

Chapter 79 A coincidence

79

AMALTHEA'S POV

"Augustus?" I whispered softly, smiling when he didn't budge and only tightened his hold on my abdomen, smuggling his face closer to my chest.

"Augustus, I need to leave," I whispered again before sighing helplessly, smiling like a fool as I looked at his calm expression.

"Who would've thought the big bad wolf would look this cute while sleeping peacefully?" I murmured before sliding from below him as smoothly as I could.

Taking out my bag with minimal noise, I checked my things one last time before writing a small note for him.

Kissing his cheeks softly, smiling when he groaned, I sighed with a heavy heart before closing the door.

Walking out of the Palace with my duffle bag in hand, I looked at the message from the driver before spotting the car, coming toward me.

"Is it Miss Am?" A driver asked as he stopped in front of me, and I nodded at him before showing him the code for the ride.

'You look sad,' I heard Crystal's voice, and I rolled my eyes.

She clearly knows what I am feeling and why I am feeling emotions like that. I am sure she is just trying to provoke me to get me to say things I don't want.

'If you have so much idle time too he concerned about what I am feeling, why don't you make use of your useless self and tell me why I have siren powers? I don't believe the wolf of the world knows nothing about what is happening with the person she is residing in. I know you are just hiding the truth from me,' I said, and she looked at me with narrowed eyes, making me scoff, and I looked out of the window.

0.0%

15:24

After a ride of two hours, I changed my position and opened the window to look out of the car.

"Is it a highway?" I asked, wanting to put my head out of the window, and the driver smiled before nodding.

"You can enjoy the wind if you want, miss. This is not a busy highway. Do you have a relative in the Black Village? Not many people go there," The human asked, and I hummed.

The black village was a facade to hide the identity of the Black blood pack from the world.

Though it is one of the most remote packs, it is also one of the most developed ones.

Squinting my brows when I saw a distant car parked at the side of the road with a tyre lying at some distance, I shrugged and was about to get back inside when the car stopped with a jerk, making me look at the driver.

"What happened?" I asked.

"I think someone is asking for help, Miss Am," The driver said, and I quirked my brows.

"How many people are they?" I asked.

"They are two guys," He said, and I sighed.

"How long have you been working as a cab driver? Don't you know not to stop the car in a remote area when you have a single lady passenger? Don't you know how dangerous it is for the girl? Even your windows are rolled down. The least you could do was ask them from some distance to know about the matter," I said.

"I am sorry, Miss Am. I will drive the car right away," He said, and I shook my head and was about to tell him to see what was the matter as I wasn't afraid when I saw the two guys walking towards us, and I pulled down my hat even further to not let them see me.

"Hey, we are extremely sorry to disturb you, but our car got a flat tyre, and we don't have a spare one. We need to go to the Black village. Can you please drop us at a nearby village where we can get some help? Please, we are in dire need of some help," one of the men said, and I sighed.

"Miss, the guys are asking -" The driver said.

"Okay. The fare will be split," I said, and he nodded before looking at the guys who were already opening the door to enter the car, making me raise my brows, but I didn't say anything nonetheless.

"Where are you guys going? We have been waiting for someone to pass the road for two hours," the guy said again, and the driver told him where we were heading.

"Woah, what a coincidence," the man said.

"It's indeed a coincidence," I heard the other man's voice for the first time, and I couldn't help but raise the tip of my cap to look beside me, quirked my brows when I saw who it was.

"Alexander?" I asked, and he shrugged.

"A coincidence indeed," He said, and I smiled before sitting normally.

"Why are you going to the black village, if you don't mind me asking?" Alexander said, and I looked at the so-called mini-demon before smirking.

"I do mind," I said, and he smiled before shaking his head.

"You have a way to keep people around you curious, don't you?" He said.

"Mam, do you know the sir?" The driver suddenly asked, and I hummed.

"But that doesn't mean what I said earlier isn't valid," I said, and he nodded.

"I am sorry, miss Am," he said, and I hummed.

"Miss Am?" Alexander said with a smirk, and I rolled my eyes.

"Driver, you can take a break at the next restaurant you find. Let's eat

Chapter 79 A coincidence

+120 Points at most something, okay? Don't worry. It will be on me," I said, and he smiled.

"Quite generous, I see," Alexander commented, and I sighed.

I don't have any feud with him, and he even saved my life, then why the hell am I feeling like pulling his hair at the moment? I thought before giving him the side-eye.

'Or maybe, it's because you miss Augustus?' Crystal said, and I rolled my eyes, not denying her word, nonetheless.

