

Chapter 108 Cuter than I thought

108

AMALTHEA'S POV

"Wait! Alpha Ace! You can't leave me like this," I shouted behind him, and he paused in his actions before half turning towards me.

"Luna Jade, please be mindful of your words. If someone heard you right now, they might think I wronged you or something," Alpha Ace said, and I pressed my lips into a thin line.

"Well then, you should not leave a conversation in the middle, that to be of such suspense," I said, and he smiled.

"I think I said whatever I wanted to say. I am not in the mood to speak about anything else. I have given you enough hints. Why don't you ask for the rest of the things from Harry? You were the original heir to the council chambers. You should have access to the documents here, no? Why don't you make use of it? Work a little hard, maybe?" He said, and I nodded at him.

"I understand," I said, as I got the hint he was trying to give me.

"Thank you," I said, and he nodded before turning away from me and leaving, making me sigh as I stood near the fountain, my mind a bit messed with all the information overload.

I don't even know who I should trust anymore. Alpha Ace doesn't have any reason to lie to me. He won't gain anything from it, but why are his words contradicting what Antonio told me?

Ace said Alpha Cane didn't marry his mate and was still living in our pack, and he mocked me for letting that happen. Antonio said he killed Alpha Cane many years ago.

Now, if I consider and believe that both of them are telling the truth, then according to that, Alpha Cane was killed many years ago, but the man living with us is also Alpha Cane.

Either Alpha Cane had a twin brother that no one knew of, or someone has been hiding under the disguise of Alpha Cane, and if that's the case, then how come Blake knows nothing about it? Or is it that this Alpha Cane has tricked him, too? According to what Antonio said about the time when he killed Blake's father, Blake must've been just a kid, no? Is he innocent in this, or is he the second mastermind after Alpha Cane?

0.0%

14:44

I thought before closing my eyes as I let the sound of the water flowing from the fountain calm my nerves.

Whom should I turn to for further knowledge?

Antonio is a man who has knowledge about many things and can be of great use, but can he really help me out? From what happened last night, contacting him to get some information can become lethal for me. He is adamant about getting the powers back, isn't he?

Was he serious when he said the powers might over me and kill my wolf? But is that even possible? Crystal is the wolf of the world and the strongest she-wolf ever known in history. Can some siren powers really kill my wolf? Are these powers that powerful?

He said the answers to my questions regarding these powers and Sirens are Greenville forests, but can I trust him on this?

Is there a way I can use these powers for my benefit? That's absurd. I don't even know how to save my sanity from these. How can I use them for my benefit? I thought before taking a deep breath.

I thought I was getting close to my target when I killed Lycan Minister, who was the reason my mom suffered such a tragic death, but why do I feel like I was just starting? Why are things getting more complicated than ever?

I was supposed to get it done within three months with my capabilities, but why is it taking so long? Alpha Ace was right. For someone who is trying to find answers, I am oblivious to a lot of things. Things that I should've known about even before starting my journey.

Feeling someone placing their hand on my shoulders, I sighed before opening my eyes.

"It's okay. Don't stress yourself so much. I am here. We will find everything soon. Let me help you," I heard Augustus's voice, and I turned around before looking into his eyes, feeling emotional.

"Thanks," I said, and he nodded before brushing his knuckles on my cheeks.

"It distresses me so much when I see you sad and confused like this. The girl I know is strong-headed and doesn't get annoyed with things so easily. She always has a solution to things and a prediction of what to do next," Augustus said, and his words paired with his sweet voice as he looked at me with so much tenderness, made my heart beat a little faster.

"You know, sometimes I feel I am really lucky to have met you," I said out of the blue, and he widened his eyes slightly, making me smile as I didn't miss how his ears started turning red.

"I...I, why don't we go inside?" He asked me as he turned away from me, and I couldn't keep the smile off my face as I could clearly see he was getting shy.

"Augustus," I said, and he hummed, not looking at me directly as we walked towards the entrance of the living room.

"You are cuter than I had thought," I said before walking ahead of him, feeling my mood improving tenfold as I looked at his dazed form.

"Hey! Can you repeat what you said to my face? I dare you to say it again! I am not cute! I am dangerous!" Augustus said from behind me, and I turned towards him while walking backward before smiling at him.

"Okay, big dangerous bad boy," I said, and he narrowed his eyes.

"Are you by any chance mocking me?" He asked me, and I shook my head.

"How can I dare?" I asked, and he gritted his teeth, making me blow a kiss at him, and as if shocked by my actions again, he paused in his steps before looking at me with a blank expression, and I chuckled before turning around and leaving.

Though Augustus was just motivating me, he is indeed right. I got so sucked up in this game of chasing and pretending that I forgot who I really was.

I was a fighter and winner. A girl who always knows what to do next and can't stay down for long. I am someone who has this insatiable hunger for winning and revenge. There is no way in hell I can feel down because of the information overload. Rather I should be feeling overwhelmed that I was able to find out about so many things in 24 hours.

I think now it's time. The time to set up a trap for some of my enemies to fall into, and it looks like Throb is going to be helping a lot in this.