Chapter 219

Wesley eagerly began his storytelling.

"Oh, you've brought up a topic I actually know a lot about! That Route 2 bus? I used to take it to school every single day.

"That criminal was really something. Even a few grown men couldn't get close to him. But in the end, he was taken down by an incredibly skilled veteran."

As Wesley spoke, he made exaggerated gestures as if he had witnessed everything firsthand.

"A veteran? But I heard it was a student who stopped the attack," Phoebe questioned, finding Wesley's version different from what she had heard.

Wesley shook his head vigorously. "Trust me, it wasn't a student. Think about it. How could a student possibly take down someone like that? That criminal was terrifying!"

Phoebe thought about it for a moment and found his reasoning somewhat logical.

Although she had heard from multiple firsthand accounts that the hero who saved the passengers was a student preparing for the college entrance exam, it did seem improbable.

How could a frail student possibly defeat a ruthless, armed attacker?

So, she decided to drop the subject.

Jack, however, found the discussion awkward. After all, who could know the truth better than him? But he had no intention of continuing the conversation, so he quickly changed the topic.

"Feena, tell us about your life at Eirene Music Academy."

Wesley's interest was piqued immediately. "Oh, yes! Feena, are there many beauties at your academy? Introduce us to a few! We're already sophomores, but we're still single!"

Feena rolled her eyes at Wesley. "Just look at my two roommates today-that should tell you enough about that."

Lyla's and Sidney's faces flushed slightly at the compliment.

Then, Feena turned to Jack with a teasing smile. "Why? The way you're perking up your ears don't tell me you're interested too?"

Jack gave an awkward smile, but before he could respond, Wesley clapped him on the shoulder.

"Come on, Jack! No need to be shy-being single isn't something to be ashamed of. We should take this chance to have Feena introduce us to some girls. I've heard those at the music academy are all really pretty!"

Feena chuckled and agreed. "Alright, I'll introduce you guys when I get the chance."

Wesley looked beyond grateful, as if he could already see a bright future ahead.

At that moment, Phoebe suddenly asked, "Jack, I heard you have a girlfriend? A talented girl named Bella?"

Instantly, all eyes turned to Jack.

Even Phoebe's soft gaze subtly drifted toward him.

Wesley smacked Jack's shoulder hard. "Damn, Jack! You got a girlfriend and didn't tell your bros? That's not cool!"

Jack hurriedly clarified, "Bella and I are just classmates. Don't get the wrong idea."

"Really? I heard you two are pretty close," Phoebe said with a hint of doubt.

Jack sighed helplessly and nodded. "Seriously, we're just normal classmates."

Feena smiled playfully. "Alright, then! If that's the case, I'll find you guys some girlfriends when I get the chance."
