Chapter 5747

Seizing the opportunity, the black-haired giant ape pounced forward, slamming its fist into the giant ape's head with all its might!

“Crack!”

The sound of the skull shattering was clearly audible.

The dark-gold giant ape struggled a few times, but finally its breath died, its crimson eyes losing their luster.

The battle was over, leaving only heavy breathing in the basin.

The black-haired giant ape stood beside its opponent's corpse, letting out a triumphant roar, proclaiming ownership of this treasure land and the Blood Spirit Mushrooms.

David sheathed his sword, calming his surging blood and qi.

He walked to the three Blood Spirit Mushrooms, radiating an alluring glow, his heart filled with joy, preparing to reach out and pluck them.

However, a gigantic hand covered in black fur blocked his way.

David was taken aback, turning to look at the black-haired giant ape, his brows furrowing slightly.

Was this beast planning to betray him?

But there was no hostility in the giant ape's eyes. It growled, pointing its enormous finger at the Blood Spirit Mushroom, then at itself, and then gesturing clumsily.

David's doubts deepened. He temporarily withdrew his hand, wanting to see what the giant ape was up to.

The black-haired giant ape cautiously approached a Blood

Spirit Mushroom. It didn't roughly pluck it as David had expected. Instead, it extended its rough finger and, with a gentle touch completely disproportionate to its size, lightly touched the edge of the Blood Spirit Mushroom's cap.

The next moment, something strange happened!

The crystal-clear Blood Spirit Mushroom, brimming with abundant life essence, visibly dimmed and withered the instant it was touched!

It was as if all its essence had vanished in an instant, ultimately turning into a small clump of lifeless ashes, dissipating into the air.

David stared in disbelief. What was going on?

Was the harvesting method wrong?

Just as he was filled with doubt and surprise, the black-haired giant ape made an even more unexpected move.

It let out a low growl, its chest heaving violently, as if it were gathering something.

A moment later, a drop of blood essence

, the size of a pigeon egg, dark golden in color, seemingly flowing with blood within, and radiating astonishing energy fluctuations, was slowly forced out of its mouth.

This drop of blood essence floated in the air, emanating powerful life energy and the unique aura of the giant ape.

Then, the giant ape controlled this drop of blood essence, slowly dripping it onto another intact Blood Spirit Mushroom.

The moment the blood essence touched the Blood Spirit Mushroom, another change occurred!

The Blood Spirit Mushroom did not wither, but instead, like lamp oil being lit, it suddenly lit up with a dazzling blood-red light!

The entire mushroom began to soften and liquefy, eventually transforming into a wisp of extremely pure, crimson essence energy, containing immense blood and qi power, as well as a strange life law.

This wisp of crimson essence energy seemed to possess sentience, swirling once in the air, and then, like a swallow returning to its nest, actively and swiftly disappeared into the chest area of the black-haired giant ape from which the blood essence had dripped.

“Buzz—!”

A powerful surge of energy erupted from the black-haired giant ape’s body, seemingly restoring most of its stamina depleted in battle.

Its wounds healed at a significantly faster pace, and even its aura seemed to have strengthened slightly!

It let out a satisfied growl, looking at David with a knowing look in its eyes.

David stood rooted to the spot, his heart churning with astonishment!

He understood completely!

This Blood Spirit Mushroom wasn't like ordinary spiritual herbs that could be directly harvested and consumed!

It was extremely special, containing a peculiar life contract or bloodline lock?

Directly touching and harvesting it would only cause its essence to dissipate instantly.

Only by using one's own blood essence as a guide, communicating and resonating with it especially, could one perfectly absorb its immense energy and make it one's own!

This black-haired giant ape wasn't abandoning him after using him; it was teaching him, most presently, the unique laws of spiritual herb absorption in this other world!

This Tenth Heaven truly possessed profound mysteries that were different from those of the lower realms!

David glanced at the remaining few Blood Spirit Mushrooms, then at the little Fire Qilin beside him, its eyes fixed on them and making gurgling sounds. A flash of understanding and determination crossed his eyes.

He took a deep breath and, mimicking the giant ape, circulated his internal energy, forcing out a drop of pale golden essence blood containing the power of a divine dragon.

