

Chapter 66 I wish Augustus was my mate

66

AMALTHEA'S POV

"So? What do you mean you are busy and won't be able to answer me before the end of this month? There is a reason I gave this project to you. If it would have been so easy, I wouldn't be asking you to have your best men handle it, right? Or is it you think you can handle the rest of your work first and mine later because I don't press you on deadlines? I want all the information about this guy within two days," I said to the leader of the spy group, and he sighed.

"Why are you so gloomy today? Did something happen?" He asked me, and I sighed.

"How do you know?" I asked as I looked out of the window of the guest room.

"Anyone who knows you could know something has happened, or you won't be talking like this. What happened?" He asked with a concerned voice, and I smiled in self-mockery.

"What do you think could've happened with my bitter luck? I went to pay my mother's tomb respect on her death anniversary, but someone from my pack rattled me out, turning the day I wanted the most peace into another struggle of life," I said, and he sighed.

"Meet me, and I'll make sure I unveil all the people who have been betraying you," The leader said, and I sighed.

"I will send you the money on time. Remember the points I said. He is an enemy of the werewolf community. And judging from how my resources defined him, I think he is not a werewolf either. Still, I don't want you to leave anything behind, so search for all the men named Antonio. The sooner you get me this information, the more will be the payment. You know me, I can be really generous when it comes to rewarding," I said, ignoring his words earlier, and he sighed.

Chapter 66 I wish Augustus was my mate

+120 Points at most

"I remember what you've asked. Stop ignoring my words. If you meet me, I'll do it for free. You kill so many rogues and are always on track. I don't see why you are so adamant about not meeting me," He said, and I smiled.

"I love the element of surprise the most," I said before ending the call.

Antonio, or whoever you are, let's see how long you stay hidden from me.

The only person left is Azura.

Wait. Rather than wasting my time and money on finding this woman, why don't I ask that so-called servant to help me? I thought and was about to sit on the bed to concentrate when a maid knocked on my door.

"Miss, the door of the room has been fixed. Since your luggage is still there, if you want to move back, you can do so anytime," The maid said, and I hummed in reply.

It's clear that I can't think of performing anything here. Even though the rooms of this mansion are most probably soundproof, I won't be able to help the constant disturbance, not to mention how Augustus has the last word here. If I got lost in the hymns and didn't open the door, there are high chances that he would keep banging on the door if not knocking it down.

"I'll be there," I said before walking out of the room towards my previous room.

Not looking where I was going, I was about to bump into the pillar if someone hadn't stopped me at the right time.

"Don't worry. I got you," I heard his voice beside my ear, and I smiled before muttering a quick thanks.

I don't know if I am imagining things these days, but I feel like he talks like he has a deeper meaning behind everything he says. As he said, I got you just now. It felt like he wasn't just talking about my bumping into the pillar but in a reference to everything.

14.8%

Special bonus over 40% >

13:43

"What is it?" He asked me with a concerned look, and I sighed before shaking my head.

"It's good you met me here. I'll be going out tomorrow. I hope you can ask your guards to let me go, or I have other ways too," I said, looking him straight in the eyes before turning to walk again, not wanting him to see I was getting anxious about what happened in the pack.

"I know. Can you at least tell me where you are going? Do you need some guards to accompany you that will ensure your safety? Or should I come?" Augustus asked me, and I looked at him from the corner of my eyes.

"I would rather go alone. I don't want any disturbance. Besides, your scent is a bit too strong. It's work-related. And before you think of a way to keep a look at me, let me mention I am going out to meet a client to talk about the other works that earn me money. So I want complete peace at that time," I said, and he looked like he was about to say something, but rather than that he gripped my hand and pulled me into a random room.

"Augustus, what are you -" I started, but he placed his finger on my lips.

"Look, I know it's very hard on you and I can't even imagine what you are going through, but can you please let it out and let me take care of you? Cry it out if you want to. Don't keep it inside. I am here to console you and handle you if you feel low," He said as he massaged my cheeks, and I looked into his brown eyes that looked like they were trying to peer into my soul.

"I don't know what you are talking about," I said before standing and walking towards the balcony of the room.

