

Chapter 283

Sophia was shocked when she heard Angelina. Did Bryan marry her not because of his anger against Victor but because he really loved her?

Everything was becoming too heavy to take for her. She was already stunned by Mila's revelation; now Angelina's words did not give her a good feeling.

She realized that Angelina had warned her before.

"So you warned me about that?" She muttered, looking at Angelina like a woman who had lost everything.

"Angelina?"

Juliana's voice came from behind.

Juliana noticed Angelina as she entered the living room.

Angelina gave her a nod. Her face did not look calm at all. She looked angry. She did not want to calm herself just now, so her emerald eyes stayed green.

"It's been a long time," Juliana said, walking toward her.

Her eyes moved to Sophia, who turned her head, avoiding eye contact with her. Juliana frowned at her and ignored her.

"How are you, Angelina? Have you seen what your Alpha has done? Why didn't you make him understand that Mila was the best Luna for him?" Juliana said as she came to stop in front of them.

Angelina looked at Juliana silently until she spoke with a hash tone.

"A former Luna should not speak that way. You used to rule this pack so well. When I was a child, my mother always mentioned you as a strong and intelligent woman. But why are you trying to change people's minds now?"

Juliana's eyes widened as she heard Angelina's words. "What are you saying?"

Sophia noticed how Angelina let go of her hand and moved toward Juliana. She had no fear that she was talking with her Alpha's mother. It appeared that this woman was more powerful than she had anticipated.

"Your son is a powerful man. People like to call him the Moon Child. You are aware of it, right?" Angelina asked.

Juliana stared at Angelina without answering her. She was mad at her for talking to her in that way.

Angelina did not stop as she continued,

"Then how did you think a moon child could live his life without his mate? There is no relationship in this world that can compare to the love he has for his mate. You are also your husband's mate; would you have accepted it if someone better had shown up and taken Alpha Harry from you?"

Juliana was taken aback. "You are taking this woman's side. She is a greedy person. She was with Victor all these times."

"I know everything. She didn't do anything wrong. Everything turned out this way because it was fate. Fate played with them, separating them only to bring them closer. It would be better if you fixed that in your mind. I greatly respect you, but as a royal witch, I must stand beside my Alpha before his family."

After saying that, Angelina grabbed Sophia's hand once again and dragged her outside the pack house.

Sophia could not move her eyes from Angelina all the time. Around so many strong women, she felt weak.

Angelina stopped in front of her car and turned to her.

"You made a mistake and hurt Bryan."

Sophia shook her head and removed the grip from her hand.

"And what about the whole year he hurt me? What about me? I didn't know anything about it. What about my mental health, which has been ruined by your Alpha? He told me that he did not love me when I asked him a year ago."

Angelina sighed as her eyes turned black. She looked calmer as she patted Sophia's head.

"You can be heartbroken and seek vengeance. But you have to understand who you should take revenge on. You are only ruining your life with your hatred. The truth is, you never hated my Alpha. I can read your eyes. You are just upset and broken from inside."

Sophia's eyes turned teary as she looked away from her.

"All these times, we could not say anything to you because we were forbidden to say anything. Alpha Bryan was not sure if he could marry you, so he never promised you to make you his wife. The reason was that one contract. It could also endanger your life. But he managed everything at the last moment and married you. He managed to save you, too. Now, what do you want from that man?"

Sophia lowered her head as she had nothing to say. She was only listening to her. She agreed with whatever she was saying.

But she was shocked when Angelina said,

"He has loved you for a long time, Sophia. So long when you don't even know him."

Sophia slowly raised her head to look at her. "W-What?"

She recalled Mila's words. She felt curious inside to learn about it.

Angelina nodded her head.

"The very first day you visited your brother in the training hall, he was there. I was there too. I saw how he was looking at you. I saw how the man who was cold as ice almost melted by your sweet smile. That one contract stopped him from approaching you. He was afraid that he would hurt you. But when you turned out to be his mate..."

She paused as if she were upset to continue. Anguish welled up in Sophia's eyes. She could remember going to the training hall to meet her brother for lunch.

She used to go there daily to give him lunch that their mother prepared for him. She had met a few pack fighters there but never met the Alpha.

She was surprised to know that he was also present there. She remembered not entering the hall but instead standing outside to meet her brother. Her brother used to come out, and after lunchtime, he went back to training.

"When he saw his brother approaching you, he stopped himself because he loved you. He believed you had a future with his brother, which he could never give you. But when fate made you his mate, he became selfish in love and wanted to have you. When you refused to be with him, he let you go. He again wanted to let you go before you stabbed him in the chest. The first contract was not like this one. He wanted to keep you safe and help you leave the pack with your mother. But you chose to hurt him, which broke his heart. He had not expected that from you, Sophia. He was deeply hurt by the woman he loved most. He is really upset with you."

Sophia bit her bottom lip to control herself. She did not want to listen to anything more. The feeling of guilt almost ate her alive.

It felt like she was so blinded by hatred that she never noticed his love.

She wiped her eyes as she sobbed. But when she raised her head to look at Angelina, she saw her take a step back.

"W-What?" she asked Angelina.

Angelina did not respond, as if she were lost in her eyes.

Sophia furrowed her brows. Her gaze fell on the window glass, and she noticed her own eyes had turned ocean blue.

"I...I..."

Angelina shook her head to cut her off and said,

"The moon goddess really created a beautiful creature for her moon child."
