

Last Days 189

Chapter 189 New Special Magic Core?

How these cracks were formed, Riya had some speculations.

But these speculations were nothing more than speculations before it was proven to be true. Because of this, Riya never had the intention to mention them to anyone and only kept them in her mind.

But seeing the crack was getting smaller...

Riya felt that this entire place was slowly recovering themselves.

Why and how?

Was it because the number of magic beasts had decreased sharply?

Or was it because two of the twelve pillars that sustained and fill this place with mana were broken?

Well, not literally broken.

She just took the special magic cores away.

And without the special magic core, the pillars couldn't operate well at all. There would be more limitations or perhaps loophole in the formation operation.

Riya narrowed her eyes.

"I want to go down."

"What?" Samuel was confused as he watched Riya suddenly run in one direction and quickly chased after Riya.

Drap! Drap!

Despite the darkness of the place, it didn't stop these two people from running quickly. Samuel also realized that Riya's physical strength was not that bad, at least, it can compare to many other magic warriors at rank 1.

He could go faster but in this dark place, it would be better to be a bit cautious.

Splash!

Before long, they reached down and there was a pool of blood under them. Riya stopped her footsteps and looked at the large pool of blood in front of her, her eyes condensed slightly.

"No..."

Riya continued her run, the blood pool was only at her knee at most, so it didn't affect her speed at all.

Samuel stopped at the edge of the blood pool.

He didn't know what Riya was seeing, but he guessed that it should be something bad. Otherwise, Riya would not come here so quickly. Samuel didn't even know how Riya managed to find out about this place.

'It's creepy.'

This place could easily cause chills to creep up on a person's body but Samuel remained expressionless. He looked around and frowned when he didn't see any corpses.

With so much blood here, how could there be no corpse?

For a moment, Samuel thought about those demonic magicians in that world. They could use blood for sacrifice while the body of the magic beasts were burned completely. Those people were hated by many people because some of them didn't only use magic beasts but also other people.

With such practice, how many people had died?

It was basically uncountable.

Samuel didn't step into the pool of blood in the end.

Splash! Splash!

Riya made her way to the center and saw the larger area where the pillar was located once more. The pillar was still standing still but the runes on the walls were shining in blood red color.

It looked both beautiful and scary at the same time.

Seeing this scene, Riya's eyes condensed and she walked closer to the pillar in the center. A large amount of blood had stained the lower half of the pillar and the blood seemed to be swirling into the center.

"Auto correction runes," Riya said through self depreciating tone.

She had come here, but she failed to notice that this large formation was basically arranging self correction runes inside. In this way, no matter what happened, the formation would still work all the time.

Even though the power might be weaker or something, but it would work.

And in order for the formation to be able to correct itself, it could only do so through the magic beasts around it.

Luring them in and then killing them all so that the flesh could be absorbed and turned into pure mana for the formation to operation.

Because of this, the number of magic beasts in this area decreased.

But it was also because of the self correction and the decrease of the mana and magic beasts that the crack was slowly repairing itself.

Because the crack shouldn't have existed either.

Her move accidentally triggered the auto correction from the large formation, making them also repair the crack slowly but surely.

Riya didn't know whether the repair was only for the runes in this area or it also affected other areas.

What she knew was that the pillar was forcefully forming a special magic cores.

The special magic cores formed through blood of these magic beasts.

"In that case... let me help you."

Splash! Splash!

Riya took a few steps forward and then raised her hand. Runes formed one after another in front of her, heading towards the pillar in front of her and then the ground shook and the blood on the ground surged even faster.

From outside, Samuel saw the pool of blood receded and his eyes narrowed.

He slowly walked forward and watched the pool of blood was reduced significantly. It was as if someone or something was absorbing these blood at rapid speed.

Tep.

Riya stopped her runes and looked at the red special magic core in front of her. She stretched her hand and picked it up.

The special magic core was warm in her hand.

Even though the color was red, it actually contained all kinds of mana that has been completely purified, leaving only the pure mana.

"Extreme Purification Formation and Auto Correction Formation..." Riya muttered under her breath and then raised her head to look at the pillar in front of her.

Whoever made those formations in the first place was definitely a genius.

Because with this method, the mana that was used for the formation would be the pure mana and this could also create the special magic core.

The only problem was that the huge amount of resources needed to make it would be uncountable.

'And this magic core is barely rank 5...'

Riya could sense that the special magic core in her hand was only passing the line of rank 5 special magic core. The previous special magic core that she found was at least already in the middle of rank 5.

This meant that this pillar was not only using the pure energy of these special magic core.

But they were also purifying and increasing the grade of the special magic core with time.
