

Last Days 150

Chapter 150 Robbers

"Ahaha, I'm sorry." Arnold laughed awkwardly and put the paper away. He looked at Riya with apologetic and thankful smile and then said, "Unfortunately, there's no wood and metal spells here."

He glanced at Samuel after he finished talking.

Samuel didn't have all elements and only four elements, which was why he was restrained in his actions. Even if Samuel wanted to help them, he didn't memorize all elements' magic spells.

So he could only ask others for this.

"My magic method is special, so you can't learn it." Riya shook her head and then sat back. She looked at Amelia with a smile. "Do you want to try too?"

"Yes!" Amelia was now interested. Does she have other elements aside from lightning?

In this way , Riya made another talisman and handed it to Amelia. At this moment, she was glad that she had a lot of paper in her world. Otherwise, it would not be able to withstand her consumption.

Amelia injected her mana and soon, the runes swirled into two. Seeing this, Riya was not surprised. "You have lightning and wind element. It seems that there's no change."

"Aww..." Amelia thought that she would have other elements mixed but it seemed that she only have two elements. She could only hand the paper back to Riya with some disappointment.

"Two elements are already very good." Riya was amused when she saw Amelia's disheartened look.

"But it's less than my brother," Amelia said with annoyance.

Riya: "..."

Thinking about her own elements, Riya only let out dry laugh. No one could possibly compare to her when it came to the elements. But if they were to talk about specific element's talent, then Riya could only say that she was average.

The elements' talent were divided equally, making her talent in all element average. So focusing in any specific element would be wasteful.

Bang!

Hearing the loud sound from the front, Samuel quickly stopped meditating and looked forward. His eyes narrowed and he sneered. "Arnold, I'll leave this place to you. Protect my sister."

He had listened to the conversation of these three people but didn't have any plan to interrupt. After all, he had to admit that his knowledge in other elements were lacking and he didn't know many spells from other elements.

The family he came to in that world might be powerful, but it didn't mean they have all elements' magic spells.

Aside from the four elements that Samuel had, the other magic spells that he had was of dark element and metal elements. But he only learned one or two magic spells out of curiosity.

Upon finding out that he was incapable of using those magic spells, Samuel's interest naturally died down.

"Of course," Arnold quickly promised. "I'll protect your sister."

Riya glanced out and saw a group of people tried to block the road and then started shooting. She arched her eyebrows and felt that these people were really brave.

Even if they wanted to rob people, they should think whether they could rob the other party or not.

This was the same as seeking death.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

"Give us the supplies... Gah!"

"Ahhh!"

Screams and shout came from the front and before long, it was quiet.

Riya felt that for Samuel to come forward on his own, it was indeed overkill. These robbers couldn't do anything in front of Samuel and could only be beaten up honestly.

"Who are they?" Amelia murmured.

"It might be local forces," Arnold replied. "Not everyone will come to the base and some people will even form their own base. Aside from our official base, which is called City A Base, there are also other bases formed in City A and some scattered groups."

Not everyone wanted to put their lives in the base and would like to try their own luck. After all, there were naturally restrictions for them when they joined the base and not everyone wanted to live in that kind of life.

Some of them even thought that their chances had come and wanted to live their own life.

Arnold had seen many of those things, so he was not worried.

"I see." Amelia frowned.

Riya thought about the guy whom they met in front of the university not long ago. If she was not wrong, his name was Hansel Mile and he came from other base. After all, he was picked up by the military but Riya didn't manage to find them in City A Base.

His family should be in other bases or they were the one who built a base.

After that, Riya pushed the thoughts away from her mind and didn't care too much about it. She knew that it was not possible for her to investigate this matter.

The world is too big.

She had no time to care about what other people were doing.

It would be better to focus on her own life.

"Don't worry. As long as you're strong enough, they wouldn't dare to offend you," Riya consoled.

Amelia: "..."

She looked at Riya speechlessly. Why did this sentence didn't sound comforting at all?

Even if Amelia was already a rank 1 magic warrior, she couldn't say that she was very strong. There were still many people were who were stronger than her. At most, she had more methods to protect herself because of her brother's identity and ability.

"Let's go back," Samuel said lightly as he walked back, his appearance was still as clean as before.

To deal with a few people who were not even magic warrior, Samuel didn't need to use his mana at all. His own sword skills were more than enough. After all, these skills have been honed for so many years and even without mana, it was more than enough to deal with ordinary people.

"Yes!"

Arnold looked to the back and then started the car again.

The group passed by the group of dying robbers, not caring about their lives and death in the slightest bit.
