Chapter 30

What kind of devilish genius was this?

As the piece progressed, Jack's playing became increasingly effortless, as though the music itself had come alive in his hands. It was smooth and naturally flawless.

Luca was unable to contain his astonishment, and he slammed the table in sheer admiration as the piece came to an end.

Jack's performance was not only flawless, but in certain parts, it was even more refined than Luca's. Jack had infused the piece with his unique interpretation, making it more moving.

The guitar's sound alternated between passionate and surging, and soft and lyrical. Under Jack's fingertips, it felt like the flames of time, vividly brought to life.

Luca was utterly captivated by the enchanting music, completely lost in its spell. When Jack handed the guitar back to Luca, a sudden knock came at the door. Luca snapped out of his trance and quickly opened it.

A group of people entered. Among them were Ronnie, Joshua, Isaac, and Samuel. Even more eye-catching were the six girls who followed behind.

These six girls were stunningly beautiful, each exuding charm and grace. Their fair skin, tall figures, and carefully groomed appearances made them stand out. As they entered the dormitory, a subtle and elegant fragrance of perfume filled the air.

At that moment, their faces wore an expression of enchantment, as if still lost in the melody they had just heard.

Both Jack and Luca were momentarily dazzled. Even though they had seen beauties like Phoebe and Bella before, the allure of these six girls left them completely captivated.

They were clearly members of the music school's social dormitory. Only girls from the music school could possess such exceptional charm and grace.

Joshua began introducing them, "Let me introduce him. This is Luca Huds, the musical genius you've all wanted to meet. He's the one who played the guitar at the door just now."

However, when it came to introducing Jack, Joshua merely glanced at him briefly and then ignored him entirely.

At this gathering, Luca was undoubtedly the center of attention, with his handsome looks and musical talent being the key factors that drew the girls' admiration.

As for Jack, he was just an insignificant character in Joshua's eyes.

As soon as Joshua finished speaking, an alluring girl eagerly walked up to Luca and extended her fair hand to shake his.

Her voice was full of admiration. "Hello, Luca. I'm Jessica. The song you played just now was absolutely amazing. We were all outside listening, completely enchanted. I really admire you!"

Jessica's words were filled with affection for the piece and admiration for Luca.

In fact, the girls had arrived at the dormitory door a couple of minutes earlier, but they couldn't bring themselves to interrupt upon hearing the guitar. Instead, they stood at the door and quietly listened to the entire piece.

The guitar melody was so exquisite that it felt as if a music master was lost in his own world.

Although Jessica was also skilled at playing the guitar, Luca's level was undoubtedly the best among the talented people she knew.

Compared to his performance at the welcome party, Luca's improvement was almost unbelievable. He truly was a genius.

Jessica and the other girls considered themselves to have a good sense of music, but compared to Luca, they felt like they were worlds apart.

Luca felt a little embarrassed when faced with the praise and admiration of the many girls. He wanted to tell them that it wasn't him who had played the piece, but Jack.

However, saying that would be too shocking, and Luca was worried that it would damage his image.

Just as Luca was caught in his dilemma, Jack suddenly said, "Luca did play well. I felt like I was listening to a concert right here in the room."
