

Last Days 166

Chapter 166 Unexpected Guest (3)

Brat?

Riya heard this word and looked at the middle aged man strangely.

Even if Samuel is still quite young, but his ability was far from many other people in the entire world. Who dared to offend him like this?

But thinking that this person was indeed a bit stupid...

Riya chose not to think about it.

"I'm one of the leaders here, Mr. Mile." Samuel looked at the guards and waved his hand. "And if you only come here to make trouble, then I would have no other choice but to use the hard way to kick you out."

His tone was very cold and indifferent.

For Samuel, who had experienced a very cruel world where everything was based on their strength, it was nothing to face this middle aged man.

What he wanted the most was to let this man left and didn't disturb him anymore.

"No! You have to help! You can help..."

Bang!

A guard kicked the middle aged man away through Samuel's instruction while Samuel himself walked back. He felt that these problems can be easily solved by his father. Why did his father have to call him here?

Samuel was confused and then he watched Valeria coming.

Samuel: "..."

Does this annoying cousin of his also wanted a trip to the prison? Those who stayed in the prison would only be given a little bit of food just so that they would not die. Afterwards, no one would care too much about them anymore.

"Hansel... I heard that you're here." Valeria looked at the group of people with distressed look.

She has been reprimanded by Amelia not long ago and felt that she could also use this time to make trouble.

"Cousin, for my face, can't you..."

"No."

There was no need for Samuel to wait for Valeria to finish speaking. He will never agree to her request no matter what it was.

This cousin of his has always been very annoying.

If it was not because the society was ruled by law before, Samuel would have long wanted to kick his cousin far away. He didn't care about hitting women or not. If they dared to challenge him, he dared to kill them no matter whether they were old, young, women, or children.

The premise was that they offended him first.

No one thought that he could make a name for himself in that world without having his hand stained with blood, right?

"But..."

"If you speak anymore, I'll throw you to the prison," Samuel added.

Valeria consciously shut her mouth, but she was still glaring at Samuel's direction with resentment. It was clear that she hoped that Samuel could be more forgiving to her.

But Samuel ignored her.

He looked at Mr. Mile and at Hansel beside the other party. The hatred that flashed within their eyes just now was very obvious.

"City A Base is not strong enough to provide help to other bases. If you want to ask for help, you should ask for help from other forces."

Other forces?

Hansel let out an angry laugh. "Where else can we go? We spent days trying to come here and now you tell us that you can't help at all? You have conscience..."

"No one has the obligation to help others." Samuel looked at Hansel with cold eyes. "If we chose to give help to you, it's nothing more than kindness from our part and not something for you to ask and trample on."

He truly couldn't stand the righteousness of these people who thought that they deserved to get everything. Samuel felt that these people were very annoying and if it was not because he was too lazy to fight, he would have long solved them himself.

"Hansel, my cousin is of high position but he's not the only one here." Valeria's eyes flashed. "There are still representative from the magic association and the martial arts association."

As soon as Mr. Mile and Hansel Mile heard this, they were visibly moved.

Samuel said that he didn't have enough forces under him to help them and asked them to find other forces. Now, isn't there other forces here that they could ask for help?

The problem is, they were not sure whether these people would be willing to help them or not.

After all, these two association's members were also quite haughty.

In case they felt that it was beneath them to help...

"This b*tch..."

Amelia was holding back and looked at Valeria with killing intent.

She could see that Hansel was moved and seemed to want to devote himself more to Valeria. But how could Valeria be willing to look in his eyes?

She wanted the best person for her marriage and so on.

There were many people who were better than Hansel but these people were not willing to look in Valeria's direction. Otherwise, it would not be Hansel's turn to hang around Valeria all these years.

And now, Valeria was still trying to brush her presence.

"Calm down." Riya held Amelia back. "She didn't do anything anyway and wouldn't be able to do anything."

She had seen that Valeria was still an ordinary person. She didn't seem to be training to become a magic warrior or a mage. After all, Riya was quite sensitive to mana fluctuation and could detect when someone became a mage.

But she sensed none of those from Valeria.

"She..."

"There are people coming."

Amelia shut up and then looked at the people who came from inside with Mr. Jones. At this moment, she was clear why her father asked her brother to come.

The people from these two associations were also here and wanted to take advantage of this matter.

How shameless.

Samuel didn't look surprised and looked at the two representatives. "It seems that you're willing to help Mr. Mile."

"Hahaha, lives have become difficult now." The man from martial arts association let out dry laugh. He was only here to take a look of the situation.

"If they can give enough benefit, it won't be a problem to send some magicians." The man from the magic association raised his chin instead.
