Limits 87

Chapter 87

In such a dire situation, finding a new, high-quality original song was almost impossible.

Unwilling to give up, Luca asked Zoe if she knew anyone who could provide a fresh composition. The answer was predictable-no such resource was available at the last minute.

In his desperation, Luca suddenly thought of Jack. He had a knack for pulling off miracles. Perhaps he could help.

Although it was likely wishful thinking, Luca decided to seek Jack's help.

He approached Samuel and the others, asking for Jack's whereabouts. Samuel pointed in a certain direction. "I think Bella dragged him to the backdoor corner."

Without wasting a second, Luca hurried over.

Before long, he found Jack and Bella.

No longer concerned about maintaining his image as the "Prince of Love Songs", Luca pleaded in an almost desperate tone, "Jack, please help me! Seth sang the song I prepared. Can you find me a good song to perform? I'll do anything to make it past this round!"

His eyes were filled with despair and desperation. Jack clearly understood the severity of his predicament.

After a moment of thought, Jack asked, "If I teach you a new song right now, can you learn it on the spot?"

Luca was taken aback but quickly responded, "If I have the lyrics and melody, I can do it!"

Luca trusted his musical talent and ability to learn quickly. As long as he had the material, he believed he could master it in a short time.

However, doubt lingered in his heart. Did Jack really have a new song ready for him? This seemed too good to be true.

But with no other options, he could only place his hopes in Jack.

As if reading Luca's thoughts, Jack smiled faintly and nodded. "Good. Leave it to me."

A wave of warmth swept through Luca, as if he had grabbed onto a lifeline. Clinging to this chance, his spirits lifted.

Meanwhile, Bella stood to the side, staring at Jack in stunned disbelief. To her, this sounded like an unbelievable joke.

Could Jack really compose a song?

This was entirely beyond her expectations. While she had always sensed that Jack had a unique talent, the ability to compose music was extraordinary.

What shocked her even more was that Jack planned to demonstrate it himself. Wasn't it said that Jack was terrible at singing?

Inside the auditorium, the dazzling lights illuminated the stage as Seth held the song originally meant for Luca, performing it with deep emotion.

Despite some technical roughness, his performance still drew rounds of applause.

Meanwhile, Zoe, Samuel, Isaac, and Joshua anxiously awaited the outcome, silently praying that Luca could pull off a miracle.

In this tense mood, almost no one noticed Luca in the corner, his eyes alight with anticipation, as though he had found a lifeline.

Under Luca's eager gaze and Bella's astonishment, Jack reached into his pocket and pulled out a somewhat messy note.

It contained his most recent composition, nearly completed a third song he had been crafting with great care.

This note was significant to Jack. He had planned to finalize it, record it in a proper studio, and release it online.

But fate had other plans.