

Chapter 186

The other women came to push Sophia, but she gripped the woman's hair so strongly that she almost tore the hair out of her scalp.

A few guards that Alpha Moen had brought with him heard him call out,

"Hold this girl."

Sophia was so angry that she had lost her mind. All the things that Bryan did to her messed up her mind in such a state that she was not taking any other things into consideration.

She heard the girl crying behind her, grabbing her waist tightly in fear. Some guards were pulling her away from Sophia.

The situation got heated as the people who were passing by stopped and began to watch what was happening.

The woman successfully pushed Sophia, and she fell to the ground. On the other hand, the guards pulled the girl away from her.

"Sister!"

The girl cried in terror.

Sophia glared at both the woman and Alpha Moen.

"Leave the girl right now. I will not let you leave."

Alpha Moen walked toward Sophia. He stood in front of her and kicked her leg.

"Ahhh!"

Sophia grabbed her leg after feeling a sharp pain from the kick.

She bit her bottom lip to deal with the pain. "I don't know who you are. But you did something very wrong when you crossed my path. If any of the news leaks from here to the public, I will make your life hell."

Alpha Moen's warning did not scare her. She was not afraid of anyone.

She looked directly into Alpha Moen's eyes.

"At this age, you purchased a teenage girl for yourself, although you have a wife. I will complain about you and ruin your reputation. Leave this girl if you don't want that."

She intentionally said that loudly so that other people could hear it.

Immediately, the guards pushed the people and told them to go where they were going.

"Complain to whom? To our head Alpha? Alpha Bryan? Is it even possible for you to get through to him?" Alpha Moen asked, chuckling and thinking that Sophia was really stupid.

Just hearing Bryan's name darkened Sophia's eyes. "No. To my brother."

One of the women was about to step toward her to slap her, but Alpha Moen stopped her by raising his hand and nodding his head at Sophia.

"What will your brother do to me? I will kill him in front of your eyes. Call him."

Sophia dialed her brother's number with a shaken hand since the pain in her leg was too much for her.

She was praying in her mind that Abraham would receive the call.

"Hello?"

As soon as Abraham received the call, Sophia spoke out.

"Brother, come to the Marine Saint Orphanage on Marine Street. Some people are caging me here."

Sophia was clever enough to inform her brother about the location. She did not waste any time and said what she needed her brother to know to reach her.

"WHAT!"

Abraham's shocked tone came to her ears.

"Hurry up, brother."

"I'm coming. Don't cut the ca—"

Alpha Moen snatched the phone from her and spoke to Abraham.

"Your sister will warm my bed tonight if you can't make it here in ten minutes."

I clenched my jaw at what that man had just said to my brother.

I shifted my gaze to the women who were glaring at me. How could they do such a thing to a woman when they were women themselves?

They were not ashamed. They were running an illegal business in the name of an orphanage.

Thinking of all the girls who had to live in hell just to have somewhere to live hurt her deeply.

Some guards pulled Sophia up and dragged her inside the orphanage. Alpha Moen and others were behind her.

She noticed that the young girl was also coming behind her. She looked broken.

"Rose, you will bear the consequences for it. Because of you, all of this is happening. If you went with Alpha Moen quietly, we would not have to go through this humiliation," a woman scolded the girl.

Sophia discovered that the girl's name was Rose.

Rose looked frightened.

The guards pushed Sophia into a large hall with two other people present.

"Who is she?" An old man asked, sitting behind a desk.

"Sir, she was causing trouble outside. So we brought her here to teach her a lesson," a woman explained.

"We are truly sorry, Alpha Moen. You are our old customer. You had to face this; I can't believe it," the woman beside the man said.

Sophia came to the realization that this business had been running for a long time. The old man looked like the director of this orphanage, and the middle-aged woman beside him was his assistant.

Sophia did not say anything as she listened to their conversation very carefully. She made a mental note of every man's name who had purchased girls from this orphanage.

After a while, everyone heard the sounds of cars outside the orphanage.

Alpha Moen's guards were about to approach the door to check, but were kicked when the person entered the hall.

"Brother!"

Sophia said this as soon as she saw Abraham.

She let out a deep breath of relief.

"Are you this girl's brother?" Alpha Moen questioned Abraham.

He kicked a few guards who tried to stop him from moving toward Sophia.

"Brother, save the young girl. They are selling her to this man."

Abraham's blood boiled as he saw his sister on the floor. He then looked at Rose, whom Sophia was mentioning. That girl was crying in a corner.

"In the name of the orphanage, you are doing this?"

"What will you do to me? I called my men. They will be here in no time. Your martial art won't work on them. They are trained fighters."

Sophia could help but feel like laughing.

"Foolish man, trained fighters can't protect you from him. He is the biggest fighter in this pack, Gamma Abraham."

Everyone's eyes widened. They immediately stepped back in fear.

The Gamma himself had come there!

"W-We didn't know she was your sister," the old man said with a respectful tone.

Abraham sneered at him. "I would have killed you if I had come here alone. But since the main authority is here, I have to leave you to him."

Sophia frowned when she heard Abraham.

"The main authority? What is he talking about?" she thought.

The women let out a scream when they saw some men entering the hall. Those men circled the whole hall and stood straight without moving their gazes.

Then Sophia felt the scent entering the hall, which she wanted to avoid.

Her eyes landed on the man who entered the hall in a gloomy mood.

Almost immediately, the people of the orphanage and Alpha Moen fell on their knees when they realized who had come to the orphanage.

"All hail to our head Alpha."
