

Love Of A Billionaire

Chapter 80

Chapter 80 Her Agenda

Luna watched happily from the side. The reason she was so happy was not because Allen was willing to pay for such expensive bodyguards to protect Arya but more so that Arya had met a husband who doted on her.

These bodyguards were highly skilled, some of them had to protect the country's leaders and they never cooperated with individual customers. It was only due to Allen's social status, they agreed, otherwise, they wouldn't have considered to be Arya's bodyguards.

Once the agreement becomes valid, it would seem like Arya had took out an enormous insurance policy and didn't have to worry about people doing things behind her back.

Knowing how Daniel treated Arya in the past, Allen's heart ached so he used his power to provide all the support he could give her. As long as it was something Arya wanted to do, he would support her one hundred percent.

When Luna walked out of Arya's bedroom, her eyes became teary, "Arya finally knows the meaning of being happy."

"Luna, Arya's future will only get better."

"That's right. Let's make those scumbags regret everything they did. I wish him and Caroline a lifetime together, bitter to the end and never hinder Arya's happiness ever again."

"When their marriage goes public, I have to take a good look at Daniel's reaction."

In order to create momentum for Caroline, Daniel had got in contact with most of Brilliant Entertainment's internal connection. Overnight, all of the internet tabloids were headlines of Caroline going global with a reality show. He also bribed quite a few networks and online forums to only air and posts good things about Caroline to dominate everything that happened between him and Arya.

Furthermore, they posted some of Caroline's refined photos side by Arya's daily photos to show that Caroline's beauty and figure were far better than Arya, hence the reason for Caroline being top star of Brilliant Entertainment.

Arya had already expected they would be using such spiteful tactics.

Fortunately, there were many fans who had been following Arya as well. They were very concerned that Brilliant Entertainment would conceal Arya and lose the opportunity to stage a comeback.

When the news came out, it was only Caroline whom kept the hype going. Arya wasn't even bothered to respond, as if she was ready to resign herself to be Caroline's foil.

After checking with Arya, Caroline finally understood her agenda. She did not think this was the right time to retaliate yet, because she is well aware there will be a better opportunity for a counterattack in future. Julia tried her best to control her fan's reactions, asking everyone to respect Arya's choice. All of Arya's fans knew she had a calm and gentle personality so they did not go online to pick fights with Caroline's fans.

Daniel thought the news would cause a lot of bickering online and he would take advantage of the connections to control Arya. But because Arya remained silent, his plan failed.

"Daniel, my followers has risen again!" Caroline said. She was elated as she looked at the website.

Caroline's assistant chimed in, "Arya is no match to Caroline. Arya's followers are not even a fraction of Caroline's."

"I am popular because I have contributed many years in the industry. Do you think Arya is able to catch up in a few days?" Caroline smiled boastfully, "Daniel, why don't you say something?"

"I'm wondering if there's something going on. Why is Arya not doing anything about this?" He sighed, "Although we have the advantage on our side, you have yet to reach the peak of Arya's standard. When 'Behind the Scenes' starts, you have to put more efforts in so everyone can see your ability!"

Caroline's eyes had traces of pride when she heard this, "Not to worry, the acting teacher you hired for me taught me a lot. I will outshine Arya."

"That's not enough. You have to remember the directors and other actors. You need to have a good relationship with them too. Now that the company has invested in you, you shall not lose to Arya. Otherwise not only yourself but Daniel and I will be compromised."

Davina said as she entered into the room with a threatening stare.

Caroline nodded vigorously, "I will make sure Arya regret it. Anything she can, I can do as well! Brilliant Entertainment will still progress without her!"
