Chapter 191

At Drakengard Games, there weren't many employees when the company was founded, and the division of work was relatively simple. Therefore, regular employees also had the chance to come into contact with Patrick despite him being the CEO.

Most of the employees knew who Patrick was, but they had no idea that Jack was the other boss behind the scenes.

As soon as the news broke, it caused a commotion.

A woman said in disbelief, "That... That can't be true, right?"

Did the staff member make a mistake?

But the staff member shook his head and replied, "How can we not recognize our own boss?"

No one dared to question it anymore. Sophie looked at Patrick with troubled eyes.

Who would have thought that Patrick, who had been expelled from university, would now become the CEO of Drakengard Games?

Sophie turned her head just in time to see Patrick and Jack placing their glasses down after finishing their drinks before they turned to leave. Then, the striking Maybach S600 slowly pulled out of the parking lot and disappeared from sight.

As the car drove farther away, Patrick could still see Sophie staring blankly at his car through the rearview mirror.

When the campus recruitment ended, the senior students sang graduation songs, bidding farewell to the university as they embarked on their own life journeys.

Jack's freshman year had flown by, and his first summer break in university had arrived.

Bella planned to travel abroad for vacation, and Phoebe's summer break plans remained unknown.

Samuel chose to stay in Alnewgo for a part-time job, whereas Isaac and Joshua went all the way to Federia to attend a summer basketball camp.

Feena also chose to stay in Alnewgo. As her fame grew, she secured a role in a TV series that was bound to be a hit.

Wesley also approached Jack, hoping to find a summer job together with him in Alnewgo for the experience. Jack readily agreed to Wesley's suggestion.

Ever since being beaten down by Flynn, coupled with Jack's lack of funds to hire a PR team and how Starlight Entertainment had taken advantage of his downfall, Soul's reputation online had been completely ruined. His songs, "Heart's Desire" and "Time", were also removed from the Billboard Hot 100 chart.

Although Soul had once been the hottest celebrity, he was merely a popular new idol and couldn't be compared to the veteran singers with strong foundations who had been in the industry for many years. He was like a shooting star in the music industry, lighting up the sky before quickly disappearing from people's sight.

Now, when someone occasionally talked about Soul, they would describe him as a goner. Therefore, Jack had temporarily stepped away from the online scene.

In his free time, he worked as a summer intern with Wesley. This experience made him appreciate what he currently had even more. However, finding a suitable summer job wasn't easy, as many students were also searching for a job during the summer break.

They tried various jobs, including dressing up as mascots and handing out flyers under the scorching sun, but the pay was low, and the work was exhausting. They also took some time to volunteer at a nearby nursing home to make their summer break more meaningful and contribute to the community.

That night, Patrick called Jack to remind him about the upcoming Internet Technology and Finance Summit.

Although Jack wanted to keep a low profile, he had to attend as the CEO and majority shareholder of Drakengard Games.

In order to attract more investments, Patrick ordered a custom-tailored suit to be delivered to Jack the next day. After all, appearance and image were extremely important when attending such an exclusive summit.

On the day of the summit, Jack told Wesley he had something to do before getting into a cab and heading to the summit's venue.

The event was hosted at Imperial Hotel, a prestigious hotel that was also well- known in the international city of Alnewgo.

In addition to its unparalleled service and extravagant appearance, the hotel's strong security team was also particularly commendable. Many domestic and international summits were held here due to the Imperial Hotel's impeccable security measures.

Even from a distance, Jack could already see many plainclothes security officers patrolling the area.
