

Last Days 132

Chapter 132 Magic Cores' Runes

"Wait, I want to try it first!" Amelia interrupted before Samuel could say the next word.

She picked the magic core from the table and injected mana inside.

The next moment, Amelia felt that she seemed to be able to sense this magic core and the violent element inside. As long as she wanted to, she could make fire come out of the magic core.

It was an amazing feeling.

Amelia was tempted to try it out but then she saw her brother's look...

She could only put it down.

"It's not for playing," Samuel said and then added, "I'll hand it over to Sean later for his protection."

Amelia was stunned and then complained, "Why not me? I also need protection!"

"Because Sean's main element is fire," Samuel replied calmly.

Amelia opened her mouth and then closed it again.

She couldn't refute that.

While it was not that easy for them to detect their magic element without proper equipment, Samuel was able to do it one way or another. While it was not very accurate, it could still tell them what their main element is.

"This elemental magic cores can be used by mages of any element," Riya kindly reminded. There was no restriction for the elements of the mages who used the magic core.

After all, the mana needed for the use of the magic core was already contained within the magic core itself. The main reason why it was mana activated was because their mana was needed to use the runes that had been engraved and allowed them to use the magic core.

Hearing this, Amelia's eyes lit up and she looked at her brother expectantly.

"No." Samuel shook his head. "While it's not impossible for people without the fire elemental affinity to use this fire element magic core, but it's more beneficial for fire element mage or magic warriors to use it. Because through the use of the magic core, they would be able to learn to sense their own mana and control magic better."

Amelia heard this and pursed her lips.

She really want to complain that her brother was too strict.

Riya heard Samuel's explanation and nodded slightly. It was true that using the magic core would help these people if they were perceptive enough. But the problem was, most people would not be able to make a good use of this chance.

Because the control for the magic core was done through the runes, so they would not need to do anything but to operate it in their mind. If they wanted to use the magic core for practice, it was not really effective nor useful.

This magic tool was simply for them to use.

But considering that there were not many magic tools that could be used for them to practice their magic spells... this could be considered to be one of the methods that they could use.

Riya smiled bitterly.

With the situation that the mana was really thin and there was a lack of magic tools various areas, this magic tool could be said to be quite convenient.

Well, to a certain degree.

It was better than nothing.

"But, but..." Amelia really wanted to use that magic core and looked at her brother pitifully. In the end, what she saw was the cold look from her brother.

Amelia: "..."

Alright, her brother would not eat this trick.

She sometimes felt that her brother's heart was simply made out of stone. He would not be moved so easily by others' words.

"I can make for other elements too?" Riya raised her hand.

"Really?" Amelia's eyes lit up.

Riya nodded. "Every element magic core has their own uses and there are specific runes that could be used for it. You just have to tell me your magic element."

"It's wind," Amelia quickly replied. "Wind and lightning."

Storm?

Hearing Amelia's element, Riya was stunned and looked at Amelia with some wariness. She knew very well that the combination of these two elements could become a terrifying storm if she reached a certain high rank.

But the lower ranked ones...

"Well, the wind element can be used to be like a fan, but it's not comparable to the cold talisman. Aside from that, you can use it to lift up items through your control with the runes just like telekinesis ability," Riya replied.

Amelia's eyes lit up when she heard such convenient ability and she looked at her brother with hopeful expression. Clearly, she hoped that her brother would agree with her having that magic core.

Samuel sighed and nodded at his sister. "Alright, you can have it."

"Yes!"

Amelia cheered happily.

After that, Samuel handed over the wind magic core to Riya and let her make the runes. Looking at how fast and easy Riya made these runes, Samuel started to wonder if it was so easy.

From what he knew, drawing runes were very hard. In the past, he had tried it himself but he couldn't even draw one runes.

Now, Riya was drawing runes after runes so easily in front of him.

For a moment, Samuel truly felt doubtful of himself.

"It's done. What other element is there?" Riya asked.

"Lightning and earth," Samuel replied. "There are also some non elemental magic cores but these would not be used for the time being."

Riya nodded.

These non element magic cores could be used for other things and the runes making on them would also be more complicated. After all, they could be used for various things and then they had to draw the runes to draw out the power.

Or they could use it for other side profession.

After all, it was still useful.

With Samuel's instruction, Riya started to make the runes for the last two magic cores. The lightning talisman would be used like a battery while the earth magic core would be used to make defensive wall when they were attacked.

When Amelia heard the lightning one, she looked at her brother resentfully.
