Chapter 36

At the same time, Jack's online career was thriving.

A fan club for Soul quietly emerged on the internet, with its registered members quickly surpassing 100 thousand users. These fans were active on various social platforms, constantly calling for new releases from their idol.

Every move Soul made tugged at the hearts of countless fans, and he even became a regular headliner. Numerous entertainment companies extended offers to the mysterious person called Soul, hoping that he would join them.

However, Jack declined all their invitations. He didn't want to step into the spotlight too soon. He had bigger dreams and ambitions to pursue.

One sunny weekend afternoon, Jack lay on his bed, relishing a rare moment of peace in the dormitory.

While his roommates were each busy with their own lives, Jack alone enjoyed this tranquil moment.

Suddenly, Luca walked in with a sheet of music in hand, seeking Jack's advice. Luca hoped that Jack's guidance would help him excel in the upcoming ranking competition.

This competition was incredibly significant for Luca, as it would be broadcast live on television.

While practicing his new song, Luca had encountered some challenges. Though he had already mastered tonal transitions, he wanted to elevate his performance even further, so he came to Jack for help.

Taking the guitar from Luca, Jack made a few adjustments before demonstrating the tricky parts that Luca was struggling with.

The results were immediate. The sections that seemed difficult for Luca flowed effortlessly in Jack's hands.

Luca couldn't help but ask Jack to play the entire song, hoping to identify his weaknesses and learn how to improve.

Listening to Jack play wasn't just a learning experience for Luca, it was an absolute pleasure. Sometimes, it even sparked creative inspiration for his compositions.

As Jack played, the dormitory door, which hadn't been fully shut, was blown open by the breeze.

Suddenly, Bella appeared at the doorway.

It had been a month since she had contacted Jack. Today, she couldn't hold back anymore and came to see him.

Bella had invited Jack to hang out, but he had brushed her off, leaving her upset and frustrated. Now, she was determined to confront him and find out why he was so cold toward her.

However, as she approached the dormitory, the sound of the guitar from inside caught her attention.

The music was elegant and captivating.

At first, Bella assumed that it was Luca playing. She was well aware of his musical talents and thought that he must have improved once again.

But when she pushed the door open, she was stunned to see that the person playing was actually Jack, while Luca sat beside him.

In that moment, Bella's resentment melted away, replaced by a newfound appreciation for Jack.

Jack was incredibly talented!
