

Chapter 147

"Lord?"

Sophia was shocked. Sara immediately took out her phone from her bag and searched for the name.

“What the hell! Nolan is right. But what is the reason that people would refer to a man as their Lord?” Sara asked while thinking about it.

Sophia tried to recall everything about that day. Indeed, she found that man to be powerful, but he maintained a very calm demeanor around her.

"I think he did not want to tell me his name; that's why he joked with me."

"It's possible." With a slight nod of his head, Nolan stated.

The expression on Sara's face changed as she said,

"Should we search to see if any of the pack's members call anyone their Lord?"

Nolan held her hand and shook his head. "We should not waste our time with some stranger."

He then turned his attention to Sophia and said,

"As for you, I believe you should also forget about it. What would we do to talk about a stranger?"

Sophia felt that he was right. "Yeah. I thanked him for the help anyway."

All three of them nodded their heads and went out of their universities.

"I will drop you off at your house," Sara told Sophia.

Just when Sophia was about to nod at Sara, Bruce appeared in front of them.

The moment they became aware of him, they came to a complete stop.

Bruce looked at Sophia and asked,

"Sophia, can we talk?"

Sophia averted her gaze from him. "There is nothing to talk about, Bruce."

"Sophia, please. You haven't spoken with me for the past few months. I never tried to approach you as well. I just want to talk to you now. Nothing else, I promise."

Sophia heaved a sigh and nodded her head in agreement with him.

"Okay."

She then turned her attention to Sara and Nolan and said,

"You two can go. I will take a bus."

"Are you sure?" Nolan asked, glancing at Bruce.

"Do you think she is not safe with me?" Bruce asked while glaring at him.

Nolan chose to ignore his glare and instead focused his attention on Sophia. She reassured him and told him to enjoy their vacation since they were going to leave tonight.

Sara hugged Sophia before leaving. She did not forget to whisper in Sophia's ear.

"I wish you the best of luck with your Alpha. Don't forget to enjoy the days with him."

Sophia did not reply to anything.

With a blush on her face, she waved at them.

"How are you?"

She heard Bruce and turned to him. "I'm fine."

“Did my brother tell you something about me? After the day that you went to the pack house, you eventually stopped talking with me.”

Sophia did not know what to say to him in reply. She had no grudges against Bruce anymore. She had forgotten about her past. She has her own man now. It was clear that she had no concern for anyone else.

Her eyes wandered around while she thought about what to say. Suddenly, she noticed Luisa staring at them.

Sophia rolled her eyes and returned her focus to Bruce.

“I don't want to lie to you, Bruce. Your brother doesn't want me to talk to you."

Bruce tightened his fists. "I knew it. That was why I told you not to tell him about the study project. He went so far as to bribe the professor in order to break up our groups.”

"Talking about it is just a waste of time. Why did you want to talk about it?"

Taking a quick look at her watch to determine the time, she then stated,

"I have to go back home. Is there anything else you want to say?"

Bruce was hurt. He wanted this girl back. She used to be his girl, but now she's his brother's mate. Only he knew how hurtful it was to even think about her and his brother.

"Let me walk you to the bus stop at least."

Sophia stared at him for a while, trying to understand why he was doing this.

"No, thanks."

She walked past him and headed in the direction of the bus stop.

When she got there, she sat on a bench and waited for the bus. She took out her phone and noticed a few missed calls.

When she realized that Bryan was the one who had been calling her, her eyes widened.

She immediately dialed his number and put the phone close to her ear. She thought he would get mad at her for not receiving his calls.

The moment the call connected, Bryan's deep voice echoed in her ear.

"Where are you?"

"I-I am at the bus stop. Sorry I couldn't receive your phone. It was in silent mode."

"How was your exam?"

Upon hearing his question, a feeling of warmth spread throughout her heart. He called her to inquire about her exams. He knew she was worried about it.

Like a good boyfriend, he asked her about her daily life.

She blushed when she thought of him as her boyfriend. She bit her bottom lip.

Next month was her birthday. She would tell him how she felt for him when he let her brother go from the camp.

She knew the answer from his side would be positive. There would be no way this man would reject her heart.

"Good. What are you doing? Are you missing me, Alpha Bryan?"

She bit her nails while talking to him. There was a broad smile on her face, and her cheeks were red, too.

Bryan was quiet for a few seconds. She took deep breaths as she waited for his reply.

"Yes, I do."

She giggled and said,

"That's good. From tomorrow on, you will not miss me. I am returning to my work."

"Not enough."

She was surprised by his words. "Not enough? What do you want from me? What should I do?"

She saw a bus pull into the stop. She got up and went to get on the bus.

But her steps stopped when she heard him.

“Come to my house.”
