

Chapter 520

When everyone heard Ryan, they immediately felt fear deep within themselves. The girls began to tremble and were on the verge of falling on their knees in submission.

Fear was the only thing that came to their minds when they thought about Allison. She was Alpha Ryan's woman. Not only that, she was their soon-to-be Luna!

The boys around them felt frightened and remained quiet. They were aware that the only thing required of them was to show respect for Allison. If nothing was done, this man would slay them while they were still alive.

Allison's attention was fixed on Ryan the entire time he was talking. She could see that this man had a unique aura compared to everyone else. His statements were binding, just like the law. People feared him more than they feared death itself.

It was his words that took her by surprise. He referred to her as his woman. Why? Didn't he say that he did not have any feelings for her anymore?

She cast her gaze over the crowd and was able to observe their reactions. She felt bad for the students, so she said to Ryan in a lower tone.

"Why are you here?"

Ryan turned to her and dragged her along with him. She realized that he was holding her hand.

He opened the front passenger door and said,

"Get in."

Allison did not want to create any drama there. So she got in the car. He closed the door and went to the driver's seat.

After he started the car, the cars that were behind it started following his car as well.

Allison glanced at the side mirror. She could see more than five cars behind them.

When she considered the possibility that Ryan had actually gone everywhere like this, she was astounded.

"Why did you say that there?" She asked Ryan.

"I didn't tell any lies. They need to know who they are messing with." He stated as he focused his attention on the road.

Allison turned her head to face him. "Why did you say that I was your woman?"

He frowned after hearing it. He looked at her and asked, "Aren't you?"

She averted her gaze from his questionable eyes and cleared her throat.

"Concentrate on the road."

He turned his attention back to the road and replied,

"Then don't ask me any illogical questions."

"Yeah, I ask illogical questions, and you are the most logical person. You can do and say anything. I just can't understand why you need to come to my school. It was just my second day." She asked with an annoyed tone.

"Because you like to keep your true identity a secret. But I am not like you."

Allison regarded him while laughing sarcastically at him. "Look who's talking! The man who has spent his entire life keeping his true identity a secret from his family and others now will give me advice about it."

She mocked him while shaking her head.

She noticed his fingers clenched around the steering wheel of the car.

She gulped and looked away. She did not want to take a chance with this man. Who knows what would come to his mind, and he would do that.

She rested her back against the seat and looked outside the window as she thought he was driving back to the pack house.

However, after a while, she noticed that the pack house did not come into view. The distance between the school and the pack house could be covered in under twenty minutes. If this was the case, then why hadn't they arrived there yet?

She turned to him and asked,

"Where are we going?"

"Didn't you want to leave me and this pack?"

"I still do."

"I thought, why not make your wish come true?"

"What do you mean? Where are you taking me? I am not going anywhere with you."

He turned his head and smirked at her. "Why? Are you afraid of me?"

She rolled her eyes at him. "Afraid of you? In your dreams."

"So you are not scared?"

"Scared of what?"

"That I am taking you somewhere. There will be no one to save you from me."

Allison chuckled. She sounded bitter. "What can you do? Kill me? You can. I am not afraid of death, Alpha Ryan."

He turned silent. He did not utter a word after that. After like an hour, the car crossed a border.

Allison sat up straight. Her eyes widened. She thought Ryan was just kidding. She could not believe that he was actually taking her out of the pack.

She did not ask him anything. She took out her phone from her bag and dialed Teresa's number. But she found no network on the phone.

At that time, Ryan increased the car's speed by revving the engine. This time, she really felt scared. She could not help but say,

"What are you doing? Where are we going? You can't just take me away like that. I have to ask my parents."

"Your parents know about it. They give your hand to me so I can throw you anywhere I want."

Her frown deepened as her anxiety morphed into wrath before her eyes.

"How dare you say that? You don't have to throw me. I myself don't want to stay with you."

There was a smirk on Ryan's face. It was like he was enjoying the ride very much. Or Allison could say he was pleased to pick on her.

"Ryan, I thought you would announce the cancellation of the wedding soon." She said.

Ryan's delighted face turned grim. "What did you say?"

"You have to cancel it as soon as possible. You can't just force me to marry you."

Allison gasped loudly as the car came to a startling halt. It stopped in the middle of the road as he pressed the brake after hearing her statement.

He then switched his attention to her and pointed his finger in her direction.

"You should forget about it because I will never cancel it."

"You can't force me."

"Of course I can. I am the head Alpha of the pack where you are currently living. I am the one who won your pack. I will be the one to bring down the pack that you will join to live with if you dare to leave me."

She gazed into the icy orbs that were pointing an accusatory glare in her direction.

She ignored his words and asked,

"Tell me where we are going."

He turned away from her and started the car again.

"Be prepared to behave like a Luna. We are going to the East Flow pack."
