

Last Days 10

Chapter 10 Mist

Riya began to search for news.

She eventually came across a video where there was a person who created a fire out of nothing. This kind of magic trick was very common, but Riya faintly noticed the man whispered something.

It was something like a chant?

Does magic truly exist?

Riya thought of the spells that she also knew due to magic and started to feel more vigilant. She had the feeling that there might be more people who suddenly experienced the strange 'transmigration.'

She clearly didn't die, but she just suddenly transported to that world without any prior warning.

Or... she might have died, but resurrected?

Either guess was actually quite absurd.

After looking for a while, Riya moved her eyes away.

She sat on her bed and began to train her magic. During this time, the world treasure kept on sucking the surroundings mana and expanded the world's size. By now, the size was already more than 100*100 meters.

And Riya didn't know the exact limit for the treasure.

Anyway, it was good that she could create a river and through so that she didn't have to take care of the plants all day long. She only needed to take the eggs, milk the cow and goat, and add more of their feeds, which didn't take more than half an hour each day.

"You're done?" Riya saw that Amelia tossed the phone away.

"Uh huh, Brother said he will try to ask around." Amelia shrugged. "Anyway, I'm going to sleep first."

"Got it."

The lights went off and Amelia laid on her bed.

'Time to meditate.'

Sitting cross legged on her bed, Riya slowly entered the state of meditation. She had noticed that Amelia was already sleeping, so she had no scruples in starting meditation.

Slowly, the mana began to gather into Riya body. Now that she was already a Magic Rank 1 magician, the mana was easier to control.

'Speaking of control, how about if I control the world treasure so that it would stop expanding and instead use the mana to be stored?'

With that in thought, Riya went to the world treasure and tried to convey her thoughts.

She felt that the world treasure responded.

In the next moment, she looked at the world and saw that the mana inside was slowly accumulating. This could be used to expand the world and also to speed up the time inside.

Besides, even if the plants and the animals were to live in such environment, they would only use a very small fraction of the Mana, less than 0,0001%.

Riya would not care about such small number.

'It's good.'

With that, Riya continued her meditation.

In the morning, she woke up from her meditation and saw Amelia was still sleeping. She shook her head helplessly and wash up, went to her computer and started to do her research.

She's now entering her eight semester.

Her thesis was almost done, but because Riya took a 'break' for four years, she planned on supplementing her knowledge first. She only needed to talk with her professor once a week and there were no classes.

In theory, she could spend the entire day in the dormitory.

When it was nine, Amelia finally woke up. She saw Riya was already busy and clicked her tongue. "You're truly a model student. As soon as you wake up, you begin to write your thesis."

"I can't help it, I have nothing else to do anyway."

"Tsk. I'm planning on spending the day with the others. It's Saturday, why can't I have some fun?" Amelia disagreed with Riya. Anyway, she could become a rice worm for her entire life with her family background, so she was not afraid.

Riya laughed. "Alright, Eldest Miss Jones, don't forget that if you still want to stay in the dormitory, you have to return before 9 PM or the door will be locked."

Jones is Amelia's last name but it was rarely used. After all, people were used to use their first name when calling others and would not bother to ask their last name.

"Ah, I forget about that!" Amelia slapped her forehead. "I'll have to change my plan then."

"Yes, yes."

The two of them bantered and Amelia left.

Riya spent half of the day reading the thesis she had written and the case she had built. After that, she went down to buy food on the few restaurants nearby along with some daily supplies. She originally wanted to buy more, but thinking that it would be suspicious, she only bought a few boxes and put them into her space in a place without surveillance and people.

When it was night time, she took care of the animals and took a look at the plants before sitting in meditative state again.

This time, she purposely put a novel in front of her.

When Amelia returned, she should just think that she fell asleep after she was reading in a sitting position. Anyway, it was not the first time.

cough cough

Hearing the sound of cough, Riya suddenly opened her eyes. She frowned and looked around. The moment her eyes landed on the window, she was shocked to see a completely white world.

Mist?

"What in the world is that?"