

Chapter 178

Sophia turned to the man, who had just snatched her hand from the guard's grip.

That was none other than Alpha Victor.

The guard seemed taken aback. "Sir, I'm not harassing this girl. Her boyfriend instructed us to drive her home. We are just doing our job."

Victor looked at Sophia, whose eyes were filled with tears.

"I will drive her home. Don't worry about it."

"Do you know her?" the guard inquired, casting a careful eye on Alpha Victor.

"That's none of your business," Victor replied, glaring at him.

The guard gulped and nodded his head, assuming that Victor was familiar with Sophia.

When the guard headed back to the restaurant to inform the manager about it, Victor turned to face Sophia.

"What happened to you?"

Sophia pushed his hand away and took a step back. "You already know what might happen."

She let out a chuckle as if she were laughing at herself. Victor did not let out anything for a while as he observed her situation.

"He broke your heart, didn't he?"

"Of course, he did," she mumbled, lowering her head.

"He doesn't love me. He stated that he never once felt love for me, not even for a single second. Everything between us was nothing to him."

She looked like broken glass that had shattered into so many pieces that would never be able to be repaired.

She proceeded to walk away from him and to start walking in a direction that was unknown to her.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"I'm going to hell."

With a sigh, he made his way over to her. He reached out and grabbed her wrist.

“Let's go with me. I will drive you home safely. This is not the time for you to go for a walk by yourself.”

She turned to him and pushed him.

"Who are you? Do you think my life is a novel in which you will appear out of nowhere and help me like an angel?"

Victor stared at her. She had no clue what he was thinking. She did not want to know either.

"Go and tell your sister that she has won. She will get the position and will become the Luna of Alpha Bryan. Congratulations to her!"

She laughed while crying. She looked broken. She felt like she had gone insane.

There was no hope for her life. She would die any time soon. Why did Bryan turn down her love? He also killed her heart.

"You are just a pawn in politics, the royal politics."

Hearing Alpha Victor, she looked at him. "What?"

"He played with you. He never felt anything for you because he is a very strong-headed person. He knows when and what to do. In front of his calculative moves, no one can use their brain."

She parted her trembling lips. "W-Why did he do this to me? Why?"

Her knees shook as she fell on her knees, crying in a mess.

"If he wanted to make your sister his Luna from the beginning, then why did he ask me to be with him? Why did he say that he wanted me? Why did he always want me to be by his side, even if it meant becoming his personal secretary? Why did he never think about his mate but only about power? Why?"

She sobbed in the darkness of the street. Her tears poured down like raindrops. It continued until her eyes were completely dry of tears.

After some time of crying, she took a shaky breath.

At that time, she felt a pair of hands pull her up to make her stand on her feet.

"I told you that you are the only one who looks in love. Your mate does not even want you that much. Do you know why he wants you to remain close to him?"

Sophia slowly raised her head to look at the man. He looked enthusiastic about talking to her.

"W-Why?"

She thought he would say that Bryan liked her but did not want to accept it because of power.

But reality was crueler than her delusion.

"He is afraid that you will reveal the truth about the matebond. He thinks you will tell everyone that you are his mate. All of the things he has spent years planning will be lost. I bet he will never mark you either. Because it won't give him any benefit. He will make you his slave forever."

Her shoulders shuddered as she felt her body become lighter in weight. She would faint at any time if she continued to listen about Bryan.

Victor did not say anything more when he saw that her situation was getting worse.

He picked her up in his arms and walked to his car.

Sophia was not even in the right mind to think about what was going on. She was feeling sick on the inside. Her heart and the whole body were burning like hell.

She wanted to go home and cried in her bed. She was regretting everything.

She regretted having fallen for a ruthless man. She regretted allowing that man to break her heart twice.

What if she had never met him? What if she had never developed feelings for him in the first place? What if she had not attended his engagement and discovered that he was her mate? Would she have been happy with her life?

Her wolf cried out inside her, realizing their mate did not love them. She also felt hurt. She had never had the chance to meet his wolf.

Sophia was engulfed in sadness. When she got back to her senses, she realized that she was in Victor's car.

She turned her head and found him driving the car.

"Your father offered him his half throne," she muttered, feeling disbelief that Bryan was hungry for power and preferred it over the matebond.

Victor's eyes darkened as he heard her.

"I know."

"Your father seems really love your sister," she mumbled.

She closed her eyes and felt that she was coming between Bryan and that woman. But Bryan was only marrying her out of greed.

However, she paused when Victor spoke out.

“Don't call that bitch my sister.”
