Chapter 31

Luca's eyes widened, not understanding why Jack had said that. It was Jack who had been playing, not Luca.

However, Jack didn't seem to have any intention of revealing the secret. Instead, he gave all the credit to Luca.

Luca sighed in relief. Since Jack didn't plan to expose the truth, there was no need for him to dwell on it. So, Luca smiled and didn't say anything further.

To the girls watching, Luca's silence was an acknowledgment of his performance. They thought his composed demeanor made him appear even more mysterious and charming.

He was so handsome, charming, and refined! The girls' admiration for Luca grew.

Isaac introduced Jack to the girls, highlighting that he was the top scholar in the state. For these proud and talented music students, that credential was no stranger to them.

Upon hearing his title, the girls gawked in surprise. Although Alnewgo University was full of talented individuals, being a top scholar was still impressive. However, their astonishment was only temporary.

To them, past achievements belonged to the past. They only cared if Jack accomplished anything noteworthy in college such as making a big impression at the welcome party or having a legendary moment during training. They also wondered if he held a leadership position in class or participated in clubs.

Yet, Jack didn't seem to have any accomplishments in those areas. In short, he was just an ordinary student.

The one thing that stood out was the fact that Bella was pursuing him.

A girl exclaimed, "So, you're Bella's crush?"

This caused a stir among the girls. They might not have been familiar with Jack, but they had heard the story of Bella pursuing a boy.

Especially during training, when Bella had bought Jack drinks, only to be rejected. That incident had become a popular topic of gossip.

The girl was close to Bella and knew more about the situation. She even knew that Jack had been wearing a knockoff Adidas tracksuit when he and Bella had first met. The story had become a running joke in their circle.

After hearing these rumors, some of the girls who were initially interested in Jack couldn't help but lose some of their enthusiasm.

Seeing this, Joshua took the opportunity to introduce the six girls that they were with.

The girls lived in a dorm across from theirs in a building shared by music and finance students. It was a dormitory well-known for its beautiful women. Every day, luxury cars would line up outside, and all sorts of love stories unfolded there.

Jessica was the leader of Dorm 610, and Anya, Bella's friend, was particularly charming. The other four girls were Miranda, Queenie, Amelia, and Jenna.

All of them were stunning, but Amelia stood out the most to Jack.

She had light makeup on and a delicate appearance. She exuded an elegance that contrasted with the outgoing personalities of the other music students. She was like a breath of fresh air, quietly listening to the conversations and occasionally offering a smile.

As it was the first gathering between the two dorms, the atmosphere was lively and harmonious.
