Chapter 1201

He was always either busy with work, or had to deal with something urgent, whatever that may be!

Whenever he came back, he arranged his schedule so that he would return as soon as Sherry was finished with his shift!

It could not be any more obvious that he was only coming home to see Sherry, the damned bitch!

When Shannon thought of this, she rose to her feet and swept everything off the table, sending them crashing to the floor.

Celine was aghast and quickly rushed forward, "Miss, be careful! Don't hurt yourself—"

Smack!

Before she could finish cautioning Shannon, she received a blow across her face, accompanied by a stern roar.

"Get out!"

Celine could not believe what happened. She put a hand to her cheeks and quickly walked away with tears in her eyes.

Shannon continued causing havoc in the dining room before stomping away. She clasped her hands with a sinister glow in her eyes. She had to do something to remove Sherry from the picture!

Hailey fell silent.

Chapter 1202 "I don't want to go. These little events are entirely meaningless." It was always one and the same thing. She had to entertain one guest after another and make boring small talk. If she accidentally blurted out the wrong thing, she would end up getting punished.

Her mother was the worst offender of them all and always nagged at her whenever she went.

Sherry cocked an eyebrow upon hearing this and stayed silent.

"Don't you want to join in the fun? Why don't you go instead?" Queenie suddenly suggested.

Sherry answered, "I'd rather eat and watch TV here. This is much more interesting."

Queenie seemed to ponder for a moment, then she scoffed and told Hailey to sit down again.

Chapter 1203 Shannon scanned her surroundings for a moment before walking out.

After the two went outside, Mason immediately enquired, "What happened to Sherry?"

Shannon revealed, "She's at John's place right now."

Mason was taken aback by this. "I thought she left. Why did she come back?"

Shannon sighed and said, "I'm not going to hide anything from you. She's currently working as a servant for John because she owes him eight hundred million, so she has to slave away for him to pay off her debt."

"What the hell is going on? How did she come to owe him eight hundred million dollars?"

"It's a long story, but don't worry. I'll tell you everything."

"Out with it then!" Sherry was being forced to work as a slave for her ex-boyfriend and her sister's husband, no less, so how was Mason not supposed to feel unnerved by the situation?

Shannon began to relay everything from the beginning to the end of how Sherry came to owe John such a vast sum.

Mason was in disbelief upon hearing the story, "So, you're saying that our family is the reason she came to owe him eight hundred million?"

Sherry grimaced irritably before approaching John.
John remained seated gracefully on his throne and looked at her like a monarch toying with its subjects.
Shannon remained seated as well with an unchanging expression although the look in her eyes seemed to have dimmed a little.
Sherry walked mechanically. She hardly spared so much as a glance at both of them the entire time. She approached the table with a pot of tea in her hand and poured its contents into a teacup, then she took the cup and handed it to John.
He took the cup and seemed to intentionally brush his fingers against the back of Sherry’s hands.
Sherry grimaced and shot a look at him, but he smirked coyly and proceeded to sip his tea candidly.
She rolled her eyes and silently muttered curses at this detestable man!
Meanwhile, Shannon, who was sitting right there the entire time, was watching their interaction and clenched her hands into fists.

That was when John suddenly looked at her.

Shannon quickly formed the same practiced smile that was full of warmth and tenderness.

Sherry immediately recognized that he was up to no good. She remained rooted to the spot and said,
"I'm not interested anymore. I don't need to know."

John smiled, then he stood up and walked towards her.

Sherry frowned. "What are you doing?"

However, he did not answer. He only smiled profoundly as he continued drawing closer toward her. He was like an elusive prince seen in fairy tales. Nobody could tell what was on his mind, and the only impression he left behind was his dignified aura.

Sherry waited for him to approach. She would not admit it but she was curious to see what he was up to.

He approached her in no time and wrapped his arm around her waist.

Completely defenseless, Sherry found herself taken into his arms in an instant. She immediately became upset and tried to shove him away.

Nevertheless, John tightened his grip and kept her wrapped inside his arms as he drew his lips closer to her ear and whispered seductively, "Sherry, I need you."

Sherry felt her ears burning. In an instant, she felt a wave of fury rush to her head. Without realizing it, she swung her hands right into his face.

The moment the clock struck ten, Sherry strutted off without a care in the world. She barely cared to turn back and look at John.

