Limits 158

Chapter 158

She recalled the young man standing by the breezy riverside with a guitar. Jack's figure, actions, hairstyle, and even singing voice were almost identical to Soul's.

Feena wondered if it was him. Then, she smiled self-deprecatingly. She was being silly. How could it be him?

She couldn't be sure of the answer and ultimately denied the possibility.

Meanwhile, Luca frowned and fell deep into thought. Soul's appearance had saved the rather boring performance, making the audience go into a frenzy. They even protested when he prepared to go offstage to rest.

They were looking forward to him performing "Heart's Desire" because they believed a live rendition of it would only be more perfect and soulful than the online version.

The host pacified the crowd, telling them not to tire Soul out. He also promised that Soul would be back for another performance later. After that, a fireworks show and some interactive activities cheered the crowd up. Soul didn't participate in the interactions, but that didn't dampen his fans' excitement.

After his performance, Donald and some other renowned singers took to the stage to perform. They set the crowd on fire, but Soul's grand finale remained the most anticipated performance.

Gradually, the star-studded concert came to a close. As the final performer, Soul finally appeared onstage again. This time, he was performing "Heart's Desire".

His song brought the atmosphere to a climax, and the fireworks accentuated the performance. The overwhelming cheers and screams from the audience signaled the immense influence this new star in the entertainment industry held.

In the future, Soul's songs would likely turn into classics. He would solidify his position in the world of music and even be the source of many memories for the people of this generation. When his voice appeared, people would be reminded of their youth, which they would never experience again.

They would also forever remember him as a legend he would remain silent for some time, but whenever he made his move, he would produce an unbeatable song!

Soul ended his performance of "Heart's Desire". The crowd was so engrossed in it that they even forgot to applaud. They couldn't extricate themselves from the wonderful feeling that his singing brought. Only when the host took the stage to announce the end of the concert did they realize how fleeting bliss was.

The crowd was reluctant for the concert to be over, but all things eventually came to an end. The rest of the singers took to the stage again to sing a final song while fireworks lit up the sky. Then, the concert finally ended.

The host, organizers, and singers bid goodbye to the audience, whether live or watching on TV, and said their wishes for their next encounter. Though it was sad to part at this point, they would always meet again!

The success of this concert made Starlight Entertainment see the immense potential similar activities held. After the concert ended, Felix sought Jack out backstage in hopes of inviting him to participate in the next event organized by Starlight Entertainment.

After all, this concert was too much of a success to leave him out! He was one of the main reasons it had been such a hit.

Starlight Entertainment wanted to strike while the iron was hot and use Soul's influence to hype things up before having a nationwide tour. They could see his massive commercial worth and endless potential, which would surely make him the company's cash cow. Their stock price would skyrocket, making them rake in the money!

However, Jack turned down the offer. He had more important things to do beyond singing, and he didn't want his peaceful life to be disrupted.

Still, to gather capital for his gaming company, he agreed to participate in events that could help him earn a sum while maintaining a relatively low profile.