Limits 102

Chapter 102

Then, Feena smiled and said, "I thought you might know him. He competed in the national Youth Vocal Showcase and will participate in the national finals with me. My mentor said that Luca is talented and that he's highly regarded by many reputable experts."

Jack didn't say anything else, but Eddie, who was beside him, jumped in surprise. "Feena, I can't believe you actually made it to the Youth Vocal Showcase finals!"

Feena nodded. Though her face revealed little emotion, a faint sense of pride stirred within her heart.

After all, something like this would indeed be a surprise to someone like Eddie. Perhaps it was because this was an achievement that Wesley and Eddie could never hope to reach in their lifetime.

Wesley asked curiously, "What's the Youth Vocal Showcase?"

Eddie looked at Wesley disdainfully and explained, "It's a highly prestigious competition! I heard the satellite TV station will broadcast the event live during the regional finals. Those who make it to the finals will usually go on to become stars in the music industry. A bright future lies ahead of them."

Wesley nodded, realizing Feena might be on a journey to stardom, growing further apart from the rest of them.

Feena did not say much. She only stole glances at Jack, eager to know if he was shocked by her accomplishment.

Looking back on the past, Jack's roguish charm and rebellious allure would sometimes make Feena's heart skip a beat. However, Jack's family background and previous academic standing had caused a proud girl like Feena to avoid him.

She never expected Jack to suddenly rise through the ranks and become the top scholar in the state.

Now, the reason why she was telling Jack about her entering the finals was to show him that although he had succeeded in his academics, she was still an untouchable queen.

She hoped Jack would continue to work hard and follow in her footsteps, but perhaps he would only ever be able to catch a glimpse of her back, if even that.

The winter break was relatively quiet.

Jack saw Samuel and Jenna's public displays of affection on social media and Bella's travel log of delicacies and breathtaking sceneries. Everyone was living their own lives.

The holidays passed by quickly.

After the winter break ended, Jack said his goodbyes to his family and headed back to the university with Wesley.

Wesley had originally wanted to ask Feena to join them on their journey to Alnewgo. However, when he learned that Feena had already gone to the city to attend some special training classes and visit a few reputable mentors to prepare for the upcoming Youth Vocal Showcase finals, he gave up on the idea.

Wesley could only sigh at the vast chasm between them. While they were buried in their studies, Feena's life had taken flight. It seems that Feena would become someone that they would spend their entire lives looking up to.

Immersed in their own thoughts, they journeyed through the falling snow, accompanied by the steady sound of the moving train. Finally, they arrived at Alnewgo.

After exiting the train, the two went to have dinner and indulged in a couple of drinks before returning to their own worlds.

Isaac, Samuel, and Joshua had returned to campus too.

Just like Feena, Luca had arrived at the capital earlier to prepare for the Youth Vocal Showcase finals. He was now making the final preparations for the upcoming competition.

Isaac had also returned to the campus earlier to take care of some private matters with Miranda. Needless to say, the private matter was expected to be good news.

Samuel was excited to see Jenna, while Joshua was troubled by his fight with Queenie. Samuel privately revealed that Queenie seemed to have found a new beau-someone from a wealthy family with significant power and influence.

However, Jack didn't pay too much attention to these trivial matters because something more important was waiting for him.

The mobile game, "Panzer Saga", that he and Patrick had developed had finally been launched. It was available for download on all major platforms.