As soon as she stepped out into the courtyard, John stepped into the living room as well.

The lens of his glasses concealed his look underneath. His face was basked underneath the moonlight, and there was not a trace of emotion on his expression.

He continued heading into the courtyard.

That was when he suddenly felt a pair of arms wrapping around him from behind.

LLLLLLLL

“John, are you leaving already?” It was Shannon. She asked him in a warm voice as she pressed herself against his back.

John frowned. He promptly removed her arms before he turned around to face her. He put a hand out and patted her head with a mechanical smile. “Yeah, there’s something urgent I need to deal with, so I probably won’t be back for a few days.”

Sherry figured that she had nothing important to do anyway and might as well head to the garden with them and snack on some oranges.

Meanwhile, Shannon arrived at the entrance and promptly got into a car, then drove off.

After about half an hour, she stopped outside a cafe in a remote part of town. She put on a hat and sunglasses before stepping out of the car, then she trotted with a sense of urgency.

The cafe was dimly lit.

She scanned the cafe as she stepped inside and quickly noticed Mason who had been waiting for her.

She hurried over to him and sat opposite him before removing her sunglasses and greeting him with a friendly smile, "Mason, how long have you been here? I didn't keep you waiting for too long, did I?"

"I only just got here," Mason answered candidly.

Shannon eyed him eagerly and whispered carefully, "Do you have the money?" Mason looked at her intently. "I have it."

Shannon was floored.

By the time they left the garden, it was already dusk.

Sherry did not even bother to stop when she passed by the courtyard shared by John and Shannon. She barely even glanced inside. Instead, she continued heading back to Queenie's courtyard.

The ripe oranges they harvested were rich in flavor. Queenie used them to make a variety of desserts such as orange cake, orange ice cream, orange juice, and so on.

They had a barbecue before finishing the meal with the desserts they made. It was all unbelievably delicious.

Sherry's stomach was filled to the brim yet again. She was so full after her meal that she could not even lift a muscle. She lazed around on the couch with Queenie and watched the boring shows she always watched.

Ding!

Queenie's phone suddenly rang.

Queenie picked up the phone and glanced at it lazily, then she suddenly sprang up and exclaimed in shock, "What? Why is my brother calling me out of nowhere? What's going on?"

As puzzled as she was, she quickly put the phone to her ear.

Chapter 1209 Most of them were pieces of jewelry that dazzled underneath the ceiling lights. John swiped a glance across them and noticed a bracelet with its diamonds carved into the shape of tiny wine glasses. It was a unique and intricate design.

Upon noticing John staring at the bracelet, Peter gestured at it and said, "Sir, you have very good taste. This was just released very recently, and there are only ten such pieces in the world. It is the work of Susan Maroon, one of the best designers in the world, and it is also the most expensive item here."

A better way to put it would be that the price of everything else here combined was still nowhere close to the price of this particular diamond bracelet.

John grinned. "Pack this one separately from the others."

Peter hesitated and asked, "Sir, why do you want them packed separately? I thought you were buying all of these for the madam?"

John suddenly shot him a look. "Peter, you seem to be asking a lot of questions lately. Don't you have any other work on your hands?"

Peter stated for a second and hurriedly replied, "Yes, sir, I'll have it packed right away."

He rose and prepared to attend to the task instructed.

"Wait a minute." John suddenly stopped him.

Chapter 1210 A day later, Sherry figured that John was not coming back anytime soon, so she went to see Queenie first thing in the morning They lazed around doing nothing until noon. Sherry had hogged Queenie's bright pink reclining chair all for herself.

Just as she was about to take a nap though, Celine suddenly entered. She immediately turned to Sherry and informed her, "Sherry, the madam wants to see you."

CD

Sherry cocked an eyebrow and asked, "What does she want from me?"

"She says that there's something important she needs to tell you."

"Tell her I'm sleepy. I'll see her after I wake up." Sherry promptly closed her eyes after that.

Celine immediately became furious.

Shortly after that, Queenie and Hailey, who heard the commotion, stepped out of the room to see what was going on.

Celine knew that they were only going to take Sherry's side. Besides, she did not want to risk getting on Queenie's bad side. She took a deep breath and suppressed her anger, then she proceeded to whisper into Sherry's ears, "Master Mason is here."