Chapter 5748

Having grasped the secret of the Blood Spirit Mushroom, David no longer hesitated.

He held his breath and concentrated all his attention on the drop of pale golden essence blood at his fingertip. This essence blood not only contained his immense blood and qi power, but also a trace of supreme majesty originating from the divine dragon bloodline.

Following the giant ape's example, he carefully dripped this drop of essence blood onto the last Blood Spirit Mushroom, which also appeared to be the oldest and most spiritually potent.

“Buzz—”

The moment the essence blood touched the Blood Spirit Mushroom, a blood-red light even more intense than when the giant ape absorbed it shot into the sky!

The Blood Spirit Mushroom seemed to be infused with a soul, trembling violently, becoming completely transparent, with what appeared to be golden dragon shadows moving within.

Immediately afterward, it liquefied rapidly, transforming into a vast stream of energy far thicker and deeper in color, almost a dark gold!

This energy swirled in the air, radiating a pressure that even made the black-haired giant ape beside him feel a chill, then, like a hundred rivers flowing into the sea, it instantly entered David's brow, flowing straight through his limbs and bones!

“Boom—!”

David felt an indescribable torrent explode within his body!

This energy was pure and domineering, perfectly matching his own Chaotic Immortal Power and Divine Dragon Bloodline.

It frantically washed over his meridians, nourished his internal organs, and repaired the deepest, hidden injuries.

He dared not delay, immediately sitting cross-legged and circulating his cultivation technique to guide this vast energy.

His body was like a bottomless pit, greedily absorbing the life essence brought by the Blood Spirit Mushroom.

The wounds on his body healed, scabbed over, and fell off at a visible speed, revealing new skin.

The broken bones inside his body made soft “crackling” sounds as they were reconnected by stronger bone tissue.

The previously listless soul, like parched land receiving rain, quickly became full and solid, even stronger than before the injury!

After an unknown amount of time, David's surging aura gradually subsided. He suddenly opened his eyes, two tangible beams of light flashing and disappearing. He stood up, feeling the surging, seemingly inexhaustible power within his body, and couldn't help but let out a long roar that shook the surrounding ancient trees! Chen

Ping stood in the basin, his aura perfectly balanced and surging. His previously severe injuries had been completely healed under the nourishment of the abundant essence of the ten-thousand-year-old Blood Spirit Mushroom.

His cultivation had even advanced significantly beyond the seventh rank of the Human Immortal Realm, and his condition was better than ever before.

The process of the drop of pale golden blood at his fingertip resonating with the Blood Spirit Mushroom, transforming it into the purest life energy, still replayed in his mind.

The laws of heaven and earth and the characteristics of spiritual objects in this Tenth Heaven were indeed vastly different from those in the lower realm. If it weren't for the black-haired giant ape's personal demonstration, he probably would have truly wasted such a precious resource.

He looked at the black-furred giant ape beside him, his gaze lessening its previous exploitative intent and replaced by genuine recognition.

Although this giant ape wasn't fully intelligent, its wisdom in surviving the harsh forest and its tenacity for its territory's resources were worthy of respect.

"Let's go, take me away from this forest,"

David transmitted the message through divine sense, then mounted the giant ape's broad back once more.

The little fire qilin nimbly leaped onto his shoulder, affectionately nuzzling his cheek. Although it hadn't directly absorbed the blood spirit mushroom, the pure aura naturally emanating from David upon his recovery made its scales shine even brighter.

The giant ape let out a low growl and began its heavy journey in the direction it had indicated.

However, as they left the basin where the blood spirit mushroom grew, David clearly felt the giant ape's steps become unusually heavy and slow.

Its massive head repeatedly looked back at the dark red land, its enormous, bell-like eyes revealing an undisguised deep longing and reluctance.

This place is not only the land of glory it reclaimed after defeating its arch-enemy, but also the foundation upon which it survives and thrives.

David is not a heartless man; a clear distinction between gratitude and resentment is his principle.

This giant ape had guided him, taught him, and helped him recover. Forcibly taking it away from this blessed land would be tantamount to severing its path to enlightenment; he couldn't bring himself to do such a thing.

