

Chapter 188

Bryan rushed to Sophia and pulled her from Abraham's hold.

Abraham was shocked by Bryan's behavior. "Alpha, she has a fever. Maybe that's why she fainted. I'm taking her to the hospital."

"No need."

"What?"

Bryan lifted her into his arms and gazed at Abraham.

"Take care of him. I'm taking her to the pack hospital."

Abraham glanced at Sophia and said,

"But Alpha, my siste--"

"Don't worry about her. But don't show any mercy to that man. I don't want to see him standing on two feet again."

Abraham slowly turned to Alpha Moen, who was groaning in pain. His eyes blazed with fire as he thought about what this man said to him about Sophia on the phone. He wanted his sister to warm his bed.

Abraham walked to him and began kicking his wounded legs.

Bryan walked to the entrance. But before that, he turned to his men and said,

"Inform Delta Edger to appoint a new director for this orphanage."

Abraham glanced at Bryan's back. He remembered Bryan holding Sophia like that one year ago when he was going to a pack meeting.

That day, he himself handed her to him, saying that he did not have time to take care of a woman.

But today, he saw a different Bryan.

When Sophia called him today, he was in the pack house with Bryan, discussing the engagement.

Bryan was so busy that he even declined to talk with Alpha Lucas. But when he heard that Sophia was in danger, he left all of his work and came here to accompany him to save his sister. Abraham found it strange.

Meanwhile,

Bryan slid into the car, settling Sophia in the back seat.

Bryan pulled Sophia to his chest as the driver turned on the engine.

He lowered his head to look at her face carefully. He was quiet, but his eyes were fierce as he observed her face.

The car stopped in front of the pack hospital. He carried her into the hospital in his arms.

People in the pack hospital were unaware of his identity. However, they sensed that he was a powerful individual.

The head doctor of the pack himself checked on Sophia.

"Her fever is quite high. She needs to rest properly. I prescribed her some medication," the doctor explained.

"What about her leg?" Bryan asked him while looking at Sophia.

"As you can see, I bandaged her leg. Fortunately, no bones were broken. It will take a couple of days, but she will be fine soon."

As Bryan listened to the doctor, his gaze remained fixed on Sophia the entire time.

At that time, Sophia blinked her eyes. Slowly, she opened her eyes and took a look around.

As soon as her eyes caught a glimpse of Bryan, she made an immediate attempt to sit up, but she hissed up in pain.

"Be careful," Bryan said, helping her to sit.

Sophia pushed his hand away from her and said,

"Don't touch me."

Gazing at Bryan and Sophia, the doctor swallowed. He was aware of Bryan's identity. He was not only the head doctor but also the personal physician of the head Alpha and his family.

"He is the head Alpha of our pack. You can't talk to him like that. He is the one who brought you here," the doctor said to Sophia.

Sophia ignored his words and asked,

"What happened to my leg? Did it break?"

"No, you will get better in a few days."

"Great, then please discharge me."

The doctor nodded his head in response. "If you want to go back, you can. But you have to rest at home and continue to take your medication as prescribed."

"Thank you, doctor. I will."

When she assured the doctor, the doctor bowed to Bryan and left the cabin.

Bryan's eyes did not move from her all these times.

"Did you just try to insult me in front of my pack doctor?" he asked, gritting his teeth.

Sophia did not look at him, avoiding making any eye contact with him.

She remembered how he shot Alpha Moen's leg. He used a gun as if it were a plaything.

He was indeed a ruthless man.

"Don't forget that I haven't punished you for what you did in my office this morning."

His warning gave her a shiver in her spine. She slowly turned her head to look at him.

His gloomy face turned her heart cold. It reminded her of what Victor told her a few days ago.

'He will cage you forever.'

She shut her eyes and took a deep breath, then mumbled,

"Alpha Bryan, reject me."

Bryan was taken aback. He grabbed her jaw and lifted it to make her look at him.

"What did you just say?"

She looked into his eyes and replied,

"I said reject me."

"You will die."

"Is that so? Then why did you tell my brother that you had a way to break the bond?"

He averted his eyes from her. "I lied to him so that he could concentrate on his training."

She scoffed at him, pushing his hand away from her jaw.

"I knew it. You did not even dare to tell my brother how you played with his innocent sister. What about those nights you spent with his sister, knowing that you would never accept her as your mate?"

Bryan stared at her for a while. Her eyes had a flame in them that he had never seen before.

He sighed and lifted his hand. He stroked her hair and muttered,

"Don't be stubborn; be a good girl. This behavior doesn't suit you. I don't want to get mad at you either."

Sophia stared at him. His touches made her feel disgusted because she was aware of his intentions.

It was not out of love, but only lust.

"Your brother cheated on me. I never looked back at him after that. Do you know why? Because I have self-respect."

She smiled at him bitterly, then continued,

"It was only you for whom I stooped down so low. Otherwise, no other man can play with me like that."

Brayn's hand froze on her hair. She removed his hand from her head and pushed it lightly.

"I wish I could give you the suffering I am going through right now."

Her pale face darkened as she glared at him.

"I wish I could stab your heart with my own hands and tell you how I felt after you stabbed mine so many times."