Chapter 203

Mia was surprised by Jack's retort. She was taken aback by how rude the server was to go against her, and even boldly argued that servers were people. Who did this punk think he was?

However, a glint flickered in Feena's eyes, seemingly understanding the situation from Jack's reply, slowly realizing Jack might not have been a server.

However, she was afraid to clarify Jack's identity. After all, she knew him too well. Plus, Jack's family background did not provide any support in his career.

Standing not far away, Amelia and Queenie looked at Jack in shock. Jack's reply was humble and courteous at this second, yet it shut Mia up. They felt relieved from the situation.

After all, Amelia and Queenie were working to entertain and serve the guests. Mia's condescending tone toward servers angered them, so Jack's retaliation indirectly helped them.

When Thomas read the situation, he stood on Mia's side, pointed his finger at Jack, and reprimanded, "What is the meaning of this? If you are not a server, who are you? Don't tell me you're one of the business owners invited to this submission. I think you're a thief, here to steal from a premium event like this."

"Tom is right. If you can't prove your innocence, I'll get security to lock you up."

Thomas and Mia's accusations grew louder, attracting doubtful gazes toward Jack from the crowd.

From their odd and suspicious gazes, they seemed to have assumed Jack was a trespasser.

However, Jack remained calm and unfazed. He looked at Mia disdainfully and said, "I don't need to explain to you trash bags about how I got here. Take a good look in the mirror before you throw any accusations."

Mia and Thomas were trembling from anger.

Then, Jonathan was finally angered by Jack's arrogance and pride.

Jonathan asked in a mocking tone, "You talk a big game! How dare you insult us! Which company are you from? Do you have the guts to tell us? I want to see which Fortune 500 company produces a character as impressive as you!"

Jack's heart tightened. He heard from the crowd that Jonathan was a prominent figure with an extensive network. He wasn't a person Jack could afford to offend, especially in Alnewgo.

Plus, the headquarters of Drakengard Games was in the territory under Jonathan's father's jurisdiction. If he said he worked for Drakendard Games, it might have brought the company unnecessary trouble.

Jack hesitated and did not answer Jonathan's question.

When Thomas and the group saw this, they smugly assumed Jack had sneaked his way and could even be a thief.

Mia's expression grew stern. "Tell us! How did you get in here? You must be a thief!"

Jonathan fiercely chimed in, "If you don't admit to it, I'll make sure that security beats you up."

Feena and Amelia nervously looked at Jack, worried he would be mistreated. They started anticipating the worst, that Jack could not prove his innocence, only to be caught in public, slapped across the face, and thrown out like a worthless stray dog.

This was undoubtedly a humiliating and hopeless situation. However, they were nobodies, unable to do anything other than panic and express sympathy.

Suddenly, a sweet yet cool female voice sounded. "Who here wants to kick him out?"

This sudden sweet yet cold voice carried an undeniable authority.
