

Chapter 213

"Excuse me, Miss."

When a passenger passed Sophia, she looked away from the couple. They were none other than Alpha Bryan and his fiancée, Mila Laurant.

She did not know why this man always showed up in front of her. Not just him, she began to despise his fiancée, too.

"Alpha is here. Please clear the way, everyone!" The guards of the airport shouted so that everyone could hear them clearly in the rain.

Sophia passed through the security checkpoint outside the terminal and entered the airport without looking back at the couple. She felt drenched from the rain. She looked around at the passengers who had just exited the boarding pass.

She began to rub her wet hair as she looked for the washroom. But she paused and considered sitting in a seat to wait for Victor.

She thought her hair and clothes would dry soon.

She wondered why Bryan and Mila were there. Then she understood they may have come here to receive all of the Moon Valley Pack's key members, including Victor.

“Did Victor know that Bryan was also coming? Why did he even call me here then?” Sophia thought, getting angry at Victor.

Her gaze was drawn to the couple once again as they walked towards the sitting area. Sophia was sitting in a few rows behind many benches, so they did not notice her.

She noted that Beta Robert and Theta Noble were also present. She was relieved that her brother had not come here. Otherwise, he would scold her again, just like he had when she went to meet Alpha Oliver.

Sophia cast a glance at Bryan's back. He looked powerful from behind as well.

However, for how long?

Her eyes grew cold as she averted her gaze.

"All I need to do is ignore him. He is a stranger to me from now on. I don't care even if someone attacks him in front of me," Sophia said to herself.

As her hand continued to rub her hair, she took her phone from her bag with the other hand. She checked and saw that it was already time.

"Are you going somewhere?" A young lady asked Sophia as she came to sit next to her.

Sophia smiled at her and replied, "No. I'm waiting for someone."

The lady understood that she was not an ordinary someone but connected with royals or officials.

"Me too. Who are you waiting for?"

Sophia was taken back. She did not know her. Why was she asking too many questions? She assumed she was a talkative woman, so she replied,

"A friend."

"Oh. I am here for my husband. We have been waiting for him for three months. He will finally be with us."

Sophia was perplexed. "We?"

The lady blushed and put her hand on her belly. "Me and my baby."

"Oh! Congratulations," Sophia immediately said, glancing at her belly.

She noticed a little baby bump when she looked carefully. The lady smiled and nodded at her.

“Are you someone close to the officials?” Sophia asked.

"No. My husband is Alpha’s trusted man.”

Sophia parted her lips. “Oh.”

“My husband had to go to the Moon Valley Pack for some work. Alpha Bryan trusted him and sent him to that pack. He even assured our family that my husband would return alive from that pack. But I am still worried about him."

The lady's words caused Sophia to frown. "Why did he send him there?"

The lady glanced in Bryan's direction and mumbled, "I can't tell you that. It's about some business."

"Oh."

Sophia bit her bottom lip, as she did not know what to say. She gave it a thought and questioned,

"Why did he assure you that your husband would not die? Did Alpha send him as a spy?"

The lady's eyes widened as she shook her head in denial. But Sophia assumed her answer.

"It's okay. You don't have to be afraid. I am just a mere member of your own pack. I won't say anything to anyone."

The lady turned away from Sophia and closed her mouth, realizing that she had spilled more beans than she should have.

Meanwhile, Sophia shook her head in disappointment.

"That man only knows how to cheat others. Why did I never realize it during those six months? Or was I so blind in his love that I did not get a chance to see these things?" she thought.

After a while,

People from the Moon Valley Pack began to appear in her sight. All the men looked powerful and professional. Sophia understood that they were the pillars of that pack.

They greeted Bryan respectfully when he rose from his seat. With a smile on her face, Mila spoke to them. Sophia thought those men might be her relatives.

The lady next to Sophia got up from her seat and went to meet her husband. Sophia looked at him. He was a young man. He looked simple, but his black coat caught her attention.

It looked like he was a lawyer.

Sophia was paying her full attention to that lady’s husband. But when she caught sight of a man dressed in black pants and a white shirt, her gaze moved.

With his suit jacket in one arm, he held a woman's waist with the other. He was speaking to her with a serious expression.

Sophia's brows furrowed as she stared at him.

She was about to stand up but stopped. Holding Alpha Bryan's hand, Mila Laurent walked up to the man.

Before they could reach the man, he sent the woman away, saying something to her. The woman bowed her head professionally, giving off the impression that she was his personal secretary.

The man moved in the direction of Bryan and Mila, but he walked past them when his gaze fell on Sophia.

Sophia froze when she noticed him ignoring them and approaching in her direction.

She slowly stood up as she saw the man after a year. She cleared her throat and said,

"Alpha Victor."

On the other hand,

Bryan turned around as Victor walked by. His indifferent look faded as his brows furrowed when he saw the man walking toward Sophia and then her calling his name.

Victor grinned at Sophia and spoke in a little loud tone.

“The weather was not on my side as it planned to stop me from meeting you again. But here I am. Did I make you wait for me too long?”