After a moment's hesitation, David patted the giant ape's rough, rock-like neck and gently transmitted his divine sense: "Alright, you can stay here. Protect this place and cultivate diligently."

The giant ape's massive body trembled violently, and it stopped in its tracks.

It slowly turned its head, its scarlet eyes filled with disbelief, followed by a surge of immense gratitude.

It set down David and the little fire qilin, then lowered its forelimbs to the ground, its ferocious head bowing solemnly three times to David, emitting a low, respectful whimper.

This was the way a demon beast expressed its highest gratitude and submission.

David smiled slightly and accepted the bow.

He confirmed again the direction the giant ape had indicated for leaving the forest. The giant ape nodded vigorously and let out a low, affirmative growl.

"Take care,"

David said one last time, then, without hesitation, he took the little fire qilin and transformed into a wisp of green smoke, quickly disappearing into the dense jungle, leaving the basin and the loyal giant ape behind.

Relying on the direction indicated by the giant ape and his own powerful divine sense to navigate, David swiftly traversed the dense primeval forest.

He no longer actively provoked demonic beasts, concealing his aura to the extreme, moving through the forest like a ghost.

Only when some demonic beasts with keen senses or a strong sense of territory launched an attack would he strike swiftly, eliminating them as quickly as possible.

This avoided prolonged battles and allowed him to harvest the essence contained within the demonic beasts, most of which he fed to the little fire qilin on his shoulder, who was watching him expectantly.

This forest, known as the edge of the Ten Thousand Beasts Mountain Range, was far more vast and dangerous than David had initially estimated.

He even encountered a Thorn Earth Dragon whose strength was comparable to a fifth-grade Celestial Immortal.

That creature lurked beneath a thick layer of humus, launching a sudden attack. Its massive, barbed body possessed astonishing strangulation power and could also spew venom with a strong paralyzing effect.

David fought the beast for a full incense stick's time, finally managing to kill it by using the momentary slowing effect created by the Time Law to pierce its relatively vulnerable head with the Dragon Slayer Sword.

This battle gave him a more direct understanding of the strength of the Tenth Heaven's demonic beasts and made him more cautious.

Along the way, he also discovered more spiritual plants unique to the Tenth Heaven.

There was a glowing Moonflower Mushroom that only appeared at night when absorbing the essence of the moon. Touching it would trigger hallucinogenic spores, but if carefully wrapped with divine sense and slowly guided with one's own energy, it could nourish the soul.

There was also a Thunder-Patterned Fruit that grew on lightning-struck wood, with tiny arcs of electricity dancing on its surface. Direct consumption would damage the meridians, but if slowly refined with the power of the Thunder Law, it could temper the body and enhance the power of the lightning source.

David tried them one by one. Although they were not as amazing as the Blood Spirit Mushroom, they gave him a deeper understanding of how to utilize the resources of the Tenth Heaven, and his own foundation was steadily accumulating.

The little fire qilin, following him, was constantly feasting.

The essence of various demonic beasts' flesh and blood, their inner cores, and the pure energy released when David refined spiritual plants all became its nourishment for growth.

Its size increased visibly, now resembling that of an ordinary foal. It could no longer sit securely on David's shoulder, but instead ran proudly beside him.

Its crimson scales became increasingly dazzling, with a faint golden tinge at the edges. The two small bumps on its forehead also seemed to have grown larger, and the qilin's true fire it breathed out was hotter and darker in color.

Ordinary first or second-grade celestial immortal demonic beasts would be instantly reduced to charcoal if they were burned by it. A Man Like None Other Novel Chapter 5750

Chapter 5750

He immediately stopped, signaling the little fire qilin to conceal its aura. The two, as if blending into their environment, silently crept behind a dense thicket of thorns, peering out through the gaps.

Ahead lay a relatively open hilly valley, where a fierce chase was unfolding.

Five cultivators, dressed in identical black robes with a grotesque, twisted ghost head embroidered in gold thread on their cuffs, seemingly devouring souls, were attacking two people.

The two being attacked had peculiar appearances, not purely human.

The man was extremely burly, nearly ten feet tall, with bulging muscles and faint tiger stripes on his bronze skin.

