

Chapter 806 A Good Ending

Celia slept until the next afternoon and discovered that Tyson was not beside her. However, she did not feel scared because she believed he would never abandon her and they would always be together.

After getting dressed, Celia left the bedroom and saw Tyson emerging from the kitchen with steaming food.

As soon as he noticed her, he flashed an alluring, sweet, and captivating smile and said, "You're finally up. Come and eat."

Celia sat down and asked, "Why did you wake up so early to cook?"

Tyson replied, "I exhausted you last night. So I wanted to make it up to you today. Also, I can't let you go hungry. Who knows, you might be carrying my child now."

As Celia reminisced about their intimate moments from the previous night, she blushed and retorted, "It's not going to happen that quickly!"

Tyson leaned in and planted a kiss on her cheek. "Well then, I'll just have to put in more effort," he teased.

Celia shot him a stern look and warned, "It's daytime. Stop it."

Tyson sat beside her with a grin and replied, "Okay, I'll stop. After last night, I'm afraid you'll get angry if I continue. Let's see if my cooking skills have improved."

Celia took a bite of the food and praised, "Your cooking skills have gotten much better. You're becoming more and more qualified to be a stay-at-home husband."

Tyson chuckled awkwardly and responded, "In that case, you'll have to be responsible for making money."

During the meal, they chatted and laughed. After that, they cuddled up on the sofa to watch TV.

Since it was the weekend and they had completed all their tasks, they decided to decline their friends' invitations and enjoy a well-deserved day of rest at home together.

Tyson asked, "Do you want to return to Hosworth or settle down in Captern?"

Celia replied hesitantly, "I'm not sure."

The Carter and Wagner families were in Captern. So, if she returned to Hosworth, it would be challenging to visit her families in the future.

On the other hand, she had spent many years in Hosworth and had grown to consider it her hometown. Furthermore, her closest friends lived there.

Understanding her concerns, Tyson suggested, "You don't need to decide now. We can focus on building our business in Captern first. If you want to return to Hosworth later, we can make the trip easily on our private plane."

Celia nodded. "That sounds like a good plan. Besides, I want to learn more about my mother here."

Thus, the couple decided to settle in Captern for the time being and notified the Carter, Wagner, and Shaw families of their decision.

Tyson hadn't planned to inform the Shaw family, but Celia thought he should tell Hendrix and forgive him. She explained why she decided to acknowledge Alec as her father but didn't pressure Tyson into doing anything. After some contemplation, Tyson decided to give Hendrix a chance.

When the families learned about their decision, they were elated and expressed joy.

Celia had a soft spot for the Carter family, as they had kept her mother's room intact over the years. Every so often, she and Tyson would pay them a visit and get a glimpse of her mother's past life.

In the meantime, Celia played peacemaker between Tyson and Hendrix, and things were moving in a positive direction.

Brea and Wayne had introduced their parents to each other. The Evans family wasn't pleased with Brea, but Wayne was determined to be with her and ready to fight tooth and nail for her.

The two decided to relocate to Captern and restart their careers there. Alita also came along with them. She had won a talent show in Hosworth, emerging as the top performer and becoming a popular new singer. Her relationship with Ronald had also developed.

Suddenly, all the people Celia loved were by her side. She felt fulfilled, knowing she would never have to endure the pain of separation again.

After some time, Celia became pregnant after Tyson's persistent efforts.

Everyone felt surprised by the news, and they all fussed over her, treating her like a fragile flower.

Tyson took things to the next level. He left his job and became a full-time husband, leaving the company in Briar's hands.

Nine months later, Celia gave birth to a baby girl, a beautiful little princess that was the product of their love.

Having experienced countless moments of separation and near-death experiences in her past, Celia felt grateful to have Tyson by her side. Together, they had faced every challenge and never let go of each other's hands.

They had worked hard to rebuild their lives, and as a result, everything had started falling into place. This was due to the remarkable strength and inspiration that love could bring to people.
