her phone ring. It meant that the man didn't fool her.

Sophia hurriedly picked up the phone.

Robert's voice rang on the phone. "Ms. Ryder, I saw you. The receptionist has gone out to pick you up. Just follow her."

Sophia held back her excitement. After saying thank you, she saw the receptionist walk out.

"Ms. Ryder, right? Mr. Zabinski is already waiting for you in the office. Please come with me." Sophia dispelled her last concern after seeing the professionalism displayed by the receptionist and hearing the word "office."

Sophia nodded hurriedly and followed the receptionist to the top floor of the hotel.

"Ms. Ryder, Mr. Zabinski is waiting for you inside." The receptionist bowed slightly and then left.

Sophia took a deep breath and knocked on the door of the office.

"Ms. Ryder, please come in."

Sophia pushed the door open and was immediately stunned by the luxurious office. The person sitting behind the desk was the man she had seen at the job fair yesterday.

However, that luxurious office was in sharp contrast to the shabby stall at the job fair.

"A-Are you the chairman?" Sophia was a little confused. She had thought that the young man was just an employee of the company and that the so-called chairman was just an ordinary company owner, but she didn't expect that person to be the owner of the Grand Triumphant Hotel.

"I'd like to introduce myself. My name is Robert Zabinski. Ms. Ryder, please take a seat," Robert smiled and gestured for Sophia to sit down.

Sophia finally came back to her senses. She bowed to Robert and started introducing herself. "Hello, Mr. Zabinski. My name is Sophia. I graduated from..."

Sophia stood upright as she introduced herself in a clear and loud voice. Her introduction was concise and elegant. She elaborated on how she would perform if she were offered the position of Robert's assistant.

When Sophia finished speaking, Robert looked at her and smiled, "Ms. Ryder, do you have a boyfriend?"