A clear "king" character mark was prominently displayed on his forehead. He wielded a massive axe, the size of a door, swinging it with ferocious force, exuding the fierce aura of a king of beasts.

The woman, on the other hand, was agile, with wheat-colored skin and a wild beauty in her face. Her eyes were unusually vertical, revealing a sharp and cunning nature.

A long, bushy tail with colorful rings swayed nimbly behind her, and she held a pair of short, gleaming spikes.

They emanated a strong demonic aura, but this aura was not the chaotic violence of uncivilized beasts in the forest. Rather, it was refined and ordered through some kind of cultivation technique, indicating the proficiency of a well-trained beast race!

At this moment, the man and woman were at their last gasp.

The man's hand was split open, blood staining the axe handle. His body was covered with deep, bone-revealing wounds, especially a claw mark on his back that almost exposed his internal organs. His breathing was heavy and labored.

The woman was slightly better, but her movements were noticeably slower. Her left shoulder was charred black, clearly injured by some kind of insidious magic. Blood dribbled from the corner of her mouth, and her vertical pupils were filled with rage and defiance.

"Hehehe... Two ungrateful beasts! If you don't hand over the map of the Beast Soul Crystal mine, the next strike will extract your souls and refine them into my Myriad Soul Banner, ensuring you never reincarnate!"

The leader, a man in black robes, possessed strength reaching the fifth rank of the Celestial Immortal Realm. He held a Soul-Summoning Banner shrouded in black mist, its surface displaying countless contorted faces of pain, emitting silent wails.

He shook the banner, emitting a chilling howl, while coldly laughing.

"Bah! You scum of the Myriad Souls Demon Sect! Bandits!"

Despite his severe injuries, the tiger-striped man's eyes blazed with fury, his voice booming like thunder: "The Ten Heavens are vast and boundless, you have your own territory; why do you repeatedly invade my Myriad Beasts Mountain Range, forcibly seizing the Beast Soul Crystal mines upon which my race depends for survival? Such actions are no different from those of the extraterrestrial demons!"

"Hmph, the law of the jungle prevails! Your beast race occupies this precious land yet shows no ambition, you should be the resources for the rise of my Myriad Souls Demon Sect!"

Another black-robed man grinned maliciously, summoning a ghastly green skull that spewed highly corrosive, poisonous fire towards the leopard-tailed woman.

"To protect the mountain range, I will die a thousand deaths!"

The leopard-tailed woman roared, her twin daggers crossing, unleashing two intersecting beams of cold light, barely managing to block the poisonous fire, but her body was once again shaken and forced to stagger backward. The Ten Thousand Souls Demon Sect!

Hiding in the shadows, David's eyes sharpened like a hawk the moment he heard those four words, a chilling killing intent rising from the depths of his heart!

All caution and thoughts of temporarily avoiding the limelight were thrown to the winds!
It was truly a case of searching high and low without finding it, only to have it come to him effortlessly!

That old dog, the Soul Devourer, was hiding within the Ten Thousand Souls Demon Sect!

Seeing that the black-robed leader seemed to have lost patience, the Ten Thousand Souls Banner in his hand shone brightly with black light.

It condensed into a gigantic ghostly claw, carrying a mournful soul howl, grabbing at the head of the almost powerless tiger-striped man, clearly intending to kill him.

David no longer hesitated!

"Little Qilin, attack!"

Before the words were even finished, his figure shot out from the thorn bushes like an arrow released from a bow!

While still in mid-air, the Dragon-Slaying Sword was already unsheathed, its cold light illuminating the slightly dim valley!

"The Five Elements revolve, the sword shatters all laws!"

He held nothing back, unleashing a killing move infused with his deepest understanding of the Five Elements laws!

A condensed sword aura, shimmering with multicolored light and seemingly containing countless tiny worlds within, tore through the air.

Carrying an unwavering and resolute killing intent, it arrived faster than expected, instantly traversing dozens of feet, aiming directly at the black-robed leader's brow and sea of consciousness!

This sword strike!

Fast!

Ruthless!

Precise!

It also contained an unparalleled sword intent of judgment and annihilation!
