Chapter 147

Just as Jack was about to call Felix for help, Felix appeared from the hallway.

He had already anticipated that Jack might have trouble getting past security, so he had come out to check. But he didn't come alone he brought an entourage to make it clear just how important Jack was.

The moment Felix saw Jack, he hurried over, half-bowing as he ran.

"My musical genius, my superstar-finally! We've been waiting for you! The whole show's riding on you-you're the grand finale!"

He grabbed Jack's hand without hesitation, ready to escort him inside.

The two women at the entrance, along with the crowd watching nearby, froze.

Their eyes widened in absolute shock.

Superstar? Final act?

Wait... Did that mean...

Still processing the words, the prettier of the two women stammered, "Mr. Chambers... wait... w-who is he?"

Her name was Leila.

Felix shot her a knowing grin.

"You've always loved Soul, haven't you?" He chuckled, then patted Jack's shoulder. "Well, here he is, right in front of you."

Before Leila could react, Felix whisked Jack inside, leaving behind a group of students who looked like they had just witnessed the biggest plot twist of their lives.

Silence hung in the air for a split second.

Then, Leila finally snapped out of it, her voice trembling with disbelief.

"Did... Did Felix just say... he's... Soul?"

The taller woman, still stiff with shock, nodded slowly.

"I... I think I heard the same thing."

Leila suddenly screamed and jumped up in excitement.

"Oh my goodness! Felix wouldn't lie! That means... he's really Soul! And he's so good-looking! He's just like I imagined!"

The other woman clutched her chest, still reeling.

"His eyes... oh my goodness, his eyes. They're like the entire universe-so deep, so mesmerizing. He's even better than I imagined. And I actually talked to him!"

But the excitement quickly turned into regret.

Leila suddenly groaned in frustration.

"Damn it! I should've asked for a photo! Or his contact! What was I thinking?!"

Around them, the rest of the students finally exploded in disbelief.

They had just let Soul walk right past them-without even realizing it?! This was insane.

It was a massive missed opportunity, and the realization hit them like a truck. Before long, the news spread like wildfire.

More and more fans rushed toward Entrance No. 2, desperate to catch a glimpse of him. The crowd swelled, and within minutes, the metal barriers collapsed under the force of the stampede.

The student council members, now panicked, linked arms to form a human barrier, struggling to keep the chaos under control.

Meanwhile, still buzzing with excitement, Leila whipped out her phone and called someone.

"Feena! You need to get back here-now! You won't believe who I just saw!"
