

Chapter 422

Days passed with Allison spending time with Ryan.

Teresa left the pack with Max the next day of the farewell night. It broke Allison's heart. She tried to contact Teresa but her phone was unreachable.

She asked Ryan about Max. He said Max reached where he decided to go. However, after that Ryan told her that Max also did not contact him again.

Allison began to feel tension about Teresa. Ryan every time assured her that she went with Max and she would be happy.

Allison was pleased that Ryan could understand her so well. He always figured out ways to convince her. Her love for him was increasing in her heart every day.

Allison was lying on the bed while thinking about how her relationship with Ryan developed. But he always motivated her to live her life fully.

"Allison"

She sat up when she heard her mother calling her from downstairs.

She went to the door and opened it. She peeked outside and said loudly,

"Yes, Mom?"

"Come down. Your father wants to talk to us. He has something important to discuss."

"I am coming." She replied and glanced at the bed.

She walked to the bed and grabbed the box that was placed on the bed.

It was a gift box. A watch was inside it. Yesterday she went to buy a present for Ryan alone. She did not know what to give him. Teresa was not there. So there was no one who could provide her with advice or recommendations. She was completely oblivious to the concept of gift-giving. Because Ryan had such a special place in her heart, it was challenging for her to select a gift for him. She used all of her savings to purchase a watch that was part of a new edition. She did not give a damn about the cost. The value of her love for him could never be measured. As a result, she had the intention of giving him the most incredible gift that he could put on.

She proceeded to the closet and put it inside securely. Then she hurried out of the room and dashed to her parent's room.

Her mother was in the room. "Where is Dad?" She asked her.

"He is in the garden. Go to him. I am coming with snacks."

"Okay, Mom." She said happily and headed to the garden. She found her father seated in a chair. There was a white table with three chairs set up for them.

Allison took a few steps in the direction of her father and then sat down in one of the seats.

"Dad"

It was evening time so all of the lights atop the lamp sticks in the garden were turned on.

Her father looked at her and smiled,

"What were you doing in your room?"

"Nothing, Dad. I was just lying down on my bed." She replied. She could not conceal her joy at the fact that her father had resumed normal conversation with her.

"You should give some of your time to your parents. You always make yourself busy on the phone."

"No, Dad. Nothing is like that. From now on, I will spend more time with you and Mom."

Her father chuckled at her cuteness. At that time, her mother walked into the garden carrying a tray of snacks and cups of tea.

She placed the tray on the table and said them,

"Have some snacks."

Allison's father grabbed a cup and Allison held one. She took a few sips of the tea and then let out a long breath. She felt the brisk breeze brush against her face. She understood that gardens were wonderful locations to visit in order to feel revitalized.

Allison's mother sat down with her. "Your father wants to talk to you about something."

She turned to her. "Yeah, you told me that." She then turned her head to her father.

"Dad, you have something important to say?"

"Yeah. We are invited for tomorrow night. It's Ryan's birthday so Alpha arranged a party in the pack house."

Allison's lightened mood glowed with satisfaction. "That's really good."

She was overjoyed that she could wish him and meet him at midnight without any obstacles. If Alpha Neil did not plan any party, then she would have to wait until her parents went to sleep, and then she would have to go into the forest to meet him with the risk of getting caught.

"Alpha Neil is finally thinking about Ryan." She mumbled.

Her father frowned at her words. "He always cares for him. He is his father. But he never showed it to him. He never tries to hurt him whenever he talks rudely with him. He is the head Alpha, if he wants he can punish his son anytime but he always gives chances to Ryan to become a good man."

Allison realized that whatever her father was telling her was not wrong. If Alpha Neil wanted he could have punished Ryan for his impoliteness towards him. But he never did that. She knew parents could not abandon their children. That was why he always called him to come back to the pack and stay in the pack house.

But the distance between the father and son had grown to such an extent that it appeared to be almost impossible for them to get back together again.

Sometimes Allison thought that she would try to get them back together. Then all of them would live happily ever after forever.

"I have another thing to tell you." Her father let out.

"Yes, Dad?" She asked with a curious tone. She was feeling that today was the best day. His father did not say anything bad about Ryan and instead brought up the subject of attending his birthday celebration.

"You are my daughter. I always want your best. Do you agree with that?"

"Of course, Dad. I believe you blindly."

"Ethan is going to take over our pack and will become the head Alpha very soon."

Allison was confused about where Ethan's topic came from. But she listened to her father carefully.

However, her heartbeat started to run when his father continued speaking.

"He needs a Luna who will be faithful and reliable. His parents decided on Luna a few years ago. Their choice was always you."

The cup that she was holding in her hand slipped out of her fingers. All the tea spread over the table when the cup fell on it.

"Allison, are you okay?" Allison's mother said right away, and she began to clean the tea with a tissue so that it would not roll into her daughter's lap.

Allison froze in her state. She frowned at her father and said,

"But Dad, we don't have that type of relationship. I don't like him that way."

"Allison, we all know that you two like each other. There is a small argument between you two. It can happen to every couple and you two can solve it if you want, my child." Her father stated back.

She shook her head. "Dad, you are not understanding. We ca-"

Her father interrupted her by saying,

"Alpha Neil and I fixed your marriage with Ethan when Ethan saved you a few years ago. We did not tell you two because we want Ethan to take his responsibilities first."

Allison felt the ground slip from her feet. She shook her head and stood up.

"I can't marry him."

His father got to his feet in anger and declared,

"You will marry Ethan whether you like it or not. It's a royal decision. No one can decline it. Not even you."
