

Chapter 233

Sophia was lying on the bed, thinking about the conversation she had with her brother.

On the way home, Abraham told her that he would step down from his position.

She tried her best to make him understand that it was not his fault. He said he could not continue to stick with the man who wanted to use his sister's body instead of giving her a name of respect.

Sophia rubbed her forehead as she stared at the ceiling.

"I think I shouldn't have said those things to my brother. If he resigned from his position, it would be entirely my fault. I made a huge mistake. What will we say to mom?"

She shifted left and right on the bed to fall asleep. However, she was unable to sleep and had her eyes wide open.

She remembered what had happened tonight. Everything had changed within a few hours.

"Why did Victor declare something like that? I will tell him to take back his words."

She recalled telling Bryan that she was going to marry Victor. She sat up on the bed and shook her head in disbelief.

"How could I say that? I don't want to be with anyone. Victory is no exception."

However, Sophia was so relaxed that she could at least shake Bryan a little. He was helpless in this situation. She could show him how much she despised him.

The next day,

Sophia had talked to her friends, who were worried about her. They asked if she was really going to marry Victor. Like last night, she did not have any answers.

Sophia went to the orphanage around noon.

Victor had called her a few times. She told him she would meet him in the evening because she was at the orphanage. Victor said he would pick her up from the orphanage.

"Don't hit me like this. I am innocent." Ken let out a low yell when Sophia landed a punch on his muscle.

"I am really mad right now. Take some blows to relieve my stress," Sophia replied, chuckling.

Ken gave her a disbelieving expression. "You are acting like you are my teacher, and I am your student."

"Don't speak. Fight me."

Ken let out a sigh and began to set his mind to fighting. He attacked her, and she tried to dodge his blows. The fight heated up as Ken became more serious.

At the end of the fight, Ken won. Sophia sat down on the ground with sweat all over her body.

Ken huffed as he sat with her on the ground. He turned to face her and said,

"My girlfriend wants to meet you."

Sophia frowned when she heard that. "Why does she want to meet me?"

"I always talk about you. So she became interested in meeting you."

Sophia laughed in response. "I bet you tell her all the time about how I beat you."

He shook his head and replied, "I tell her how a girl came to spread happiness in the orphanage and got trained by me. I have always tried to provide you with the best training sessions. You have the potential to fight against others. It's just that you need to learn to fight in your wolf form."

She looked away from Ken and mumbled, "I think I don't need that."

Ken heard her and asked, "Why?"

She shrugged her shoulders and rose to her feet. "Because it's not like I will go to any war, and wolves will attack me. I don't need to learn to fight in a war but only self-defense."

When Sophia left the orphanage after taking a shower and changing her clothes, she noticed a car waiting for her outside.

Victor rolled down the car window and signaled for her to enter the car.

She got into the backseat and sat next to Victor. He was not driving today. He brought his driver with him.

The driver started the car as soon as she climbed in.

She turned to Victor and asked,

"Now tell me, why did you change your plan at the last moment? Everything was so fine. Why did you even take that action unnecessarily?"

Victor's brows furrowed as he spoke, "Unnecessarily? I was serious when I announced that."

She was stunned. "Serious? Serious about what? How can you declare me your future Luna?"

"Didn't you want the position? Who cares what pack you get? The position is still the same. I can assure you that the Moon Valley Pack is the biggest pack for you to rule."

Sophia stared at him with disappointment in her eyes. This man thought she was doing all those things for power.

"Listen, Victor. I can't be your Luna."

The driver almost pressed on the brake when he overheard her. Victor glared at the driver, which he noticed through the rearview mirror. The driver gulped and drove the car back to a steady speed.

"Just cancel the announcement after going back to your pack. Tell your pack members that I am not good enough to be your Luna. People will not doubt this excuse."

Victor chuckled as he shook his head. "You think ruling a pack is an easy game, right? Once the head of Alpha announces his future Luna, it is forbidden to remove her from that position. This law was added years ago to prevent Alphas from changing their Luna over time and giving other women false hope. Only their mates have the power to call off the marriage."

"What nonsense!"

He looked at her and grinned. "It's true. Now, you are obligated to be with me. Not even Alpha Bryan can change your fate now. He will never come out as your mate, so there is no way to cancel the wedding."

Sophia was shocked. If he was aware of this, why did he make the announcement in the first place? He should have asked her. It was not a game. It was about her whole life.

Suddenly, a question popped into her head as she questioned him,

"What if your mate shows up to cancel it? You will not have any other way."

His grin faded as his eyes turned cloudy. He turned away from her and replied,

“That's not possible. I am mateless.”

He took a pause and turned to look at her once again, then he said,

“But I can mark you and claim you as mine.”
