

Chapter 172

Sophia was shocked. She could not believe her ears. The man who she used to think was an Alpha of the neighboring pack was actually the head Alpha of the Moon Valley Pack?

Her reaction was evidently visible on her face. She could not even blink.

Victor turned to the Theta of the Night Shade Pack and said,

"You can go inside to support your Alpha. I don't need anyone to accompany me to go outside."

He spoke in a frigid tone. Sophia stared at him. He was a completely different person from what she had seen.

She wondered if all the head Alphas were cold.

Bryan's theta nodded at him politely and went back to the conference room. It was as if the meeting had not ended yet.

"How is that even possible? You are Alpha V-Victor?" Sophia mumbled, stuttering.

Victor's eyes were fixed on her face. A smirk formed on his lips as he muttered,

"You are so naive, little girl."

Sophia looked away from him and bit her lower lip. How could she be so foolish?

Why would someone come to meet her or help her again and again? Of course, he had some reason to approach her.

"So you lied to me," she said, shaking her head in disbelief.

"I did not lie to you in a single sentence. Come on, pick me one."

With that said, he started to move in her direction. She took another step back.

"You said you are Adon."

He stopped in front of her and shook his head in disagreement.

"The topper at Night Shade University has such a bad memory."

She was stunned. How was he aware of her grades?

"I said people in my pack call me Adon."

Suddenly, everything hit her. She recalled what Nolan had said that day.

Adon meant lord in 'French'.

'Wait, french?' She thought, and her eyes widened.

Yesterday, she learned about the people of the Moon Valley Pack. Most of them spoke French, and they worshiped their alpha!

"How did I..." she mumbled.

Victor chuckled as he walked past her. "You are cute. But your fate is horrible."

She frowned as she tried to understand the meaning of his words.

She turned around and saw his broad back. He was walking like he had all the power, and he was the king of this realm.

She wondered how things turned out when Bryan and he met in person. What might have happened in the conference room when the two rivals finally met?

Because she knew, no one could mess with Bryan. She even overheard Bryan's conversation with Victor this morning.

"What are you waiting for? Let's go," Victor said while walking ahead.

"Where?" she asked.

He stopped his steps and turned to her. "To accompany me outside."

"But didn't you say you don't need anyone to accompany you?"

Victor raised a brow and replied, "That's for Alpha Bryan's people."

She scoffed at him and folded her arms against her chest. She would not have had the confidence to speak in such a way if she had only recently met him. But now that she had been with him twice, she could not help but return to her old self.

"Don't forget, I'm Alpha Bryan's secretary."

Victor looked into her eyes and replied, "I bet you won't be at this place in a while."

"What do you mean?"

"I am really in a good mood. Hurry up. Isn't it your birthday? Let me wish you well. This company is full of enemies. Do you want me to beat every one of them for you?"

She was surprised at how he was talking so cheerfully with her, but a little while ago, he was so cold to Bryan's Theta.

After taking a quick look at the conference room door, she turned to face Victor.

Since she had no other work now, she decided to accompany him. She felt a sudden need to talk to him.

Because she had just realized that he was Mila's brother.

As she walked behind him, other employees glanced at Victor and then at her.

They thought she was just leading him outside as Alpha's secretary, so they did not bother to discuss anything. However, they were staring at Victor.

This man was incredibly powerful. To be precise, he was the only one who could rival Alpha Bryan. Sophia was completely unaware of the numerous rumors swirling around him. She was very new to the business world. She had no idea how dangerous it would be if she were accused.

Sophia kept a quiet distance from Victor while they walked.

As soon as they entered the general elevator, the other employees began to take notice of Victor and began to empty the elevator in order to provide him with some space.

"I have heard that you showed up to all of your Alpha's meetings. So why were you not present at the meeting today? I expected you to be there," Victor said the moment the elevator's door closed.

Sophia kept her gaze fixed on the floor. He addressed Bryan, 'Your Alpha'.

Did that mean he was aware that Bryan was her mate?

She raised her head to look at him. "You know everything, don't you?"

He calmly smiled at her, as though she were asking some ridiculous question. "Of course, I know everything."

She saw the darkness creep into his eyes as he averted his gaze from her. "How long can people conceal their sins?"

"Sins? Do you think matebond is a sin?" she asked with anger.

"Calm down, girl. I was just kidding. By the way..."

He paused and moved closer to her. She immediately stepped back, leaning against the elevator's mirror wall.

He leaned down to meet her eye level and muttered.

"I met your man today. To tell you the truth, he is not as endearing as you imagine him to be."

With a slight head movement, he whispered in her ear.

"He is way more dangerous than people think he is."