"You know exactly what I am talking about. Do you think I don't see how the smile on your face has been completely wiped off since you came back? Do you think I don't see that you are still angry and sad about what happened back there? If you want to vent out your frustration, then vent it out on me, I promise I won't utter a word. Just don't keep it inside. The sadness in your eyes is killing me," he said before hugging me from behind, and I took a sharp breath as I suddenly felt like I was safe.

"Why would I take out my anger on you when you are not the one who wronged me? In fact, you have been someone who has handled me when I was weak on my mother's tomb," I said, and he turned me to face him.

"Amalthea, I want to handle you all your life. I know you are strong and you are independent, but I want to be the person on whom you can rely with your eyes closed. I want to be there for you. I want to be the shoulder you can place your head on and cry when you are too sad. My hands should be the ones to wipe your tears, and my lap should be the place you lay down and relax," Augustus said with a meaningful glance, and I felt my heart melting at his words.

"Mr. Dominic, what are you -" I started, but he just cupped my face with his left palm before leaning in.

I know he was leaning in slowly to let me have the choice of dodge, but for some reason, I didn't want to dodge. I wanted him to kiss me, to drown my sorrows.

I don't know why it was, but kissing him felt right.

Not knowing what came over me, I placed my hand on his collar before I gripped it. Pulling him closer, I placed my lips on his, closing my eyes when I felt the soft touch of his lips, melting me in his arms as I let him hold me.

Judging from his pause, I know he didn't expect me to do something like that.

Opening my eyes, I removed my lips before sighing.

"Amalthea -" he suddenly said as if unsure before looking at me, and as if he got some kind of answer in my eyes, the next thing I know, he picked me, making me wrap my legs around his torso as he supported me with his hands on my hips with my back touching the wall.

Placing his lips softly on my lips, he pressed himself further into me and was about to deepen the kiss when I bit his lips, making him snarl.

Feeling my body vibrating at his deep throaty snarl, I felt shy as I realized what I was doing.

Looking away, making him kiss my cheeks, I chuckled at his puzzled expression before locking my hand on his neck.

"Did you really think you could kiss me so easily, Kyle?" I asked, and as soon as I uttered those words, his eyes immediately changed to hazel brown.

"Of course not, my lady. I know I have to work very hard to win your heart. However, I was hoping I could get some motivation through these small tokens of kisses," Kyle said as he placed his forehead on mine before breathing heavily, his chest touching mine, making me aroused.

"You have no idea how much I am falling for you, Amalthea Jade," He said to me before kissing my nose, making me smile.

"And maybe I like it?" I said, and he distanced himself a bit before looking at me wide-eyed.

"You, what?" He asked me, and I smirked before looking away.

"Why should I say the same thing twice? I already said it once. If you didn't hear, it's your loss," I said, and he bit his lips before pecking my lips, again and again, making loud noises, and I couldn't help but giggle at his way of displaying his affection.

"I love you, Amalthea Jade," He blurted, and I widened my eyes as this was the first time he was confessing these words so straightforwardly. Not knowing what to do, I was about to tell him I don't know how to answer him. However, before I could say anything, Augustus took over, and he smiled at me awkwardly before sighing.

"Don't feel pressured by his words. You know how wolves are," Augustus said before tucking my hair behind my ear, and I hummed before looking out of the balcony door.

"If you guys think your cheesy words will make me take you guys with me, then you are surely mistaken. I am still going alone," I said, and he sighed.

"We didn't expect you to change your mind, either. We know you are strong-headed," He said, making both of us chuckle as he carried me out of the room to where my room was. And did I mention I was still in his arms with my legs wrapped around his waist?

However, as if he had asked everyone to vacate the third floor, I didn't see anyone on the floor the whole way, making me smile at his thoughtfulness.

Chapter 66 I wish Augustus was my mate

+120 Points at most

Sometimes I wonder how great it would've been if this Augustus was my true mate and I had met him sooner. Even if nothing had happened between us, I wouldn't have fallen for Blake after meeting such a handsome man, either. I thought before shaking my head at the bizarre thoughts.

I think his shameless actions and Kyle's love confession is getting to my head.

Author's Note- Please comment your views and support me with your coins and gifts. I will be updating two chapters starting tomorrow. Love you all.

💰 Bountiful Free Coins are waiting for you, don't miss out!

GO NOW